Why I didn't like it initially

At all, to the idea of write research work in primary school I am negatively. There are several reasons for this.

First, children cannot even at this age to formulate my thoughts properly. Therefore, obviously this part of work is supposed to be performed by adults. Kids can only sit next to each other, can be observed, and can just do their own thing at this time, that I often saw in the family of his girlfriend. She asked me to properly formulate this or that thought, because, in her view, the fact that it was written, it was not so. And then just a matter of technique: to learn a child by heart the whole text. Make a beautiful presentation. Well, to talk to him on the subject, so that questions could answer, if asked.

She loves this research work. Itself the entire in this process. Everything comes up, explores, creates... Then the child is protected and takes even sometimes prizes. She has two sons. One in seventh grade. Also took places. Now don't know where to attach themselves. What to reveal. At all not learned self-education. But has acted in elementary school. At least these research works, as a method, have long been used. And, I know that different kinds of interviews, experiments, etc., that could be, he did with the mother in most of these studies. That is, he actively participated in the process. And yet-there is no effect. Research skill is not formed.

The second reason is parents lack of proper understanding of this process. I already had experience of supervision of children in different age group. Those who are older, always try to tell the kids the answers to the questions that are not difficult for them, but the kids need to think. I think the same goes for research in primary school. Mom (or dad) do it with passion. In fact, such work should not present any difficulty for them. They even say so: "I study to do for my son (or daughter)". No one has yet said in my presence that the child needs to perform the study...

Finally, the third reason is related to the lack of adult knowledge of the methodology of the research process. Especially with students in primary school. Even students organize for this study is quite difficult. And here first-graders! And I do not want my children to grow up yet another unable to self-sufficiency consumers. I would like to squeeze out of this situation is the most useful for them. And it's not on the first place in the defense.

So I use paper writing service and I HAPPY :)

So I was puzzled. He began to think. Hope, what I came, will help and other parents, and can and teachers primary schools, to parents train.
