May 14, 2023

There was once a young boy, somewhere between two and three years old, who straightened his arm out and was startled by what his eyes saw. In a panic, he went running to his mother and exclaimed “Mommy, my elbow is gone!” as he held his arm out straight for her to see. Soothingly, his mother assured him that if he just bent his arm again, he would find his elbow was still there. Sure enough, he bent his arm and to his relief the elbow that had disappeared was once again right where it supposed to be. Of course, it had always been as well.

It is natural for there to be a bond between a child and their mother. The bond between mother and child is put on display in the Bible on numerous occasions. In the Old Testament we see the bond between mother and son in the relationship between Hannah and Samuel. God granting Hannah a son “filled her heart with joy” (1st Samuel 2:1). We see through the brief account of their relationship the great impact that the child had on his mother.

In the New Testament we witness the bond between Jesus and his mother, Mary. So great an impact did Mary have on the life of her son that amid his suffering on the cross he sought to make sure she would be cared for after He was gone. “Behold, your mother!” Jesus said to John (John 19:27). Imagine, being humiliated, taunted, and tortured and still looking after the well-being of another. This is the impact that a mother has on the life of her child.

If you take a moment to look around the auditorium this morning you will see mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers who have had an immense impact on the lives of their family in the same way Eunice and Lois impacted Timothy (2nd Timothy 1:5). We thank you, honor you, and cherish you this day and every day!
