NRHS graduate to pilot Atlantis to Space Station

By Carol Klear

If all goes according to schedule, in just two weeks a 1980 graduate of North Ridgeville High School will fly the Shuttle Atlantis to the International Space Station (ISS), taking with him a NRHS pennant.

Major Charles Owen Hobaugh USMC, the pilot on this 10th flight to the Space Station, along with Commander Steven W. Lindsey, Mission Specialist Michael L. Gernhardt (Ph.D.) and Mission Specialist James F. Reilly II (Ph. D.), will deliver the Joint Airlock Module to the ISS. The module will permit astronauts and cosmonauts to effect future space walks without a Space Shuttle.

Hobaugh, 39, was born in Bar Harbor, Maine. His father, Jimmie Hobaugh, was a captain in the U.S. Coast Guard, which meant the family relocated several times while Hobaugh was growing up. He spent his sophomore, junior and senior years at NRHS graduating third in his class on June 6, 1980.

The Ridgeville graduate went on to earn a BS degree in aerospace engineering from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1984. In addition to being a Distinguished Graduate of the Academy, Hobaugh earned numerous awards including the Marine Corps Achievement Medal and Combat Action Ribbon.

Following graduation, Hobaugh was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps and completed basic training

Kathy Hepp's second grade class at St. Peter School had a hands-on lesson on dinosaurs recently when a naturalist from the Lorain County Metro Parks helped them build a dinosaur model. Altogether now, let's build a dinosaur

By Carol Klear

In today's world, we sometimes cautiously step to one side to let a strange dog pass by, because you just never know...

But imagine a planet where creatures, sometimes up to 80 feet long, stagger and fro stopping from time to time to munch on a treetop, or swallow up animals smaller than themselves.

Millions and millions of years ago, now-extinct dinosaurs roamed the earth, proud to be the dominant form of animal life. Depending on the type of dinosaur, the size could range from 2 ft. to 80 ft. in overall length, with the smaller ones appearing initially, evolving then into larger forms.

The carnivorous dinosaurs usually had short necks and moved around on their hind legs, while other species were much, much larger and lumbered around on four feet.

During the past four to six weeks, Kathy Hepp's second graders at St. Peter School have been studying the life and times of dinosaurs.

Hepp said the lessons are part of a science unit that compares the world as it is today, with the earth as it was long ago. Following the dinosaur era, the children will begin delving into the space age.

Hepp, who has been teaching at St. Peter's since 1989, said that the youngsters look forward to learning about dinosaurs, as well as the projects linked to them, such as the shadow boxes they make. "Each child built one of clay," she said, adding, "No plastic dinosaurs allowed."

Recently, Carla Schreiner, a naturalist with the Lorain County Metro Parks, discussed dinosaurs with the children, and as part of the Park District's "Constructor-saurus" program, toted to the classroom a box full of wood pieces that, when correctly assembled, made a model of a Stegosaurus dinosaur.

As Schreiner spread the pieces on the floor, Hepp told the children that they were going to help build the dinosaur, and then,

Minnick and Butkowski balk at abatement request

By Carol Klear

Five of council's seven members approved the recent abatement request by R.W. Beckett Corporation and Beckett Air, Inc., during the May 21 meeting. Gail Minnick, R-4 and Bernadine Butkowski, R-at-large dissented.

In objecting to the abatement, Minnick presented figures from previous requests, stressing that granting the present appeal would push Beckett's total abatement "to nearly $18 million on fair market valuation."

According to Minnick's figures, from 1998 through 2007 R.W. Beckett and Beckett Gas received a total tax abatement of $11,550,000, and is paying the North Ridgeville City Schools $25,000 annually starting in 1999 and continuing over a nine-year period.

The Councilwoman cited two other abatements given to Beckett companies in 1993, which allowed 100 percent abatements through 2002 and gave $6,000 per year to the school district. The total amount given to the schools based on the three abatements is $285,000.

