Make the most of the keynote template features There are many creative templates for Keynote to choose from. It can be difficult to make a final decision on which one is best for your presentation. Style and features are two main points of attention. Above, we present a variety of style options. For most presentations, a clear and minimalist business style is a good option. But take a look at the presentation slide designs that come bundled into the theme. All models presented here have a number of slide options. You choose one in style that adapts to your business needs and bundles it with the right slide show options. Don't feel like you should use all the slides bundled in these templates. Just enjoy those that fit best in your presentation. Use slides with keynote theme masters, picture placeholders, and packaged images to create a consistent design when adding your own images, text, and data. If necessary, use an illustration or infographic and add intuitive insight to what you present, otherwise keep the slide simple with text about a photo, when this is all you need. Make sure you don't add too much information to a slide or exaggerate in animations. Simple and simple techniques go a long way towards the development of a professional presentation. 2. Keep your slide designs focused You probably have a variety of information you want to communicate in your presentation. Before you even touch a slide, simplify all your research and marketing materials so you can get a clear message across. Then choose a narrow focus with each slide because you want to communicate one component in each of these slides. Make sure that every slide you add to your presentation is easy to understand, clearly displayed, and develops your overall narrative arc. Keep in mind that the more information you try to add to a slide, you're more likely to add to the clutter and confusion. Instead, bring intense focus to each of your slides. 3. Tell an integrated visual story It's almost irresistible to want to present many visual effects to your audience, but too much graphic or competitor data will only overwhelm them. Above all, tailor what you want to say in your presentation to the images you will deliver. You want the data and graphs you present to include your story. Design your slides to guide your audience through a visual story. When you create a sales presentation, you present simple infographics that support your sales values. Use a simple bar chart instead of a more complicated data visualization when needed. When you release your new business idea, you want your product photos to be tailored to the features you present. Have a clear position for each slide and present only information and graphs that demonstrate best. One of the keynote templates presented in this article will have great presentation features to work with. You choose the best slide designs and use them to connect with your audience. Choose the right layout for your business information, tell a compelling visual story and spread your message.
