Special Learning Journey: Stories of Human Migration

In this curriculum of 4 footsteps, students explore stories of human migration and reflect on their own relationship to the topic.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Footstep 1: Our Own Stories of Migration</th>
<th>Students listen to and retell the migration story of someone who is close to them or they create a map or diagram to depict a migration story within their family or community.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Footstep 2: Everyday Borders</td>
<td>Students take a slow walk in their neighborhoods or everyday contexts, paying specific attention to both visible and invisible borders.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Footstep 3: Migration in the Media</td>
<td>Students compare and contrast three different media reports on human migration, critically attending to the ways in which the authors represent migration and migrants.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Footstep 4: Collecting Our Thoughts on Migration</td>
<td>Using a medium of their choice, students share how their ideas about migration have changed or developed by taking part in this learning journey.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In this curriculum, students are invited to:

- Explore connections and stories from their own and other people’s lives related to the broad theme of human migration
- Develop a more nuanced understanding of human migration, including complex and interconnected factors involved in migration and the diverse and multi-faceted nature of individual migration experiences
- Develop a critical awareness of their own perspectives on human migration, including the role of the media and socio-political contexts in shaping perspectives
- Engage with the topic of migration through discussion on the platform and/or by taking action or engaging beyond Out of Eden Learn

Out of Eden Learn thanks Emi Kane, Director of Programming at the Abundance Foundation in Berkeley, United States, and the educators who piloted the original curriculum: Brenda Ball, Chris Sloan, Oliver Brown, Sandra Teng, and Sharonne Blum.
Please note that at the bottom of this document, we offer additional resources and suggested applications that may be helpful to students as they produce their work for this learning journey.

PRE-LEARNING JOURNEY FOOTSTEP: Engage with Paul Salopek’s Out of Eden Walk and Explore the Dialogue Toolkit
(This footstep will not appear on the Out of Eden Learn platform)

Throughout your learning journey and for Part 3 of each footstep, we encourage you to use a range of dialogue tools as you engage with the work of other young people.

Before you begin your learning journey, explore the following resources from Out of Eden Learn:

- Review our Community Guidelines
- Explore our Dialogue Toolkit. The Dialogue Toolkit is a set of commenting tools that supports thoughtful exchanges among Out of Eden Learn participants.
- Review these Models of Respectful Disagreement. See if you can identify the dialogue tools being used by students. Look for places where the students could have added more details or questions to deepen the conversation.
- For Educators: An annotated version of the Models of Respectful Disagreement

We also invite you to familiarize yourself with Paul’s Out of Eden Walk:

- Listen to Paul’s welcome message introducing you and other young people to the Out of Eden Walk, recorded from the trail in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan, in December, 2016
- Read Paul’s article, Why I’m Walking 21,000 Miles Around the World

Once you have engaged with the resources above, it’s time to practice using the Dialogue Toolkit. Write a response to Paul’s welcome message and/or article using the following dialogue moves: NOTICE, EXTEND, POV, CHALLENGE, and NAME.

- NOTICE: What caught your attention or interested you about the Out of Eden Walk trailer or Paul’s introduction message to students?
- EXTEND: Did you have new thoughts, ideas or questions after watching and/or listening?
- POV: Express your point of view (POV), position or opinion about Paul’s article or any aspect of the Out of Eden Walk.
- Challenge: Question or challenge a point of view (POV) or idea Paul has shared.
- NAME: Name the aspects of your identity, experiences, or the place where you live that are influencing the way you see things.

Share your response with your classmates. Maybe comment on another student’s response using a Dialogue Toolkit move.
FOOTSTEP 1: Our Own Stories of Migration

ENGAGE WITH RESOURCES

Welcome to Out of Eden Learn’s special learning journey: Stories of Human Migration. Before you begin, it is very important that you complete this survey [a link to the survey will appear on the Out of Eden Learn Platform]. Please note that this is a private reflection and your responses will not be shared with the other members of your walking party.