Minnick said that since the Western Sewers are expected to attract more business and industry, she doesn't feel it necessary to continue "subsidizing Beckett with any additional abatements." She said her approval hinges on taking the abatement to voters.

Butkowski reminded the legislators that a recent addition to North Ridgeville's business community - Dobie Pallets - did not ask for abatement. She also said Beckett does not plan to extend Taylor Parkway.

"Why give an abatement to Beckett if they will not follow the Master Plan," she asked. "It's a good deal for Beckett, but my taxes never go down."

Councilman David Gillock disagreed with Minnick and Butkowski and said, "This is the cost of competing with other cities. This is not money we're paying out, it's money we're not collecting."

Mayor Deanna Hill objected to Minnick's conclusion, calling it "incredibly misleading."

Without offering abatement land would remain vacant, she said, "There would be no opportunity for new employment."

The Mayor also noted that when school districts receive state funds, there are mandates attached; however with direct donations, the schools determine how to use the money.

Hill also recalled Beckett's long history with the city, and said, "Every abatement they have applied for has far exceeded their expectations and projections."

Underwood shares inside info about the Tribe

By Carol Klear

Cleveland Indians fans, and even people who aren't addicted to listening to every game, enjoyed the inside information shared by Tribe play-by-play announcer, Matt Underwood, guest speaker at this year's Volunteer Recognition Dinner at the Senior Center.

Underwood joined veterans Tom Hamilton and Mike Hegan at the microphone last year, after 10 years with the sports team at WEWS TV-5.

The Ashland native, who now lives in Avon Lake, graduated from Baldwin-Wallace College and in the mid-90s hosted Indians Warm-Up on the radio. Prior to turning the Hamilton-Hegan team, into a trio, Underwood hosted a pre-game show for Fox Sports.

Underwood told the luncheon guests that he credits his grandmother with getting him into radio. "My grandmother gave me a little radio," he said, "and I would lie in bed and listen to baseball games." Today, Underwood is the voice other Tribe fans love to listen to.

Addressing the volunteers, Underwood said he believes in "giving back," and saluted those being honored at the luncheon for their spirit of volunteerism.

Describing the 2001 Cleveland Indians, Underwood said, "There are very few weaknesses. They've got a good starting rotation and a good bullpen."

While at Channel 5, Underwood said he formed a friendship with news anchor Ted Henry. "He is the nicest guy you'd ever want to meet," said Underwood, "...but he doesn't know anything about sports."

However, when Sandy Alomar hit a homerun during one game, Henry stood up and cheered with everyone else in the station that was glued to the TV. But Henry's lack of sports savvy showed, said Underwood, when, as the camera played a rerun of the homer, "Ted jumped up and down, shouting, 'look he did it again.'"

Underwood recalled a couple of baseball pros from North Ridgeville - Dell Bethel and Joe Charboneau. "I met Joe at Fantasy Camp," he said.

"As a kid he had no father," said Underwood. "Joe grew up in Southern California. He was poor and to earn money he would do boxer fights where they put two men in a boxcar and lock the door. The one who comes out is the winner," said Underwood.

Answering a question about which Indian he likes to interview best, Underwood said, "Chuck Finley. He always says something off the wall."

"The other day, after we won three straight games, I told Chuck that Charlie Manuel said that this is the best he's seen Chuck play. Chuck said blew the compliment off with, 'I think Charlie's been drinking a little too much.'"

The story brought a hearty laugh from the audience.

Someone in the audience asked about little Christopher Burks,

Ellis Burks' son, who stole the baseball show recently when he worked as batboy. "He went back home," said Underwood, which led to an explanation of the difficulties of separation that baseball families deal with, noting that Burks has a home in Colorado and a temporary home in Cleveland.

"The key to it," said Underwood, "is a having a great wife and a great mom." If the players come from a baseball family, very often they say they learned to play catch with their moms.

When someone asked about how to stop the New York Yankees from "buying the World Series," the Tribe announcer said that baseball owners have to figure a way to share the money. However, he said, "you still have to play the game and (this year) New York is struggling...our game is very healthy."

