Kentucky Nurse will “go green” starting with our next issue

If you love receiving the paper edition of Kentucky Nurse, join KNA today.

We are excited to let you know that starting with our next issue, Kentucky Nurse is going “green!” Beginning in April, we will distribute the printed version as a members-only benefit for those nurses who belong to the Kentucky Nurses Association (KNA). We will make Kentucky Nurse available to non-members as an electronic publication and will post that link on our website later this year.

The KNA consistently employs practices that lessen the carbon footprint such as promoting our events online and distributing our monthly newsletter, E-News, by email and hosting many of our meetings via video conference, among other environmentally friendly activities.

For questions or comments about Kentucky Nurse, contact the KNA at admin@kentucky-nurses.org or call us at 502-245-2843.

This summer was a busy one for the Kentucky Nurses Association (KNA). I want to take this opportunity to share information regarding the KNA elections, our education initiatives, KNA’s continued growth, and a new opportunity to highlight the work, capabilities, and impact of nurses across Kentucky.

First, I want to welcome our President-elect Donna Meador. Donna has a history of support for nurses in her role with the Kentucky Hospital Association and her work in nursing leadership. I look forward to working with her as she prepares to take on the role of President in 2020. A complete list of the new KNA leadership team is included in this issue of Kentucky Nurse on page 9. Please take a moment to review this information as this team is leading KNA efforts to promote your activities as one of the many nurses providing care for Kentuckians.

The Summit, hosted by KNA at St. Elizabeth Training & Education Center (SECTEC) in October, highlighted workplace safety and the many successful interventions that have been developed and implemented in hospitals and healthcare organizations across the Commonwealth. A complete article about the Summit, including a list of our supporting partners, is also available in this issue of Kentucky Nurse on page 6. I hope it provides the motivation for more nurses to support the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students (KNAC) itself as the hub of research and policy development focusing on the recognized nursing shortage. KNA is also working with student nurses across the state to determine ideal ways to engage them in KNA and support the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students (KANS). This critical issue impacts care at all levels as well as academic preparation and ongoing education of the nursing workforce. Those with an interest in participating in the many KNA activities and for you to add your voice to our growing numbers. The Summit took place in Erlanger in the beautiful SECTEC. Those who attended experienced this amazing facility while gaining new knowledge and competencies to address the challenges that are present in our current workplaces and work environments. We are so grateful to St. Elizabeth for their hospitality and partnership.

During the Education Summit, we reviewed and approved new KNA bylaws. Several important items were included in these new bylaws including approval of a new KNA organization, the Kentucky Nurses Action Coalition (KNAC). Formerly the Kentucky Center for Nurses, KNAC will lead the KNA activities that address workforce development. Under the leadership of Dr. Janie Heath, dean of the University of Kentucky College of Nursing, KNAC is already positioning itself as the hub of research and policy development focusing on the recognized nursing shortage. KNA is also working with student nurses across the state to determine ideal ways to engage them in KNA and support the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students (KANS). This critical issue impacts care at all levels as well as academic preparation and ongoing education of the nursing workforce. Those with an interest in participating in the many KNA activities and for you to add your voice to our growing numbers. The Summit took place in Erlanger in the beautiful SECTEC. Those who attended experienced this amazing facility while gaining new knowledge and competencies to address the challenges that are present in our current workplaces and work environments. We are so grateful to St. Elizabeth for their hospitality and partnership.

Lastly, one of the most exciting initiatives that KNA has undertaken this year involves development of a Nurse Resource Book. Please look at the template example included in this issue of Kentucky Nurse on page 14. The goal of this resource is to show to the public, academic, industry, government, and the healthcare community the vast levels of experiences and impact that are present within Kentucky’s nurse workforce. We expect this Resource Book to become a valuable collection of information and marketing material that can be broadly used to promote and highlight our profession. I invite and strongly encourage every nurse in Kentucky to participate in this opportunity. To stress the importance of this initiative and my firm conviction in its importance, I will pay the fee for participation in this resource for the first 10 nurses who become new KNA members and enroll in this Resource Book during the month of December or January! I look forward to supporting what I am convinced will be one of the most important new KNA activities. Please join me.

Growing our KNA Chapter with Collaborative Learning

Carol Murch, DNP, APRN, ACNS-BC, CHPN, CNE
Kentucky Nurses Association: Green River Chapter
Assistant Professor, Murray State University

Objectives
1. Describe the purpose of the NCLEX event.
2. Describe the significance of the event.
3. Identify key findings and implications.

Abstract
I developed this poster to describe a collaborative learning opportunity that our Kentucky Nurses Association (KNA) Chapter offers to nursing students each spring as they are preparing to take the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses (NCLEX-RN). The inaugural NCLEX Challenge Event took place on February 22, 2017 at Owensboro Health located in Daviess County, Kentucky. Our KNA Chapter has successfully offered our community nursing students an NCLEX Challenge Event for three consecutive years and there has been an increase in our membership during this time.

