Preventing Injuries amongst Undocumented Workers

Everyone needs protection at work regardless of their status. Undocumented workers are disproportionately exposed to health and safety hazards in the workplace.

The Centre for Spanish Speaking Peoples and the Workers' Health and Safety Legal Clinic are undertaking a joint two-year initiative that aims to prevent injuries among undocumented and non-status Spanish speaking workers in Ontario.

The main objectives of this project are:

- To provide public legal education about workers' health and safety rights through community outreach.
- To provide legal representation to workers in appropriate cases involving health and safety issues.

We have prepared outreach materials with information on health and safety, workers' compensation and human rights that will be distributed in community health clinics and health centres, as well as other community organizations that provide services to the Spanish speaking community.