Underwood agreed with a comment from the audience that they've never seen so many bats break as in recent years. He said that part of the reason is the type of wood used in the bats, as well as the quality of the wood. "We're seeing bats shatter two or three times a night," he said.

A question that got the biggest reaction was, "Where is the strike zone."

With a quick comeback, Underwood laughed, "In the rule book."

Turning serious, he said that the strike zone is "just below the armpits to the top of the knee...some of the calls drive the players crazy."

And in answer to how the play-by-play announcers know whether the pitch is a slider, change-up or curve, Underwood repeated, "How do we know? We guess."

Letters to the Editor:

Keep the cart before the horse

To the Editor:

In your May 16 "Editor's Notebook" you report that some ascribe the failure of the income tax increase in support a new community center to lack of community spirit and selfishness on the part of some residents.

If being selfish means an objection to one of the higher income tax rates in all of Lorain and Cuyahoga Counties, they make a point. Younger working homeowners, the lifeblood of this community's future, are being asked to take on a 40 percent tax increase in one of the few communities which offers no reciprocity for taxes paid to other communities. That would put them in the 3.4 percent range if they work in other communities.

If being selfish means wanting decent sewers and streets, seeing visible evidence of a plan to attract light industry, getting the residential developments started, and finding municipal leaders with the ability to make things happen, they make a point. As it now stands, the incentives to attract younger homeowners to North Ridgeville seem sparse because it appears that things just aren't getting done in a timely fashion. One example is the Bainbridge Road improvements.

As a more recent member of this community, I see a positive spirit and great potential for North Ridgeville. My suggestion is that the municipal leadership focuses on using the existing tax base to develop the existing infrastructure to support residential and commercial development. With that accomplished North Ridgeville can then afford to build a community center with no tax increase to any of its residents. In other words let's keep the horse before the cart.

North Ridgeville needs sidewalks

To the Editor:

The Mayor and Building Department are to again be commended because they have started to inspect allegedly unsafe sidewalks. I trust they will cite offenders and will require any needed repairs. We should all be concerned about safety, and I have done my little bit by pointing out, on May 18, an offending sidewalk and driveway. The Building Department, as stated by the senior inspector, is understaffed though, so as good citizens we should assist the city. The Mayor welcomes calls about supposedly deteriorating or otherwise unsafe, sidewalks and she will take action.

I am willing to do more though. As a retired Naval officer, and just a part-time college teacher, I am available to assist the Building Department - on a volunteer basis I will gladly photograph offending sidewalk and provide the addresses and pictures to the Building Department. As a former Yeoman, I will even type up the citations and deliver them if necessary. I, like you, try to be a good and responsible homeowner, neighbor, resident of North Ridgeville, and citizen of the United States. I, like you, try to obey all laws and building code regulations - and although I am not perfect, I will gladly correct any shortcomings that are thoughtfully brought to my attention. I, like you, would like to see my fellow North Ridgeville residents obey traffic laws, other laws, and building regulations. Maintaining one's property, so as not to adversely affect one's neighbor's property values, is one of the obligations of a homeowner - and most of us recognize that.

There are two other safety concerns that I am sure the good Mayor and ever-vigilant City Council will also take up for action as they are serious safety concerns and we know how concerned about safety everyone is. First is the total lack of sidewalks on most of Center Ridge, Lear-Nagle, Route 83, Jaycox and other streets in town. Many neighboring communities have already passed laws requiring sidewalks and it's time North Ridgeville does the same. After all, we are concerned for the safety of our children and walking along Center Ridge now is very unsafe without sidewalks. Second is pool safety. I also pointed out to the building inspector a pool with no secure fence around it. This particular fence is falling down and missing whole sections so as to render it totally useless. Apparently North Ridgeville is one of the few remaining cities in this country that does not require fences around pools, but since dozens of children in this country drown in backyard pools annually, it's time North Ridgeville enact an ordinance requiring sturdy, and well-maintained fences around all pools. Our children deserve no less.

