

“East Africa Oil & Gas – Has it gone bust before the boom?”

Tuesday, March 28

Speaker List

Sandy Stash

Group VP- Safety, Sustainability and External Affairs, Tullow Oil, UK

Sandra (Sandy) Stash, has over 30 years of senior international, corporate and sustainability expertise as well as serving on the Board of the US Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. In the past ten years, Sandy has represented business in controversial natural resource, public health and environmental issues through roles which include Vice President for Regulatory Affairs, Compliance and Ethics, BP Alaska. By invitation as Vice President of Health, Safety and the Environment for TNK-BP in Russia, she provided breakthrough direction on corporate sustainability and good governance in former Soviet countries. In her current role as Group Vice President of Safety, Sustainability and External Affairs for Tullow Oil, the largest independent operator in Africa, she manages all surface technical and non-technical risks across Tullow’s operations on 5 continents.

Don Hubert, PhD

President, Resources for Development, Canada

Don Hubert is founder and President of the policy research firm Resources for Development. His work seeks to assist resource-rich developing countries in securing a fair share of extractive sector wealth by analyzing fiscal regimes, modeling plausible past and future government revenue, assessing vulnerability of tax evasion and identifying risks of corruption.

Hubert’s current work focuses EI contract analysis, project economic modeling and revenue risk assessments. He has conducted detailed economic analyses of extractive sector projects in Belize, Cambodia, Chad, Kenya, Malawi, Mozambique, Tanzania, Uganda and Zimbabwe.

Hubert has 15 years experience working on the extractive sector with roles including Deputy Chair of the Kimberley Process in 2004 and senior advisor to UN Representative on Business and Human Rights. He holds a PhD from the University of Cambridge. He worked for more than a decade at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Canada. He also spent four years as Associate Professor in the School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Ottawa.

Dr. Alex Vines OBE

Research Director, Area Studies and International Law; Head, Africa Programme, UK

Alex Vines has been head of the Africa programme at Chatham House since 2002 and in 2008 became director for Regional Studies and International Security. In 2012 Alex was appointed director for Area Studies and International Law. He chaired the UN Panel of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire from 2005 to 2007, and was a member of the UN Panel of Experts on Liberia from 2001 to 2003. He has also been a UN election officer in Mozambique and Angola, and served as a consultant for the UN Office on Drugs and Crime and for the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS). He worked at Human Rights Watch as a senior researcher on business and human rights. He is also a senior lecturer at Coventry University. He was awarded an OBE in 2008 in recognition of his work including founding and developing Chatham House's Africa programme.

Alexandra Gillies, PhD

Director of Governance Programs, Natural Resource Governance Institute, USA

Alexandra Gillies is a specialist on transparency, governance and anti-corruption in the oil sector. She is the director of governance programs at the Natural Resource Governance Institute (NRGI), a NGO that promotes accountability in the management of oil, gas and mineral resources worldwide. Her recent work has focused on oil sector corruption, national oil companies, commodity trading, transparency promotion, and the Nigerian oil sector. Alexandra holds a Ph.D. in international relations from the University of Cambridge, where her research addressed the political economy of the oil sector in Africa.

Adriano Nuvunga

Executive Director, Centro de Integridade Pública, Mozambique

CIP is an anticorruption civil society organization seeking to contribute to the promotion of good governance and human rights in Mozambique through research, investigative journalism and advocacy on fiscal transparency, public sector procurement, anti-poverty programs, and extractive industries operating in the country including electoral governance. CIP has maintained a singular focus on anti-corruption and graft in recent years. Adriano is a senior lecturer in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration at Eduardo Mondlane University in Mozambique. He holds a PhD in Development Studies from the International Institute of Social Studies of the Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands. He is a member of INCLUDE, the Knowledge Platform on Inclusive Development Policies, established by the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Lance Crist

Global Head of Natural Resources, International Finance Corporation, USA

Lance Crist is Global Head of Natural Resources for IFC, the private sector arm of the World Bank Group. Mr. Crist leads IFC's financing and advisory services teams responsible for supporting the oil, gas & mining sectors. IFC's $3 billion investment portfolio in these sectors includes about 70 energy & natural resource companies in over 35 countries across the emerging markets. IFC's financing includes investments in equity, mezzanine and senior debt; and the advisory services team provides support across a range of areas to assist clients in enhancing their sustainability. Mr. Crist is also a member of the EMPEA Private Equity Energy Council. He joined IFC in 1992 and has managed advisory mandates, project and corporate finance, and private equity transactions in the areas of general manufacturing and telecommunications. He earned a B.A. from Cornell University, and an MBA from the Wharton School.

