Excellence and Innovation in Nursing Education

<https://gane.nursingnetwork.com/>

March 2-4, 2023
Brasstown Valley Resort
Young Harris, GA

Kelly Dyar, EdD, RN, +CNN, CNE
President

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to the 2023 Annual Georgia Association for Nursing Education (GANE) Conference. I look forward to learning with you in the beautiful North Georgia Mountains.

Some of the highlights include our keynote and endnote sessions. Dr. Sara Horton-Deutsch will deliver this year's Keynote address and a plenary session. Dr. Horton-Deutsch's leadership and reflective practice experience will benefit us all. Dr. Theresa Brown, noted nurse and author, will close the conference with her Endnote address. These nurse leaders will inspire and challenge us to learn, grow, and thrive as nurses and humans.

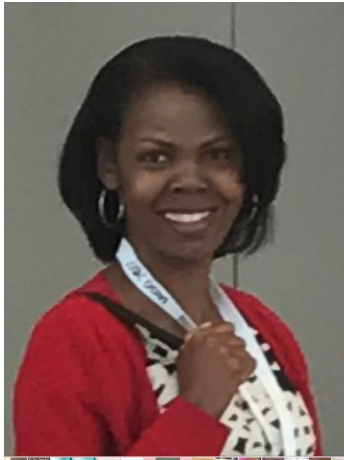

Make sure to take time to explore and engage with our exhibitors. Their support helps us provide the conference each year to you at a reasonable cost, and we are grateful for their support.

At the end of the annual business meeting on Friday, I will turn over the GANE Presidency to Dr. Victoria Foster. As my term ends and hers begins, I must extend gratitude to the GANE Executive Board, Standing Committee Chairs and members, and Program Planning Chair and Committees. The support and hard work of each of these volunteers are deeply appreciated. Many thanks to all GANE members for entrusting me to be your leader these last two years.

If this is your first time joining us, we welcome you and hope you will return next year. If you are re-turning, welcome back. We are glad you are here.

In gratitude,

Kelly Dyar, EdD, RN, CNN, CNE

Victoria Foster, PhD, MSN, FNP-C
President-Elect

Greetings!

On behalf of the Georgia Association for Nursing Education (GANE), I would like to thank you for attending our annual conference. We are so excited that you have decided to join us. We hope that you find the conference informative and useful in your roles as educators and practitioners. The primary goal of the conference is to bring nursing educators from all over the state of Georgia to engage in research and open dialogue about issues facing our students, profession and practice. In addition, we hope to develop and discuss strategies for addressing these problems. Moreover, we hope that you get to implement some of these strategies at your place of work. We hope that you enjoy learning about different teaching modalities, hearing from our well-regarded keynote and end-note speakers and networking with our diverse presenters and attendees.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dr. Kelly Dyar, our President, and her administrative team for all of their efforts and commitment that went into planning and developing this year's conference.

For those that have frequently attended the conference, welcome back. To those who are first time attendees, please do not make this a one-time occurrence. We hope to see all of you back next year and may we continue to make a difference in the students and communities that we serve.

Sincerely,

Victoria Foster, PhD, MSN, FNP-C

Rhonda Slocumb, PhD, RN, MPH
Program Planning Committee Chair

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to GANE 2023! Thank you for choosing GANE. Brasstown Valley Resort is a wonderful place to come together again.

Over the last few years, we have implemented an electronic program format, lived through a pandemic that taxed and pushed us to be creative educators in a virtual environment, attended the first virtual GANE conference, and returned to a live conference the next year.

I have enjoyed serving as the program planner for the annual GANE conference through all of the challenges of the last few years. I remember the first time I volunteered at a GANE conference. I think we were at Lake Lanier islands. I had not signed up for a committee, but I starting helping Susan Welch make signs on dry erase boards for the breakout sessions. She told me that I should volunteer the next year for the “signage committee” which is a committee that had not existed before that conference. I advanced in the volunteer activities to creating the conference book and implementing an electronic format to program planning committee chair. I found my place to fit amongst the wonderful group of volunteers each year. I encourage each of you to consider being a volunteer for GANE 2024. Each year, we have sign-up sheets for the committees needed to make GANE the great success that everyone enjoys each year. Planning for the next annual conference always starts at the current conference. As a volunteer for the conference committees, you will network with nursing educators across Georgia and enrich the conference experience for GANE conference attendees.

I look forward to seeing GANE membership and conference attendance grow in the coming years through the dedication of the volunteers.

All the best,

Rhonda

The Georgia Association for Nursing Education, Inc. has had a long and rich history. The Georgia Association for Nursing Education, Inc. originally began as The Georgia State League for Nursing in 1927. A group of nurse educators within the state joined forces to establish the organization. Their original purpose was to help assure consistency in the quality of curricula among nursing programs in the state. The Georgia State League for Nursing was incorporated on October 31, 1958 under the leadership of president Dorothy Buffington. In 1977, under the leadership of president Marlene P. Mitchell, the organization became a constituent league of the National League for Nursing and changed its name to The Georgia League for Nursing. In November of 2003, the membership determined that a non-affiliated organization would draw a wider representation in the state. The vote was made to disaffiliate from NLN and become independent without affiliation to any national organization. In September 2004, the Georgia Association for Nursing Education was granted its new corporate status from the State of Georgia. In January of 2005, GANE was recognized by the IRS as a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization.