I believe all reasonable people will agree

See Letters on pg. 5

Klearly Speaking:

Hope you didn't count the flags

By Carol Klear

THINGS HAPPEN.....If you noticed that not all Ridgeville's American flags were flying on Memorial Day, there was a good reason. Service Department Super Jerry Krueger said that a few weeks ago someone backed into the sign maintenance truck and he's still waiting for repairs. Unfortunately, the other trucks aren't able to get the flags onto the poles as easily, but Jerry said they'd do what they could do. Maybe by Flag Day, or surely by 4th of July, all the red, white and blue banners will be waving once again.

MORE THAN HE BARGAINED FOR.....When firefighter Joe Gavlak began instructing a class in infant CPR, May 19, he probably didn't know he also would be holding down the fort at Station No. 1. As the class began, a couple of firefighters were at the annual Fishing Derby at South Central Park and the guys at Station No. 2 were on a run. Then, just as Joe was explaining the 9-1-1 emergency number...the 9-1-1 tone sounded, and the last of the crew took off. But, firefighters are trained in crisis management, so oh-so-calmly Joe excused himself and paged some off-duty members of the department to the station till routine was restored.

NOT ROUTINE, BUT FUNNY.....North Ridgeville Law Director Eric Zagrans is usually very prompt and very "legal" for the Monday council meetings. So when city officials convened at 7:30 last week, after rushing into council chambers out of the night's stormy weather, and Mr. Zagrans was not in his seat, it appeared he would be absent. However, just minutes into the session the L.D. strode down the side aisle, took his place and prefaced his report with the comment that he felt like "the Wicked Witch of the West out of a funnel cloud..."

POOR TONI.....Not only did the sign at the Animal Clinic Northview announce for all travelers on Center Ridge Road to see that Toni Krone (wife of veterinarian Gary Krone) had turned the Big 5-0, but if you passed by the Krone mini-farm on Root Road, a bunch of little animals (pigs, I think) decorated the front lawn with the same Happy 50th message. One question, Toni, will there be a pay-back for all the frivolity?

DITTO, Debbie.....Parks and Rec secretary Debbie Toth received kind words recently about her helpfulness, and we add our thanks, as well. Whenever we enlist her aid or the answer to a question, she handles the request promptly and politely.

with a the need for well-maintained sidewalks and pool fences, so I encourage you to call or write the Mayor and your City Council Person to encourage them to immediately pass such ordinances. Of course there will be some resistance from people who do not want to progress and do not want to spend money, but I trust they are a distinct minority because I want to believe that the vast majority of North Ridgeville residents are good and responsible people.

Thanks from letter carriers

To the Editor:

The National Association of Letter Carriers Branch 196 would like to thank the residents of Elyria, North Ridgeville, Oberlin, Wellington and Grafton, who contributed to the successful National Food Drive on May 12. Postal Employees, including supervisors, clerks, rural letter carriers, retirees and city carriers, as well as their families, went above and beyond to make this year's Food Drive one of the best. A special thanks goes to the Erie Shore Jeep and 4x4 Club that helped in Elyria. In all, residents contributed nearly 100,000 pounds in the cities we serve. Thank you!

NR paramedics saved her life

To the Editor:

This thank you is a little late, but what they say is "Better late than never". This is to thank the paramedics on the North Ridgeville Fire Department who saved my life on the night of April 18. I've been told that Paul Sadowski, Brad Buescher and Mark Cominsky worked very hard to keep me alive so I could survive at the hospital. If anyone thinks all the paramedics do is sit around and collect our tax dollars, I am living proof that they care very much and do what they are trained to do. They save lives. I am slowly getting better but without the paramedics help, I wouldn't be writing this letter now.

Thank you once again.

A View from The Hill

By Mayor Deanna Hill

Mayor Deanna Hill

Our voters have expressed their objections to the community/senior center at the ballot box and in several conversations just prior to and since the election. It made us aware that some concerns and remaining questions were not adequately addressed. I will attempt to respond to those that were repeated on several occasions.