Lien De Brouckere

Deputy Director, Africa Region, Rights and Resources Initiative, USA

Lien is a lawyer with experience supporting civil society organizations on human rights, corporate accountability, and rights-based development in the context of industrial resource extraction projects across Sub-Saharan Africa (especially Guinea, Democratic Republic of Congo, Côte d'Ivoire, and Uganda) and in Afghanistan. She previously directed the Natural Resources & Human Rights Program at Global Rights, where she led the launch of the African Coalition for Corporate Accountability with members representing more than 25 countries. She has a strong interest in company-community mediation and collaborated with the mandate team of the UN Guiding Principles on Business & Human Rights to further access to non-judicial remedy. Lien completed her law degree with Great Distinction from McGill University and speaks French, Dutch, English, and German fluently.

Winnie Ngabiirwe

Executive Director, Global Rights Alert, Uganda

Winfred Ngabiirwe of Global Rights Alert is a human rights activist with over 15 years of experience in development work. She holds a Masters degree in Human Rights, and a Bachelors of Social Work and Social Administration. She is passionate about inclusive development and believes that access to information, participation and access to justice are key ingredients for a meaningful natural resource governance regime in Africa. It is this experience in advocacy for a well governed and accountable natural resource sector in Uganda that she brings to Global Rights Alert as Executive Director and to other platforms such as Publish What You Pay and Coalition on Oil as Gas where she is active. Winfred and many others help communities get informed and involved in the extractive discussion, working with them to understand, claim and promote their rights, and development aspirations.

Amani Mustafa Mhinda

Executive Director, HakiMadini, Tanzania

Mr. Amani Mustafa Mhinda is the founder and Executive Director of HakiMadini, an advocacy organization working around mining sector, environment and community rights. He has over 16 years' experience working on mining sector policy, community organizing and human rights protection in Tanzania's mining sector.

A lawyer and political scientist, with professional training in petroleum sector governance from distinguished institutions in Tanzania, Ghana and Norway. Amani has working knowledge on extractive development processes in Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda and South Sudan. He has been the convener and host of the Civil Society coalition working on extractives in Tanzania (HakiRasilimali) since 2013.

Hakirasilimali played a key role in pushing for petroleum sector reforms which lead to the passing of the Petroleum Act, Tanzania Extractive Industries Transparency Act and Petroleum Revenue Management Act in 2015. Amani has been involved in design and facilitation of CSO capacity building programs on Oil and Gas within East African region. He currently represents Civil Society in the Tanzania's Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (TEITI) Multi Stake Group and the Africa Mining Vision (AMV). Amani has facilitated several capacity building interventions for East Africa Legislative Assembly (EALA) and the Liberia's legislative committees on extractives.

Amani was unable to travel for the event and will be replaced on the panel by Dastan Kweka who is a Research and Policy Advisor for Oxfam Tanzania.

Aldo Salomao

Legal Advisor, Centro Terra Viva, Mozambique

Alda Salomão is an environmental lawyer and social activist. Since 2002, she served as the General Director and senior legal advisor of the Mozambican NGO Centro Terra Viva (CTV), which focuses on environmental research and advocacy, with land governance as its core theme. Before establishing CTV in November 2002, she worked at the Legal Department of the Mozambique Ministry for Coordination of Environmental Affairs (1995-1997), and afterwards at the World Resources Institute, Institutions and Governance Program/Africa (2000-2002). Apart from providing strategic and technical leadership to CTV's three programmatic areas, Alda also led CTV legal support to the Community-based Natural Resources Management Platform (2008-2010) and to the Community Land Initiative – iTC (2006-2012.) From 2013 to 2015 she coordinated the Secretariat of the Civil Society Platform for Natural Resources and Extractive Industry. Since 2013, she has been leading CSO legal support initiatives for the 12 communities affected by the Liquefied Natural Gas project in the Palma District, Cabo Delgado Province. Alda holds a Master in Environmental Law and is completing a PhD in Human Geography and Spatial Planning at the Utrecht University.