After completing the survey, we invite you to begin thinking about your own connections to the theme of human migration. Explore the following materials:

- Watch Fatima’s Drawings. In this video, nine-year-old Fatima shares her experiences as a Syrian refugee through her drawings and storytelling.
- Watch Between Borders, a documentary by the Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting that shares interviews with several teen migrants during their journey from Central America to the United States. SENSITIVITY WARNING: Please note there are some potentially disturbing violent images in this video.
- Read some of Paul Salopek’s Milestone interviews, which are brief interviews he conducts with the nearest human being he meets every 100 miles of his epic walk around the world. In each case, he asks the person: Who are you? Where do you come from? Where are you going?
- Look closely at this art work by Reena Saini Kallat which explores the complexity of the ways in which humans are both connected and divided in the modern world.
- You may find it helpful to refer to this glossary of terms compiled by the Reimagining Migration project.

DO AN ACTIVITY: OUR OWN STORIES OF MIGRATION

This footstep invites you to investigate migration or journey stories that belong to your family, local community or a group to which you feel attached. Note that migration stories do not have to involve moving from one country or region to another; they can involve very short distances or frequent journeys you make, for example, going to work or school. Migrations can also be forced by governments, wars, or other circumstances such as natural disasters, lack of resources, or changes in the environment.

First, write a few lines of introduction about yourself to your new walking party community. Perhaps you would like to explain why you chose the avatar that you did. (If you have not already done so, please upload a picture by clicking on your profile in the top right hand corner.) Please don’t reveal your real name or share your personal contact details. Then choose one of the following activities.
● Option 1: Listen carefully to someone you know well as they share their migration stories from their own lives or their family’s history. You might ask your interviewee:
  - How did they come to live where they do?
  - Have they ever lived anywhere else?
  - Why did they move?
  - What did they experience when they moved?
  - How did they feel about moving from one place to another?
  - What are some journeys or migrations that they make on a regular basis and why?

Retell their story in your own words, either in the form of an audio recording, a written piece, or a visual art work. If you choose to create a visual art work, please be sure to include an explanation of your piece to help other students understand the story. Regardless of what format you choose, we encourage you to include visuals or other creative tools to help you tell the story. You might want to use one of these suggested apps:

- Voicethread: combine various media to create a story (register here for free account)
- Pixotale: visual storytelling, combine photos, videos, and text to create a story
- Educreations: combine various media, including drawings and audios, to create a story
- SoundCloud: upload and listen to audio tracks
- StoryCorps App: audio recording and sharing
- TimelineJS: interactive timeline creator
- BatchGeo: mapping
- 7 Scenes: mapping

Here are some tips on recording and using sound to tell stories. Before submitting, we strongly recommend that you share the finished piece with the person whose story you are trying to tell. Doing so is respectful and gives the person a chance to correct or clarify details about their story. If you are unable to do so, it is very important that you consider how the person might feel about your storytelling.

● Option 2: Create a map or diagram or another type of visual image that depicts a story of migration connected to your family or community. You may want to start with a map that’s freely available on the Internet and add text, arrows, and pictures to tell a migration story. Be sure to write an accompanying explanation to help others understand your map.
INTERACT WITH YOUR WALKING PARTNERS

Start getting to know your walking partners!

- Read what other participants in your walking party have posted.
- Write detailed comments and questions for two walking partners, including one who is not in your class or program. Use one or more of the following dialogue tools:
  - APPRECIATE: Share what you like, value, or found interesting. Be specific.
  - EXTEND: Share how this post extends your thinking or gives you a new perspective. Did it help you to think about your interviewee’s or your own story of migration in new ways?
  - CONNECT: Do you feel a connection with anything another participant shared, either about themselves or about the person they interviewed? If yes, go to that student’s post and comment on it.
- Respond to any comments or questions your walking partners have left for you, or join in other conversations in your walking party.

FOOTSTEP 2: Everyday Borders

ENGAGE WITH RESOURCES

Welcome back! This footstep invites you to consider borders or boundaries in your community. To get started, we invite you to ponder the following questions*:

- Have you ever been stopped from entering or visiting a place? If so, what did it feel like? If not, how do you think it might feel to be prohibited from entering a place or crossing a border? These could range from country or state borders to more everyday borders like fences, gates, walls, or even social borders that are invisible.
- How, if at all, is your movement restricted in your everyday life?

