

NEW GRAD RNs:

JOIN US FOR A NEW WEEKLY ONLINE FORUM FOR SUPPORT IN YOUR TRANSITION-TO-PRACTICE

Congratulations! You survived nursing school. So what's next?

For many new grads, the transition from nursing student to licensed registered nurse is a time filled with emotions and experiences that range from happiness and enthusiasm to discouragement and disillusionment. You may be cruising along in your new job, looking for a job or wondering if you made the right career choice. No matter where you are in your transition, the New Grad Forum is designed to help support you for success!

Beginning June 16, 3-weekly online forums will be conducted via Zoom lead by teams of expert RNs from academia and clinical practice, who specialize in new grad transition-to-practice.

The format is informal and topical, with lots of group discussion with new grads from across the state. Skills acquisition, time management and theory-to-practice gaps are just some of the common issues up for discussion. You are not alone! Come join your colleagues and let's support each other!