A few people encouraged "other ways to finance". With consultants and our auditor, we thoroughly reviewed the options and the amount necessary to build and operate the facility. It appeared residents did not want property taxes increased and feared the prospect of a downturn in the economy. An income tax seemed to be the answer - no increase in property taxes and if a job were lost, the income tax would not impact.

Income tax sharing or reciprocity with other cities was another widespread concern. Our income tax in Lorain County is greater than only two other cities. When considering the low reciprocity in our city, please consider the total income tax in other communities even with a higher reciprocity or sharing. While our property and income taxes are problematic, without industry and a greater number of residents to share the voted tax bill, it will continue to be so.

Others thought we should find outside funding. For example, in Wooster, the city, schools and YMCA shared the costs. However, the facility will not be a full center with a senior wing and is an existing building. Oberlin's costs are for an aquatic center, not a community center, and are shared by the college, a large donation by a private corporation and the county.

We did request the aquatic center for North Ridgeville, but our offer was declined. There are no state or federal funding opportunities for community centers. It is believed that if a city wants a local center, they must decide to provide the funds.

Some residents expressed disappointment that an indoor soccer field, an indoor ice skating rink and a competitive pool were not included in the plans. With research, we found that these facilities serve very few people at a tremendous cost. They are a serious financial drain, subtracting from the ability to fund programs that serve more people. Discussions were held with the schools regarding a lease/use agreement for a competitive pool. The schools were convinced through their review that it would be cost-prohibitive in relation to other programs they must offer.

We also failed to explain that daily passes, for as little as $2 per day, could be purchased rather than yearly memberships.

Due to the concerns raised and the need to re-form the committee of supporters, it is highly unlikely those citizens will be able to meet the deadline for the November ballot. It is our sincerest hope that when the issue is reconsidered, you will take the time to attend the public committee and town meetings we will again hold. Although your decision at the polls was a disappointment, we respect it and we thank those who provided us with valuable input.

The voters of North Ridgeville have spoken rather loudly in defeating the recent income tax issue. For them it was a matter of economics. But for the athlete, it was a failed opportunity.

Junior Achievement executive named

Mary Ann Littell has been promoted to President of Junior Achievement of Lorain County, Inc. Prior to assuming her new position, she served as Program Manager for middle grades and high school. She succeeds Kari Kolman-Sydney.

As chief staff officer of the local Junior Achievement operation, Littell will direct staff activities that result in the delivery of economic education programs to more than 18,000 students in the Lorain County area. Littell's success as a Junior Achievement professional, combined with business skills and contacts developed in her earlier career in the banking industry will be "a major plus", according to Rich Colella, chairman of the board of directors of Junior Achievement of Lorain County.

"During her tenure as program manager, she expanded Junior Achievement programs of economic education to 32 new schools, including the recruitment of 243 new volunteers and the necessary financial support. She has clearly demonstrated her ability to meet and exceed the aggressive goals set by the board. The board's goal is to continue to expand our programs and we believe Mary Ann possesses the skills necessary to build upon the tremendous record of success we have enjoyed during Kari's tenure."

Littell is a graduate of Bowling Green State University.

Police Reports:

By Carol Klear

This kid's in big trouble

A mother reported to police that her 12-year-old daughter was becoming more and more unruly and incorrigible. She said that on May 11 she told the girl not to leave the house because she had not gone to school because of illness. However when mom got home from work the girl was gone.

The girl's father went to an Elyria roller-skating rink where he discovered her skating, but when he told her to return home with him she told him that since she was already in trouble, she was staying.

The police were called and went to the rink to pick up the youngster, however, when they told her she was to go with them, she refused and shouted obscenities at them. An officer took her arm to escort her to a chair so she could remove her skates, but she pulled away and continued to scream vulgarities. After finally returning the skates, the police led her away, and she continued to curse and swear at them, while juveniles looked on.