With the above questions in mind:

- Listen to Paul’s audio on Borders, recorded from Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan in December 2016. You can read a transcript of the audio here.
- Read Mapping Police Stops Across the World by Paul. Please note an interactive map accompanies this dispatch but it is currently unavailable. It will be available to explore at a later time.
- Explore this extensive multimedia article by The Seattle Times on Tijuana, a town on the Mexico-US border. If you have limited time, we particularly recommend the video ‘Tan cerca y tan lejos/So close, yet so far’ which is embedded in the piece.
- Watch I trekked across Europe so I could go to school safely, a video in a series on migrants’ stories by the BBC.
- Explore Jacob Lawrence’s series of paintings on The Great Migration.
● Watch this slideshow of previous student work on Everyday Borders.

*Please note that these questions are adapted from Voice of Witness’ Palestine Speaks curriculum.

DO AN ACTIVITY: DOCUMENT EVERYDAY BORDERS

Before taking a walk, consider the following questions:
1. Why do boundaries exist?
2. Who do you think sets up or controls boundaries?
3. Do you ever set your own boundaries? Why or why not?

● Take a slow walk* in the area where you live and/or go to school. As you walk, ask yourself: what kinds of borders and boundaries do you notice? How is your movement restricted or enabled? Are there any ‘invisible’ borders: places where not everyone feels able to go even if there is not an explicit sign blocking their entry? Are there places where you don’t feel welcome or don’t like going to?

● Photograph or sketch some of the borders or boundaries that you notice; or, produce a map that features different kinds of borders in your neighborhood. Post your photos, sketches, or map. For a list of suggested apps, please see the bottom of this document.

● Reflect. Be sure to include a written explanation of your choices and/or a story of your own experiences with borders. You may want to share your answers to some of these questions: Why do you think borders exist? Who do you think sets and controls them and why? Do any boundaries make you feel a certain way?

● Please note: We are not asking you to consider whether borders and boundaries are good or bad, but rather to consider their complexity and the different ways in which they can be experienced.

*Please note that Out of Eden Learn uses the term “walk” in a very broad sense and is not meant to exclude individuals with limited mobility.

INTERACT WITH YOUR WALKING PARTNERS

Follow these instructions to respond thoughtfully to a person of your choice. [Please make sure that you completed the INTERACT instructions from last week if you are waiting for other participants to post.]

● Explore posts from your walking partners.

● Choose two posts from students who are not from your class or program.

● Write comments in which you use the following dialogue tools:
  ○ CONNECT: Do you feel a connection with another student’s photographs, sketches, or reflection? If so, explain how.
  ○ PROBE for more details. Ask questions that will help you learn about their ideas and interests.
FOOTSTEP 3: Migration in the Media

ENGAGE WITH RESOURCES

This footstep invites you to take a critical look at the ways in which migration stories are reported in the media. In doing so, we hope you will develop analytical skills that will help you to engage more thoughtfully with media reportings.

- Watch The Danger of a Single Story, Chimamanda Adichie’s TED talk
- Read Facing History and Ourselves’ article, Little Boxes by Anthony Wright.
- Watch ‘What is the most problematic area of migration coverage?’ in which journalists discuss how the media often reports on human migration.
- Read this article on media coverage of migrants and refugees.
- Watch this short video which shows how one Rohingya boy uses social media to share his perspective and experience with the world.

DO AN ACTIVITY: MIGRATION IN THE MEDIA

For this task, you are going to look for recent migration stories in the media and analyze how they are told or represented.

- Choose two different reports from the media (one can be by Paul Salopek, for example The things they leave behind, The wars of autumn, or “This is not a life”) and compare and contrast them. You may also choose to analyze reports that are multimedia in format, for example a photo essay, a short video, or perhaps another visual format.

- Consider the following questions as you compare the two reports:
  - What is the date of publication? Has this report been written or produced in response to a particular event related to migration and if so, what was the event?
  - Who is likely to be the intended audience?
  - What do you think the attitude of the author is towards modern day migration and/or migrants? Pay careful attention to the author’s word choices.
  - What is the headline or title of the report and why do you think that is?
If there is an image, look closely at it. Why do you think it was chosen?
Whose voices and perspectives are represented and whose are missing? What’s been left out and why do you think that is?
In what ways may the report be oversimplifying what is going on or leaving out key aspects of the story?
What questions or wonders do you have?

