Keeps Memories Linger

When retired Winter Park Fireman T. C. Elliott went out his front door, he was surprised at what he saw sitting in his yard — a red and silver fireplug. Firemen at the city's station put the hydrant in front of Elliott's home when he left the department after 24 years of service. He started with Winter Park on July 4, 1949, when there were only two firemen, including himself. Elliott said the hydrant works, and he will hook it up to his water system in his backyard and water his lawn.