She was taken back to the station. Her mother was called, but the girl was referred to juvenile court for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

What happened to my car?

A hit-skip accident on I-90 was reported around 11 p.m. on May 19. The vehicle, which was abandoned at the scene of the crash, was registered to a North Ridgeville resident.

Several hours later the man listed on the registration, and his sister appeared at the station and reported the same vehicle stolen. However, police officers did not immediately inform the resident of the accident because they suspected he was the driver involved in the hit-skip and was trying to avoid liability.

The owner of the car said that the last time he saw the vehicle was around midnight, May 18, and it was parked in his driveway. He had been at a friend's house and when he returned at 3 a.m., the car was gone. His sister had been at home and she did not see or hear anything.

The owner said that no one else had permission to drive the car, except the former owner and he was confined to the Lorain County Jail.

He also said the car had been left unlocked and the keys were in the center console. He had not driven the car because he didn't have a license.

His statement was taken. The hit-skip incident continues to be under investigation.

Get out and stay out

A little past 1 a.m. a police officer saw a man leave Bucky's Nite Club. As he left, he seemed upset and the bouncers said he had been removed from the club and could not return.

The subject walked across the parking lot and stood near the Haunted House. Then he approached the patrolman and asked him to hold his headband so he could go back inside. He was glassy-eyed smelled of alcohol and the officer told him he was not allowed in the club.

The subject became angry, clenched his fist and walked away. The policeman warned him about a cement post in his path, but he walked into it anyway, then he pushed over a plastic parking barrier when nearly struck a nearby vehicle.

The patrolman told the subject he was under arrest. As he was patting him down, a female approached and asked for her car keys and her cell phone, which the defendant had. The defendant became angry and said it was his phone. He tried to twist away but was transported to the police station. His driver's license revealed the defendant was only 19. He was cited for underage consumption and disorderly conduct persisting.

Check it out

A subject reported to police that three blank checks had been stolen from his home. He said he is the only one with a key. The checks allegedly were forged and cashed and cleared. He advised that a male had been living in his residence, but had moved, but may still be living in Lorain County.

She wanted it; she took it

A citizen at the intersection of Jaycox and Center Ridge Roads flagged down a policeman and advised that a person was loading their car with items, including a bicycle, from a donation bin in the parking lot north of CVS, provided by Special Olympics.

The officer drove through the lot and noticed that the bin was overflowing, and many things were on the ground. He also saw a red Toyota van with a bicycle in the rear that headed toward Jaycox Road.

Turning his lights on, the officer stopped the driver, who said she needed a bicycle, and she saw one laying in the parking lot so she took it.

The officer said that the bike, described as an older three-speed, 28-inch green Sears brand, was donated to Special Olympics and she had committed theft. She and the bike were transported to the police station, where she signed a statement. The investigation will continue.

Ask Dr. Arndt By: Scott W. Arndt, D.D.S.

GIRLS AND MOUTH GUARDS

My son wears a mouth guard when he plays sports. Do you think my daughter should?

The growing sentiment among dental professionals is that female athletes need to be more aware of the need for mouth guards. In every sport, at every level, more female athletes are playing and they are playing at a higher level of intensity than ever. They're more powerful, too. Whenever there's the likelihood of collision with another player, or a hard playing surface, like a basketball court, a mouth guard is a reasonable precaution.

So when you bring your child to the dentist, be sure to outline his or her athletic pursuits. Dr. Arndt can advise you to the best way to protect their teeth. Consider this: the American Dental Association estimates that in high school and college football alone, more than 200,000 injuries to the face and mouth annually have been avoided because the players were wearing mouth or face guards. That sentiment, by the way, extends even to non-contact sports like gymnastics, where one slip can send a face crashing to a hard surface.

Worldwide Induction Day, success for NR Lions Club

The International Lions Association has staged the largest event in its history, celebrating the induction of record numbers of new members in ceremonies around the world for Lions Worldwide Induction Day.

