I Was Born to Flex: Money, Friendship, and Community Among Womyn of Color

Real Talk is a social justice dialogue series that promotes conversations between students, faculty and staff. This Real Talk will explore the barriers that exist in the creation of community and friendship for women of color as the intersections of race, gender identity, ethnicity and social class. In this exploration, attendees will engage in a conversation and analysis of the social media feud between Cardi B and Nicki Minaj in comparison to narratives from former First Lady Michelle Obama’s autobiography, “Becoming.”

Panelists: Dr. Tangela Serls, Professor Sheree Greer, Graduate Students Jelly Loblawk and Carol Vang

Refreshments will be provided. RSVP here.
