Campus Event

Breaking Barriers: Selected Work

Breaking Barriers: Selected Work presents photographic artworks by USF and Tampa Bay military veterans created in a workshop series led by Photographer Jim Reiman. The exhibition photographs present reflections on self, others and a uniquely shared experience, brought into focus through a lens. Breaking Barriers is a project by USFCAM in collaboration with the USF School of Art and Art History.

Location: USF Contemporary Art Museum | Date & Time: December 12th – 13th, 2018

Training Opportunity

Intersectional Qualitative Research Methods Institute (IQRMI)

The Consortium on Race, Gender, and Ethnicity at the University of Maryland and the Latino Research Initiative at The University of Texas at Austin seek participants for the following two programs:

- Intersectional Qualitative Research Methods Institute for Early Career Faculty (IQRMI-ECF) focuses on methodological skills, writing for publication, and navigating the academic environment to ensure retention, tenure, and promotion.
- Intersectional Qualitative Research Methods Institute for Advanced Doctoral Students (IQRMI-ADS) focuses on completion of a doctoral degree, navigating the job market, postdoctoral fellowship applications, and writing for publications in preparation for a successful research career.
Both programs aim to advance the mission of inclusion of underrepresented minority early career faculty and doctoral students in the field of behavioral and social sciences and education. Institute goals are to provide early career faculty and advanced doctoral students with practical experience to enhance qualitative intersectional research skills, writing skills and scholarly practices, and to create a network of intersectional scholars.
