

ADELAIDECINÉMATHÈQUE

The Mercury Adelaide Cinematheque presents a curated program of timeless classics, cult favourites and contemporary masterpieces. Each season features several themed strands, from filmmakers and genres to ideas or unexpected connections, offering different ways to explore cinema tickets for Cinematheque screenings available in person at the Box Office only.

EARLY BERGMAN

Widely considered one of the greatest and most important filmmakers in the history of cinema, Ingmar Bergman's films, such as The Seventh Seal, Wild Strawberries and Persona are regularly cited as the pinnacle of European filmmaking. But he made over 60 films and documentaries during his 59 year career. In this program, we look at his early work, starting with his first work as director and finishing with the film that bought him to international attention, to examine the work of the artist before he was considered one of the greatest directors of all time.

1964 - A YEAR OF COLOUR

What was it about 1964 that produced such a remarkable coincidence in cinema history? Three films from three different countries, all released within months of each other, became landmarks for their innovative use of colour. Red Desert, The Masque of the Red Death and The Umbrellas of Cherbourg each use colour in distinct ways to shape emotion, symbolism and romance, marking a striking moment in cinematic aesthetics and inviting the question of why it happened when it did?

HANGOUT FILMS: What it means to hangout. Guest programmer: James Crockett

Hangout Films and Slacker films are usually described in the same breath. Although these respective sub-genres do share a lot of films, I wish to make a distinction: While Slacker films may be light on plot, there is still a plot that carries the character through. Hangout films focus on character, with the goal of either the characters or the filmmakers to hangout, explore their lives and ask you "what do these moments mean?"

So here we ask you to take a moment from your busy schedule and, y'know, hang.

BERGMAN & ULLMANN: MASTER AND MUSE / A SYMBIOTIC COLLABORATION

The working relationship between Ingmar Bergman and Norwegian actress Liv Ullmann was one of the most significant collaborations in cinema. First working together on "Persona" in 1966, their professional partnership continued through the 70s, resulting in the masterpieces we present here. Ullmann became Bergman's favourite actress and muse, with Ullmann frequently noting Bergman's ability to draw out her best performances. Their collaboration significantly shaped both of their careers and left a lasting impact on world cinema.

CRISIS (KRIS) 1946

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
A small-town piano teacher is shocked by the arrival of her foster daughter's real mother, whose young lover soon follows and causes further disruption. Made while Bergman was still artistic director at the Helsingborg City Theatre, this film displays many of the motifs that would define the director's later work.

THIRST (TÖRST) 1949

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
A needy couple in a bad marriage travel back to Stockholm after a trip to Italy. Meanwhile, a widow resists seductions from two different persons - her psychiatrist and a lesbian friend. This crosshatched, multilayered narrative marks the point where Bergman began to display his astonishing technical virtuosity and control over the medium of film.

SUMMER INTERLUDE (SOMMARLEK) 1951

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
A lonely woman recalls her first love thirteen years prior during a brief summer vacation. While released in the US as "Illicit Interlude" as part of the "Swedish Sin" moment, Pauline Kael would later describe this film as "not only as his breakthrough but also as the beginning of a new, great epoch in Swedish films."

SUMMER WITH MONIKA (SOMMAREN MED MONIKA) 1953

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
In the film that finally established

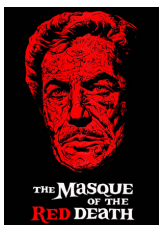

Bergman as an auteur of international repute, a pair of teenagers meet one summer day, start a reckless affair and abandon their families to be with one another. Arguably the filmmaker's first true masterpiece.

THE UMBRELLAS OF CHERBOURG 1964

Director: Jacques Demy | FR
The middle entry to Demy's loose

"romantic" trilogy, this film is iconic for its vivid colours, joyous choreography and spinning umbrellas. It remains widely cited as one of the greatest cinema musicals of all time. Winner of the Palme d'Or at the 1964 Cannes Film Festival and nominated for five Oscars, across two separate years!

THE MASQUE OF THE RED DEATH 1964

Director: Roger Corman | UK/USA
Widely considered one of Corman's best films and part of the string of Edgar Allan Poe adaptations starring Vincent Price, this film is notable as one of the first films shot in colour by cinematographer Nicolas Roeg, who pushes the format in bold and exciting ways.

RED DESERT (IL DESERTO ROSSO) 1964

Director: Michelangelo Antonioni | IT
In this psychological drama film starring Monica Vitti and Richard Harris, Antonioni dives headfirst into colour filmmaking. Repainting everything from buildings to trees and grass in order to "translate the poetry of the world", Antonioni's control over colour is absolute. Winner of the Golden Lion at the 25th Venice International Film Festival.

DAZED AND CONFUSED 1993

Director: Richard Linklater | USA
The adventures of high school and junior high students on the last day of school in May 1976. Richard Linklater's second film has garnered cult-classic status due to its easy going tone, lack of clichéd characters and a cast that has stood the test of time; all while being wrapped around an all-time movie soundtrack.

BOYZ 'N THE HOOD 1991

Director: John Singleton | USA
Follows the lives of three young males living in the Crenshaw ghetto of Los Angeles, dissecting questions of race, relationships, violence, and future prospects. A founding film of the black Realism or "hood" films, John Singleton's debut film shone a great spotlight on the reality of growing up in West Coast neighbourhoods and the gentrification of them.

RIO BRAVO 1959

Director: Howard Hawks | USA
A small-town sheriff in the American

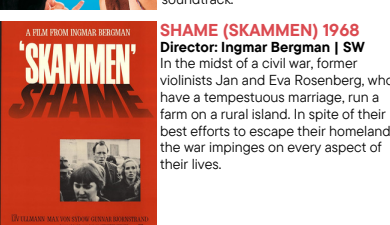

West enlists the help of a disabled man, a drunk, and a young gunfighter in his efforts to hold in jail the brother of the local bad guy. Labeled Quentin Tarantino's "hangout movie" and a favourite of his for a long time, Rio Bravo offered a light-hearted take on the western genre, compared to its counterparts.

FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH 1982

Director: Amy Heckerling | USA
A group of SoCal high school students would rather ignore their studies and instead indulge in their teenage distractions. One of the great mall movies, Fast Times explores the rapid and chaotic journey that is being a teenager. Jumping around between an ensemble cast throughout the school year.

SHAME (SKAMMEN) 1968

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
In the midst of a civil war, former violinists Jan and Eva Rosenberg, who have a tempestuous marriage, run a farm on a rural island. In spite of their best efforts to escape their homeland, the war impinges on every aspect of their lives.

CRIES AND WHISPERS (VISSKINGAR OCH ROP) 1972

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
When a woman dying of cancer in early twentieth-century Sweden is visited by her two sisters, long-repressed feelings between the siblings rise to the surface. The film that returned Bergman to commercial success, receiving five Academy Award nominations, including one for Best Picture.

AUTUMN SONATA (HÖSTSONATEN) 1978

Director: Ingmar Bergman | SW
A devoted wife is visited by her mother, a successful concert pianist who had little time for her when she was young. This would not only be Bergman's last film made specifically for cinemas, but would provide lead access Ingrid Bergman a role so great, she decided to retire rather than do a lesser work.