The purpose of the Georgia Association for Nursing Education is to promote excellence in nursing education within the state of Georgia. This purpose is carried out through its functions that include:

1. Assess the needs of Georgia nurse educators and nurses.
2. Initiate, stimulate and support nursing education at clinical and academic levels, both formally and informally, thereby addressing the healthcare needs of Georgia's citizenry.
3. Participate in and promote nursing research at the local and state level that is designed to address nursing education and healthcare needs
4. Collaborate with nursing and other professional groups to positively influence nursing education, nursing regulation and healthcare delivery.

Today, GANE has 300 members and holds an annual conference in February. There are many opportunities to work on GANE committees in many capacities. Please contact a GANE executive board member to join in our growing organization.

DISRUPTING BURNOUT

Self-Care for Healthcare Professionals

Presented by

All too often, healthcare professionals give everything they have to the institution they are employed by and those they care for, sacrificing personal physical and mental health. It is difficult to find compassion and empathy for yourself and those you love when you have given it all away.

Self-Care for Healthcare Professionals is designed to help disrupt burnout before it's too late and give you tools for emotional well-being. However, it begins with you recognizing the importance of caring for yourself first.

Best practices to being the best you.

- Triaging your mental health and well-being.
- Recognizing what you need before it's too late.
- Developing healthy coping mechanisms.
- Preventing and overcoming burnout.
- Knowing that it's ok to seek help.
- Finding the best resources to care for yourself.

Keynote Speaker | Dr. Patrice Buckner Jackson

Dr. Patrice Buckner Jackson, known by many as Dr. PBJ, is a renowned speaker and the founder of EduCare Training and Consulting, LLC. She serves with a purpose to help others disrupt burnout by refreshing the hearts and equipping the hands of overworked, undervalued "heart-workers," who serve from a spirit of purpose. Compassionate work can carry a high price tag: your mental health, body, spirit, soul, and often, relationships are in distress as you serve the needs of others.

This course will help identify areas of self-care and practical steps that will help you find balance and peace in your service-oriented profession.

Keynote and Plenary Speaker

Sara Horton-Deutsch, PhD, PMHCNS, RN, FAAN, ANEF, GAHN, Caritas Coach & Scholar
 Professor and Director of University of San Francisco/Kaiser Permanente Partnership
 Watson Caring Science Faculty Associate and Director of the Caritas Leadership Program

Dr. Horton-Deutsch has led in academic and practice settings for 35 years as an advanced practice psychiatric/mental health nurse, teacher/practitioner, consultant, program director, caring science endowed chair, coach, and academic/practice partnership director. In 2022, she was inducted into the Global American Holistic Nursing. Through her academic and practice career, she has contributed to evidence and practice-based knowledge development to ensure safety and quality care. As a reflective leader, she focuses on being inwardly sound and other focused to influence change positively. She has co-authored a number of books on Reflective Practice, Caring Science, and Caritas Coaching. She is a Caritas Coach, HeartMath Trainer, Reiki Practitioner, and Healing Circle Facilitator. Through her journey, she has learned the necessity of connecting to one's own inner sources of wisdom, power, and healing, as well as the arts and humanities that once defined the discipline of nursing. She is passionate about facilitating critical, deep, and authentic connections that support resilience and the profession's evolution. She has a new book; Visionary Leadership in Healthcare being published this month through SIGMA. She is currently on the Board of Directors of SIGMA and Co-Director of the Caritas Leadership Program for the Watson Caring Science Institute.

End Note Speaker

Theresa Brown, RN

Theresa Brown, RN, is the author of the New York Times bestseller The Shift: One Nurse, Twelve Hours, Four Patients' Lives. In this book, Brown offers a revealing look at the struggles of one nurse, the challenges faced by her patients, and some larger truths about health care in this country.

Brown is a frequent contributor to the New York Times. One of her columns earned her an invitation to the White House, where President Obama quoted her in defense of the Affordable Care Act. Brown's work has also appeared on CNN.com, The Journal of the American Medical Association, Medscape, Slate.com, and the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. She has been a guest on MSNBC Live and NPR's Fresh Air.

Theresa's latest book, Healing: When a Nurse Becomes a Patient, is a powerful and intensely personal story about her own breast cancer diagnosis and treatment as well as a searing look at patient care.

A native of Missouri, Brown has a PhD in English from the University of Chicago and taught English for three years at Tufts University. Her three children inspired her to return to school and become a nurse. She is a frequent speaker at hospitals, nursing conferences, and universities where she lectures on issues related to nursing, health care, and end of life.