Purpose
The purpose for the event was to create a collaborative learning opportunity which would bring KNA nurse educators and students from our local associate nursing programs together to give additional assistance as they were preparing for NCLEX-RN. Funds raised would be used to award a nursing scholarship in the fall. Our goal was to increase our chapter membership.

Project Development Methods
Each September, members of the Events Planning Committee will start tasks such as writing test questions, requesting KNA starter funds (approximately $500), confirming venue/date of event, finding a food catering service, and getting price estimates for supplies/servers. By January, all event details are completed.

By writing and presenting NCLEX-style questions along with the rationales, the students are given a unique opportunity to apply their knowledge as they answer each question. We surround the NCLEX Challenge event around a celebration theme and included food, music, a friendly competition, and tons of fun! There was a small registration fee, which included a meal (BBQ sandwich/chips/cookie/drink): competition team of six (6) students = $25, student audience = $5, and RN audience - $10.

The completion had two rounds, each lasting 45 minutes with 24 questions and one team member was responsible for providing the answer on behalf of his or her team. One KNA Green River Chapter member was designated as the score keeper for each college team and maintained confidentiality at each team table during the competition rounds.

Findings
By giving college nursing students the opportunity to participate in the NCLEX Challenge Event, they were able to practice their ability to answer NCLEX style questions. Students were encouraged to develop a personal NCLEX study plan based upon how they answered each question. There was a total of six (6) competing teams from Henderson Community College (CC), Hopkinsville CC, Madisonville CC, Owensboro CC, University of Louisville-Owensboro, and University of Southern Indiana in 2018 and 2019.

Conclusion
The student team from Hopkinsville Community College won the competition in 2017 and the student team University of Southern Indiana won the competition in 2018 and 2019. We request our attending students, KNA members and nurses to complete an evaluation at the conclusion of each NCLEC Challenge Event and the results were 100% positive.

The KNA Green River Chapter has awarded a nursing scholarship in the fall since 2017. Our KNA Chapter will host the Fourth Annual NCLEX Challenge Event on March 26, 2020 in Henderson, KY and we hope to continue this collaborative learning event, grow our KNA organization and our chapter’s mission to foster and support future nurses. As a result of offering this event for three years, our KNA Chapter has increased in by six (6) members.

ABSTRACT

Workplace violence is the most prevalent cause of injury in the health care setting. Workplace violence is defined as any physical assault, threatening behavior or verbal abuse occurring in the work setting. A workplace may be any location, either permanent or temporary, where an employee performs any work-related duty. This includes the buildings and surrounding perimeters, parking lots, field locations, and clients’ homes as well as traveling to and from work assignments. This means it has no boundaries – hospital settings, hospices, outpatient centers, home health environments and clinics: all are at risk. It crosses all services lines and affects everyone. The violators can be peers, patients, visitors, or domestic violence situations that spill over into the workplace. The victims, potential victims and the rippling effects of exposure to violence affect a culture to its core. Exposure to workplace violence decreases customer satisfaction, increases turnover, increases workplace injuries, absenteeism, decreased engagement, and increase in work related errors thereby affecting patient safety from both primary exposure to the incident or by secondary (inattention) because of the incident.

According to the American Nurses Association (ANA), in the health care and social assistance sectors, 13 percent of days away from work were the result of violence in 2013, and this rate has increased in recent years, according to the U.S. Department of Labor Bureau of Labor Statistics. In addition, three in 10 nurses reported physical abuse and the rates of workplace violence injuries for nurses and nursing assistants rose steadily over the two-year period, according to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

It is estimated that at least 25 percent of workplace violence goes unreported and at least 62 percent of nurses have experienced some form of workplace violence. Organizations across the country are developing multidisciplinary teams to combat workplace violence in all forms by working with all service lines to develop collaboratively improved education, policy, and support for the employees, customers and communities they serve. The program development must include awareness, responsiveness, incident management and recovery.

The Importance of Resilience in Helping Leaders Cope with Psychological Violence/Workplace Bullying

Debra Hampton
PhD, MSN, RN, NEA-BC, CENP, FACHE

Aims: Explaining why psychological violence may be a disruptive force for nurse leaders and highlighting the importance of resilience in helping nurses cope when experiencing bullying are the two primary purposes of this presentation. Strategies leaders can use when being bullied also are outlined.