In North Ridgeville, on May 15, three new members were inducted into the North Ridgeville Lions Club at a special ceremony held at Webster's Restaurant in conjunction with the international activities for Lions Clubs International.

According to club president Lion David Bogner, Lions Worldwide Induction Day was successful for several reasons. "As Lions Club Members, we are dedicated to serving the community," he said. "Here in North Ridgeville, we wanted to share our spirit of volunteerism, and that of our mission, 'We Serve', with our newest members, so that they would feel the pride of what it means to be a Lion."

In celebrating Lions Worldwide Induction Day, The North Ridgeville Club made a commitment to continue the many community involvements, such as Pride Day on May 19, the Memorial Day parade and ceremonies on May 28, and support for Community Care via various fundraisers and food drives.

Founded in 1971, the North Ridgeville

Lions Club has been dedicated to serving the needs of North Ridgeville for 40 years. Since its establishment the North Ridgeville Lions Club has been responsible for sponsoring many community oriented projects, like the two Lions pavilions at the baseball complex, aid to numerous people with vision impairments, college scholarships for our High School grads, and programs to combat illegal drug use.

Benefit for Norm Wohlever set for June 29

By Carol Klear

A Steak Dinner Benefit will be held for Norm Wohlever, June 29, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Tom's Country Place on Stoney Ridge Rd.

Wohlever, 44, was seriously injured, April 22, at the intersection of state Rt. 83 and Sugar Ridge Rd. Wohlever and Tina L. Jarrell, 35, were on a motorcycle heading south on 83, when a vehicle turned left in front of the cycle. Both riders were lifted into the MetroHealth Medical Center in Cleveland. Jerrell died the following day.

Peggy Hickie and her husband own Richard Tree and Crane Service and are close friends of Norm Wohlever. They were expecting him at their home that day, said Peggy Hickie, "We all ride (motorcycles) together."

Another friend happened to be driving on Rt. 83 at the time of the accident, she said, and called Rich Hickie.

"We were just going for a motorcycle ride," she said. "How quickly things change."

Peggy Hickie said that Wohlever's face was broken in 100 places, his mouth was wired shut and he had to have reconstructive surgery. "He had over 40 hours of surgery," she said. He was expected to return home last week, but would require 24-hour care.

The accident was nothing Wohlever could have avoided, Peggy Hickie said.

The Hickies, along with some city workers and family and friends, are spearheading the benefit. In addition to the steak dinner, there will be a Las Vegas night, as well as an auction, said Peggy Hickie.

Tickets are $25 per person.

For more information, call Peggy Hickie, 323-6855.

she said, "We'll see what they look like." "We'll start with the legs to make him stand up," said Schreiner, "but we need to get the shoulders."

As piece after piece was added to the skeleton, Schreiner explained, "they fit together like a giant puzzle."

The boys and girls took turns fitting the various pieces in place moving along the frame front to back.

"Get the neck in," she directed one child, and then assessing the completed work said, "We need ribs to hold the body parts together."

If the dinosaur were actual size, she said, "It would be as big as a school bus."

The Metro Parks' program includes one of several types of dinosaur, including Apatosaurus, Triceratops or Stegosaurus, however the second graders were not told that the model they were building was a Stegosaurus.

The Stegosaurus dinosaurs that existed in the Jurassic Period about 150 million years ago are known for the large plates along its back, which offer protection. Its apparent armor accounts for its name, which in Greek means "cover," and "lizard." Some studies of the plates indicate that the Stegosaurus lived either in a hot environment or gave off a substantial amount of body heat. Large animals, such as elephants, that have slow digestive systems do so.

With the dinosaur-construction complete, Hepp asked the children if they could tell the type of dinosaur. Without too much effort, they decided it was a Stegosaurus. Why? "Because it has plates," said Hepp, "the spikes give it away."

Gulf during Desert Shield/Desert Storm. In 1991 Hobaugh was tapped to attend U.S. Naval Test Pilot School, graduating a year later. For the next two years Hobaugh completed several assignments. In 1994 he returned to the Test Pilot School, as an instructor, and subsequently was selected for the astronaut program.