- Share your main findings and reflect on any insights you gained by looking closely at the media reports. How do you think the reports seek to influence our opinions about migration and migrants? If possible, provide links to the reports. Feel free to be creative in how you present your ideas. For example you could:
  - Write a short essay that compares and contrasts the two reports.
  - Create a summary table that compares and contrasts the two reports. (You would have to scan, screenshot or photograph your table to upload it to the platform.)
  - Write a “two voice poem” that juxtaposes or weaves together lines from each of the two reports. Here are some examples from Mr Brown’s class in Beaverton, Oregon, USA who developed this idea.

---

INTERACT WITH YOUR WALKING PARTNERS

Now it’s time to find out what kinds of migration stories your walking partners found in the media and what they learned from them.

- Choose two posts to look at and respond to.
- Write: use two or more dialogue tools to respond thoughtfully to these posts:
  - SNIP: Cut and paste a phrase or sentence from the post into your comment. Then, use the following dialogue tools to comment on it:
  - POV: Express your point of view (POV), position or opinion.
  - CHALLENGE: Pose a question or a challenge to a point of view (POV) or idea someone else has shared. This could be the POV of an author of one of the stories you read or a POV shared by one of your walking partners. Use these Sentence Starters to help:
    - “I appreciate your point of view. I see it a little differently. I think that…”
    - “Another way of looking at it is…”
    - “I don’t necessarily agree with that opinion…One reason I say this is…Another reason I disagree is…”
  - NAME: Name the aspects of your identity, experiences, or place you live that are influencing the way you see things.
- Respond: Return to your own posts. Respond to anyone who left comments or questions for you. Try to keep the conversation going or join in other conversations in your walking party.
FOOTSTEP 4: Collecting Our Thoughts on Migration

ENGAGE WITH RESOURCES
This footstep is an opportunity to reflect on your learning experience and share your learning with your walking partners. To get started:

- Watch this video which charts how humans migrated across the globe from the start of recorded history.
- Read Climate Change is Already Causing Mass Human Migration.
- View Uprooted, a set of interactive narrative maps of the global migrant crisis from 2017.
- Watch The Displaced*, a documentary by the New York Times.
- Watch Afghanistan by Choice, a documentary by the Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting.

Optional Resources:
- Watch this video which explores the complexity of stories of human migration in Chile.

*Please note that this video is filmed using Google’s 360-degree technology, meaning that if viewed on a desktop computer (not a tablet or other small electronic device), you can see a full 360-degree view of every scene. Click and drag on the video to explore each scene. Use Google Chrome or Firefox to watch this video in order to ensure the 360-degree technology is fully functional.

DO AN ACTIVITY: COLLECTING OUR THOUGHTS ON MIGRATION
This footstep is an opportunity to reflect on your learning experience and share your learning with your walking partners.

We invite you to create something that demonstrates what you’ve learned from this learning journey so far. What would you most like to share with your walking partners? Consider how your ideas about migration have changed or developed from reading the resources, doing the activities, and/or interacting with other students.

We encourage you to share your learning in creative ways, ideally in a way that combines text and images. Formats to consider: a slideshow of images or a collage; an illustration, painting or cartoon; a blog post or short essay; a piece of spoken-word or written poetry; a short video.

Consider how this learning journey has given you new insights into your connection to human migration. For example, you might think about the following:

- “This is how migration helps explain why I am living this particular life”
- “This is why I have these cultural practices, values, or beliefs”
- “This is why a group I belong to is living this kind of life”
- “This is why society is the way it is”
○ “This is how migration connects to my identities, the identities of my community, and/or the identities of my generation”
○ “This is what I appreciate about the stories of migration I have heard”
○ “This is what I think is right or wrong about what happened in the past or is happening today with migration”

You might also want to consider sharing:
● New things you learned about migration
● Similarities and differences across migration stories, and why those similarities and differences exist
● Things you learned about how the media helps shape your own and other people’s perspectives
● Things you are doing differently or would like to do differently
● Things you’d like to learn more about

Please note that your teacher may want to specify how you approach this activity so that it ties in with your class.

