Courses by Chef Jordan Hodson (Elements, The Pub at Art House) start with a light starter by paired with a light short film to set the night off right, followed by the main course to accompany a heavier short to add a little more depth to the evening. Finally, we're pleased to have Chef Ashley Woodward finish the night off with a dessert, paired with a sweet short film to put a cherry on the night's festivities. All courses have been expertly paired with wine (and beer) selections from George's Distributing. This is a fantastic night of entertainment that we hope to bring back again soon! Step into the rugged beauty of Montana's Upper Missouri River Breaks and follow eight Black adventurers as they retrace the path of the legendary Lewis and Clark Expedition. This 30-minute documentary, produced by the Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail in partnership with NEW Multimedia, shines a long-overdue spotlight on York—the only Black member of the Corps of Discovery. Born into slavery yet walking stride for stride with America's famed explorers, York's story has been overshadowed for centuries. Big Medicine reclaims his voice, weaving together history, healing, and the power of outdoor adventure. Through breathtaking landscapes and intimate reflections, the film connects York's legacy to today's fight for equity in outdoor spaces and the joy of reclaiming narratives once lost.
