NYONEL Membership Drive will be underway soon. Watch your e-mail for details!

NYONEL Launches New Website https://nyonel.nursingnetwork.com
On Wednesday, June 13, we transitioned to a new and improved website! This is a very exciting turning point for us. The old site was over 10 years old and had technologic limits. The new site is a Nursing Network site and allows two-way connection with other professional organization sites. We hope this will help spread the word about NYONEL, boost membership, attendance at events, and participation in NYONEL committee and advocacy activities. In addition to all of this, payments will be accepted directly from members, registrants and vendors, eliminating the inconvenience of needing to register through another site (remembering another login and password, etc.).
On the NYONEL website you will find current news; upcoming event postings and registrations; region meeting minutes; board meeting minutes; NYONEL Bylaws; photo galleries; newsletters and public policy position statements; Joint Commission updates, and links to a myriad of websites and resources to help enhance your professional practice. You can also connect with NYONEL members and followers, our Facebook page, Twitter feed, and contact us – each with a simple click!
Membership application and renewal are easier as well. You will receive pending membership expiration notices starting at 60 days and can renew with a few clicks! Credit or check payments are accepted. Enjoy navigating the new website and please share with your colleagues!

"Around the clock, tens of thousands of patients require immediate care in New York State's hospitals, and teams of health care professionals converge to help them. Top-quality, patient-centered care is the number one priority for these highly trained professionals, and they do fantastic work. Creating trained teams ready and able to deliver evidence-based care has been broadly embraced and instituted in hospitals across the state and nation. This approach works and supports a culture that helps high-risk industries like hospitals reliably achieve safe outcomes. As a former emergency room nurse, I understand that nurses are important team members, but so are nurses' aides, technicians, respiratory therapists, and of course, physicians..." Have you completed the “Intent to Leave” Research Survey Yet?
In May, the NYONEL Board approved our participation in a research project being conducted by Deborah Warden, a PhD candidate at the University of South Carolina School of Nursing, and an invitation was issued to members. The research topic is voluntary and involuntary intent to leave and turnover experiences among nurses in formal positions of leadership. New York is among 15 states actively participating in this study. The Board encourages our members to participate and to share the opportunity with members within their organizations and communities. New York results will be shared by Ms. Warden in the fall of 2018. AHA, AONE Representatives Serving on National Patient Safety Panel AONE Acting CEO Susan Gergely, EdD, and American Hospital Association (AHA) Senior Vice President and Chief Medical Officer Jay Bhatt, DO, will represent their organizations on a new national patient safety panel. The panel includes involvement from two dozen organizations and was organized by the Institute for Healthcare Improvement. The National Steering Committee for Patient Safety will create a national plan to accelerate patient safety progress across the care continuum. “We’ve seen success in targeted areas, such as reductions in health care-associated infections and hospital-acquired conditions,” said Jeffrey Brady, MD, co-chair of the committee and director of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality's Center for Quality Improvement and Patient Safety. “This renewed, shared focus on keeping patients safe and the work of the National Steering Committee reflect the importance of effective coordination at all levels—from national organizations to individual clinicians. (AHA News

Limiting Scope of Practice Increases Prices Barriers that states place on the full practice of physician assistants and advanced practice nurses raise prices without additional health and safety benefits, according to a new Brookings report. Report authors Kathleen Adams and Sara Markowitz recommend that state policymakers eliminate supervision requirements and allow advanced practice nurses to prescribe medicines. Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia allow the full practice of nurse practitioners. Read their full findings here:

AONE and AACN Address Nursing Workforce Issues AONE and the American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN) recently announced the formation of a new national strategy designed to strengthen alignment between practice and academia with the goal of advancing innovative solutions to meeting the demands of the current and future health care system.
As part of its mission, the newly formed AACN-AONE Advisory Committee will co-create models of care, workforce readiness, and a lifelong continuum of learning to optimize the impact of nursing on health and wellness.
