There is nothing better after a long, hard day of work than a good night's sleep. Great Britain's Daily Star ran a story in September 2022 of a place that specializes in providing just that to its clientele. The Shleep Sanctuary, in Sussex, England, has the necessary "stock" to obtain that goal. You will be treated to dinner, a "luxurious" double bed encased in a glass dome, morning yoga, and breakfast. But their truly unique offering grazes outside that glass dome: numbered sheep. Each of their sheep sports its own number painted in green on its rump. Overseen by Dr. Dennis Schmoltzi, he has been quoted as saying, "Counting sheep is more than an old wives' tale, it's a tried-and-true visualization technique that Brits are relying on to send them to sleep."

Jesus has a better prescription for a good night's sleep. He offers contentment and peace that rests upon the assurance of and faith in His blessings and providence. Knowing that He is in control is a vital asset in overcoming worry in our lives. When the cares of this world are keeping you up at night, Jesus counters, "do not worry about your life" (Matthew 6:25). If we truly do pray to God for the things that we need in our day to day life, "our daily bread," forgiveness, and guidance (6:11-13), and if our aim in life is to "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness" (6:33), then there is little room left for the worries of this life to weigh us down as our focus in this life is to be of service to our heavenly Father in preparing ourselves and each other for our next, eternal life.