INTERACT WITH YOUR WALKING PARTNERS

● Look closely and slowly at several posts by your walking partners
● Write comments and questions on at least two posts that stand out to you
  ○ EXTEND: Do any of your walking partner’s posts extend your thinking or give you a new perspective? If so, share how.
  ○ CONNECT: Do you feel a connection with another student’s reflection? If so, explain how.
  ○ NAME: Name the aspects of your identity, experiences, or place you live that are influencing the way you see things.
● Respond: Return to your own posts. Respond to anyone who left comments or questions for you. Try to keep the conversation going or join in other conversations in your walking party.

Congratulations on completing the Stories of Human Migration learning journey! We really appreciate all of the work you’ve done.

As a concluding activity:
● Reflect on how your ideas about migration changed or developed over the course of this learning journey by answering the questions in this private reflection [a link to the survey will appear on the Out of Eden Learn Platform].

Click here for more details about this Creative Commons license.
Additional Resources

EXPLORE

Tools: Digital Toolbox, Centre for Oral History and Digital Storytelling

Stories: Migrant Child Storytelling

Youth Paintings: The Migration Series, Jacob Lawrence

Stories: i am a migrant, International Organization for Migration
Poetry Scramble: The Migration Series

Poetry Scramble, Jacob Lawrence

Interactive Map: “Track human migration since the beginning of our existence”

Project: Mapping Memories: Experiences of Refugee Youth

Photo Essay: Crossing Borders, Global Oneness Project
Project: Familias Separadas

Project: Migrantas

Non-profit organization: Voice of Witness

Gallery Walk: On the Theme of Migration, Tate Museum
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>WATCH</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Video: A Family Divided, Pulitzer Center</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Video: A day in the life of Palestinian refugee Jamila Jad, Global Lives Project</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Video: Nobody is Ever Just a Refugee, Chimamanda Adichie’s speech on the global migrant crisis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Video Trailer: Traverse, Migration Dance Film Project</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
READ

Glossary: Glossary on Migration, International Organization for Migration

Study: How The Media Reports on Migrants and Refugees, Ethical Journalism Network

Abstract: Moving Stories, Ethical Journalism Network
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Report: Moving Stories, Ethical Journalism Network.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Suggested reading: p.36-37 in which reporters discuss specific challenges they face covering migration.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Article: Where media fails on the reporting of migrants and refugees, Ethical Journalism Network |

| Article: Migrants and the media: what shapes the narratives on immigration in different countries, The Conversation |

| Book: Everyday Ruptures |

| Everyday Ruptures |

| Children, Youth, and Migration in Global Perspective |

| Editor(s): Cati Cus, Rachel R. Reynolds, Deborah A. Boehm, Julia Meredith Hess, Heather Rae-Eiglinsa |

| Ethnography of children and youth who migrate and are affected by the migration of others |

| When people – whether children, youth, and adults – migrate, that migration is often experienced as a rupture, with people separated by great distances and for extended periods of time. But for migrants and those affected by migration, the everyday persists, and migration itself may be critical to the continuation of social life. Everyday Ruptures illuminates the wide-ranging continuities and disruptions in the experiences of children around the world; those who participate in and those who are affected by migration. |

| The book is organized around four themes: |
Book: The Warmth of Other Suns: The Epic Story of America's Great Migration

Stories: Global Immigration page, Facing History

Article: The Semantics of Migration, The Guardian

Article: What I’m Learning from Walking 21,000 Miles Around the World, Paul Salopek

What I’m Learning From Walking 21,000 Miles Around the World

Stories: Migration and Immigration stories, Global Voices

Article: The Long-Lasting Legacy of the Great Migration, Smithsonian Magazine

The Long-Lasting Legacy of the Great Migration
When millions of African-Americans fled the South in search of a better life, they remade the nation in ways that are still being felt.
LISTEN

Story: A young Liberian refugee, educated in America, chooses to move back 'home.' Public Radio International

Interview: Regina Spektor: ‘I See My Family...In Everybody,’ National Public Radio

Suggested Applications:

- Voicethread: combine various media to create a story (register here for free account)
- Pixotale: visual storytelling, combine photos, videos, and text to create a story
- Educreations: combine various media, including drawings and audios, to create a story
- SoundCloud: upload and listen to audio tracks
- StoryCorps App: audio recording and sharing
- TimelineJS: interactive timeline creator
- BatchGeo: mapping
- 7 Scenes: mapping