Background: Bullying is deliberate behavior that negatively impacts the victim. Exposure to bullying may cause health and job-related disruptions, to include mental and physical health issues, burnout, turnover, reduced job satisfaction and decreased organizational commitment (Fink-Samnick, 2015). Resilience is the process of adapting when experiencing adversity, threats, or significant sources of stress and bouncing back after these challenging experiences. Resilience can be a protection factor against distress and the negative effects of bullying experiences. Resilience can be a protection factor of stress and bouncing back after these challenging experiences.

Methods: This study employed a descriptive, cross-sectional design through the use of an anonymous online survey. Participants included nurse managers, directors, and executives from a United States national nursing leadership organization. Bullying behaviors were measured by the Revised 22 item Negative Acts Questionnaire (NAQ-R) (Einarsen, Hoel, & Notelaers, 2009). Resilience was measured by the Brief Coping Scale (BCS), a four-item scale that reflects adaptability and creative responses to stress; this scale reflects tenacity, optimism, creativity, problem solving and a commitment to make the best of difficult situations (Sinclair & Wallston, 2004). Both the NAQ-R and BCS have demonstrated reliability and validity from other studies.

Results: Participants for this study included 175 nurses (95% female and 5% male) that were in either CEO/CFO (n=5, 3%), CNO (n=56, 33%), Director (n=65, 38%), or Nurse Manager (n=45; 26%) roles (Hampton, Tharp-Barrie, & Rayens, 2018). Mean NAQ-R was 39.3 (range 22-110). Approximately 60% of participants experienced behaviors than can be categorized as bullying behaviors and 26% experienced severe workplace bullying. Mean resilience was 17 (possible range 5-20). Resilience as measured by the BCS was not significantly associated with bullying as measured by the NAQ-R.

Conclusion: Bullying is a significant workplace stressor for leaders and does cause individuals to leave their positions. Resilience was not significantly related to bullying and intent to leave in this study, which could indicate that bullying led to a reduction in the development of leader resiliency. However, dealing with negative experiences also may build tenacity and resilience. Nursing leaders need to identify and assertively address personal bullying and focus on actions to build personal resilience.

No one should have to go to work with fear of physical violence, verbal threats, or threatening behavior. Unfortunately, many nurses do. According to the American Nurses Association, one in four nurses are assaulted. Of those one in four, only 20-60% of those incidents are reported. Nurse abuse, also known as workplace violence, attributes to 13% of missed workdays (American Nurses Association, n.d.).

In order to address workplace violence, we need to first be able to identify what it is. According to Joint Commission’s Sentinel Event from April 2018, workplace violence can be described as intimidating, harassing behavior, physical assaults or threats of assaults and verbal, written, or physical aggression intended to control or cause death, seriously bodily injury or damage to property (Joint Commission, 2018). According to the American Nurses Association (ANA), the violence includes incidences by patients, patients’ family members and external individuals and includes physical, sexual and psychological assaults (ANA, 2019). Workplace violence can be further dissected into sub groups of bullying and incivility by co-workers, but for the sake of this article, we will be discussing workplace violence and nurse abuse from other sources other than co-workers.

Some of us may never personally experience workplace violence and that is a good thing, but “workers in health care settings are four times more likely to be victimized than workers in private industry” (Joint Commission, 2018). The Joint Commission also has 68 reported sentinel event incidences of homicide, rape, or assault of hospital staff members over an eight-year period, (Joint Commission, 2018). There is no better time than now to raise awareness and support for safe work environments, especially for the most trusted profession taking care of the most vulnerable populations. It is the nurses’ caring nature to feel empathy for their patients. With this empathy comes a downside as nurses tend to underreport workplace violence because they often believe that their assailants are not responsible for their empathy.

With this list of barriers to reporting workplace violence, it can almost be guaranteed that incidents happen at a substantially higher number than we anticipated. It is especially difficult if nurses don’t know when or how to report these incidents. No matter what inflicts the act of violence, it is the nurses duty to report any and all acts of workplace violence. It is the organizations duty to train nurses to identify workplace violence and have an effective reporting system that is continually addressed. No one benefits from workplace violence as it “results in low staff morale, lawsuits, and high worker turnover,” (Joint Commission, 2018). This is no good for the nurses, the organization, or the patients. Organizations should also be responsible to provide training to employees in preparation for disruptive behaviors, self-defense/self-protection, and de-escalation of these incidents. Being proactive and having staff be able to identify escalation of events that could lead to violence, could greatly help in de-escalation before the violent acts can occur. Organizations should also debrief with employees after these disruptive events occur to better determine what went well, what didn’t go well, and how things could be handled more effectively in the future. Everyone needs to feel safe at work and we need to be able to report acts of violence no matter how small; if the incident causes physical or mental distress, or makes the nurse feel unsafe in any way, the incident should be reported and followed up with by management or the security team. Nurses should not feel shame for reporting workplace violence, the concerns should not be minimized by management. Workplace safety is everyone’s job and collaboration between management, security and staff is a must if we are to provide sustainable culture of safety.