In 1996 Major Charles Hobaugh reported to the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas and completed two years of training and evaluation, which prepared him for his first space flight next month.

The Press & Light spoke with Hobaugh by telephone last week and asked him if the upcoming mission was the culmination of a boyhood dream. He said, "It's not something I thought about until I got in the military and became a test pilot."

With the mission just two weeks away, Hobaugh said he isn't plagued by butterflies in anticipation of the flight, and dismissed the idea with, "This is what I trained for."

Though he has spent many years in the military, Hobaugh is first and foremost a family man. Married to the former Corinna Lynn Leaman of East Petersburg, Pennsylvania, the Hobaughs have four children ranging from eight to 14. "My life revolves around my family," he said, and together they enjoy a variety of sports like volleyball, boating, water skiing and bicycling.

"We just finished a team marathon in Corpus Christie," he said.

Recalling his days at North Ridgeville High, Hobaugh said he was in track and did some tutoring.

The astronauts are permitted to carry a few items from organizations on their missions, and two or three weeks ago NRHS Principal Patricia Bahr was asked to send a school pennant, which Hobaugh intends to fly.

Despite an impressive list of credentials and honors, Hobaugh is modest about his accomplishments and next month's mission. He said, "If I can do it, anybody can do it."

Major Hobaugh sloughed off the idea that he had pursued the wild, blue yonder even as a child, and said he didn't think much about flying until well into his military career. But a telephone interview with his mother, Virginia Hobaugh, in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, where she and Hobaugh's father live, revealed a different story.

"I think he was always into flying," she said of her son. "He learned to fly in Cleveland at 16 and got his pilot's license before he got his driver's license."

Virginia Hobaugh recalled the day her son and her husband walked into the house. "Charlie had his shirttail cut off," she said, which meant he had soloed. "I nearly had apoplexy."

Before their years in North Ridgeville, the Hobaughs lived in Alaska and her husband had started him in lessons there, she recalled, "Charlie was taken with it."

While "Charlie" was growing up, his mother said, "He was just an all-around good kid." He was the only boy and had three older sisters, "He never got into trouble...except staying out with friends," she confided.

Virginia Hobaugh remembered the summer her son was a plebe. "It was a breaking-in time," she said, "and we went down for Parents' Weekend." She looked around at his room and was pleasantly surprised at the orderliness.

"You could have bounced a quarter off his bed," she said, adding, "It took the U.S. Navy six weeks to teach him what I tried to do in 18 years...Go Navy!"

Like so many youngsters, Charles Hobaugh had a blanket when he was a little tyke. But that was just fine with Virginia Hobaugh. "I think kids that have blankets and suck their thumbs just have to be good kids," she said.

Virginia Hobaugh was not surprised to hear that her son isn't nervous about his upcoming mission. "He's like his dad," she said, "a hard exterior, but when he comes back he's fun." When it comes to his work, "he's calm, cool and collected," she said.

She concurred with her son's regard for family, and admires the way he and her daughter-in-law are raising their children. "He's always out there with them, coaching their soccer teams," she said, "he's an outstanding father."

She explained that Hobaugh would be gone for 11 days from the time he leaves on his mission, and will return on June 25. "He'll be piloting 150 tons with no power" on the return, she said.

Virginia Hobaugh said that she and her husband went to visit their son and "He let us sit in the simulator with five straps across your body and on your back. You can see the sky going by," she said.

"Charlie put his dad in the pilot seat and ordered, 'keep the nose up...keep it down.' Then all of a sudden all the lights went out," she said. "And Charlie said with a grin, 'Sorry Dad, you crashed, and burned...no survivors.'"

Moms know their children best and Major Charles Hobaugh's mother is no exception. She is obviously very proud of his accomplishments, but she enjoys his fun-loving nature, as well. And when he and the rest of the crew board the Atlantis for the ISS, she'll be counting the 11 days till he returns.
