

2019 11 03 09 God's patience, like the rule of the nation of Israel, has reached its end. He will not tolerate, among other things, the offering of children to the false god Molech. A nation who behaves this way cannot be blessed by God. Whereas good news has come in the past, this time, the best news which can be gleaned by Judah's king is that he shall not die by the sword. In the overthrow of his nation, he will find mercy.

Some parallel passages from Ezekiel make their way into the week's readings. The contributions of this era to the writings also appear.

Paul's Epistles to Philippi and Timothy

Paul is able to take his pen in hand not for a rebuke or reprimand, but for words of affirmation and encouragement. There are always exhortations and these letters are no exceptions. Paul ends both as they begin: with thanksgiving to God and celebration of His grace.