• A lack of agreement on definitions of violence; e.g. does it include verbal harassment?
• Fear of being accused of inadequate performance or of being blamed for the incident
• Lack of awareness of the reporting system

The ANA Enterprise is the family of organizations that is composed of the American Nurses Association (ANA), the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC), and the American Nurses Foundation. The ANA Enterprise will celebrate Year of the Nurse by engaging with nurses, thought leaders and consumers in a variety of ways that promote nursing excellence, infuse leadership and foster innovation. “As the largest group of health care professionals in the U.S. and the most trusted profession, nurses are at the center of care delivery and community outreach,” there are opportunities to increase awareness of the value of nursing in order to expand investment in education, practice and research, as well as increase the numbers of nurses who serve in leadership positions.”

“We look forward to working with partner organizations to communicate a contemporary and accurate view of nurses and the critical work they do, as well as challenge boards and other influencers to commit to nursing and nursing leaders in order to improve the nation’s health,” said Grant.

Given the wide range of nursing roles in the U.S., ANA Enterprise will promote inclusivity and wide engagement of all nurses throughout Year of the Nurse. As an example, during 2020, ANA Enterprise will expand National Nurses Week, traditionally celebrated from May 6 to May 12 each year to a month-long celebration in May to expand opportunities to elevate and celebrate nursing.

The World Health Assembly, the governing body of the World Health Organization, declared 2020 the International Year of the Nurse. As an example, during 2020, ANA Enterprise will expand National Nurses Week, traditionally celebrated from May 6 to May 12 each year to a month-long celebration in May to expand opportunities to elevate and celebrate nursing.

Nurses are encouraged to use #yearofthenurse and follow us on social media as we celebrate nurses in 2020. The ANA Enterprise is the organizing platform of the American Nurses Association (ANA), the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC), and the American Nurses Foundation. The ANA Enterprise leverages the combined strength of each to drive excellence in practice and ensure nurses’ voice and vision are recognized by policy makers, industry influencers and employers. From professional development and advocacy, credentialing and grants, and products and services, the ANA Enterprise is the leading resource for nurses to arm themselves with the tools, information, and network they need to excel in their individual practices. In helping individual nurses succeed—across all practices and specialties, and at each stage of their careers—the ANA Enterprise is lighting the way for the entire profession to succeed.
Kentucky to provide increased access to Medicaid health services for students

Hats off to Eva Stone, KNA School Nurse Chapter, for advocating for this cause

Thanks to a recent amendment to the Centers for Medicare/Medicaid Services (CMS) regulations, Kentucky will expand services provided by nurses and mental health professionals. According to a news release from the Cabinet for Health & Human Services (CHFS), Kentucky’s Medicaid state plan will allow for expanded health services in schools during the current school year and approval for direct services reimbursement to school districts is retroactive to August 1, 2019.

Children with Medicaid coverage often do not receive healthcare services because of social determinants such as lack of transportation, parent work schedules or finding a provider that accepts Medicaid.

The CHFS news release also states that Senate Bill 1, passed by the 2019 General Assembly, mandated increased mental health access and services inside schools but the law was not attached to additional funding to implement the mandates. Examples of services that could now be covered include physical and behavioral health screenings, immunizations, dental care, speech therapy supports and mental health counseling.

The Kentucky Nurses Association thanks Eva Stone, manager of district health services, Jefferson County Public Schools and immediate past co-chair of the KNA School Nurse Chapter, for leading the charge toward this legislative milestone that will support additional funding for nurses in schools and allow nurses to practice to the full scope of their licensure. We also extend our thanks to the School Nurse Chapter for keeping Kentucky children at the forefront of discussions across the Commonwealth.

Eva, who has worked diligently on this initiative, says, “We are 80,000+ nurses strong and, by working together, we can reduce the barriers to care that children experience. School nurses play a vital role in bridging the gap between students who need care and those who receive it and can provide care coordination between parents and healthcare providers. She adds, “While some states are taking more progressive steps in this area than others, Kentucky traditionally has not regarded school nurses as Specialized Instructional Support Personnel (SISP). Research indicates that school nurses and the services they provide can have a direct impact on academic outcomes.”

Eva concludes, “As the daughter of a grade school principal and nurse, I am proud to provide nursing care in this type of non-traditional setting.”

Donate a $1 a month for a year to KNF
What if every Kentucky nurse put one dollar per month in a jar and donated $12 a year to the Kentucky Nurses Foundation? With more than 80,000 nurses in the Commonwealth, those one-dollar bills really add up! Maybe you could start out by collecting for this unique campaign at your chapter meetings or among your nursing friends? Leave your credit card at home for this one; we’ll only take your check or cash.