Charles Wanguhu

Coordinator, Kenya Civil Society Platform on Oil and Gas, Kenya

Wanguhu is the current coordinator of the Kenya Civil Society Platform on Oil and Gas. At the platform he coordinates civil society to provide a collective voice on oil, gas and broader extractive issues. Wanguhu previously headed the programs department at the Africa Centre for Open Governance (AfriCOG) a think tank with a focus on the structural causes of corruption. Prior to joining AfriCOG he worked with the Kenya National Commission on Human Rights (KNCHR) and had a stint at the Danish Institute for Human rights (DIHR) in Copenhagen undertaking research on Business and Human Rights. Wanguhu is an alumnus of the Draper Hills Fellow Program at Stanford University's Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law. He holds an LLM Masters in Law in International and Commercial Dispute Resolution.

Thomas Baunsgaard

Deputy Chief, Tax Policy Division, International Monetary Fund, USA

Thomas Baunsgaard is a Deputy Chief in the Tax Policy Division of the IMF Fiscal Affairs Department. In that role, he leads the IMF's tax policy work on extractive industries. He also oversees the multi-donor trust fund on Managing Natural Resource Wealth which supports capacity building and technical assistance by the IMF in natural resource rich developing countries. Mr. Baunsgaard has worked in the IMF for about 18 years, and has previously been the IMF resident representative in Tanzania and Malawi. Before joining the IMF, he was a tax policy advisor in the Internal Revenue Commission in Papua New Guinea and a country economist in the World Bank's West Bank and Gaza Office.

Mary Burce Warlick

Acting Special Envoy and Coordinator for International Energy Affairs,
Bureau of Energy Resources, USA

Mary Burce Warlick assumed the position of Acting Special Envoy for the Bureau of Energy Resources in January 2017. A career member of the Senior Foreign Service, Ms. Warlick served as U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Serbia from 2010 to 2012, where she facilitated regional reconciliation, reforms, and the process of European integration. She then served as Principal Officer at the U.S. Consulate General in Melbourne, Australia. Ms. Warlick has over ten years of experience working on Russia, Ukraine, and Eurasia, serving as Special Assistant to the President and Senior Director for Russia at the National Security Council, Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Europe and NATO Policy, and Director of the State Department's Offices of Russian Affairs, and Ukraine, Moldova, and Belarus Affairs.

She served abroad as Minister-Counselor for Economic Affairs at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, Global Affairs Counselor in Bonn, and Economic Officer in Manila and Dhaka. She also served on the staff of the State Department's Executive Secretariat.

Ms. Warlick holds a B.A. in Political Science and Humanities from Valparaiso University in Indiana, and an M.A. in Law and Diplomacy from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. She currently represents the United States on the boards of the International Energy Agency and the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and previously served on the board of the Australian-American Fulbright Commission. She is the recipient of several State Department Superior and Honor Awards and the Secretary of State's Award for Public Outreach.

Ian Gary

Director – Accountable Development Finance, Oxfam America, USA

Ian Gary directs Oxfam America's global policy, advocacy and program work focused on promoting transparent and accountable financial flows – for example from oil and mining revenues, taxes and aid – to fight poverty. Based in Washington, DC, Ian leads a team of policy managers, advisors and researchers. Prior to joining Oxfam in 2005, Ian was Strategic Issues Advisor – Extractive Industries at Catholic Relief Services (CRS) from 1999 to 2005. He has held positions with the Ford Foundation as well as international development organizations in the U.S. and Africa.

Ian is the author of the Oxfam America report Ghana's Big Test: Oil's Challenge to Democratic Development (2009); co-author, with Terry Lynn Karl of Stanford University, of the CRS report Bottom of the Barrel: Africa's Oil Boom and the Poor (2003); and co-author of Chad's Oil: Miracle or Mirage? (2005), issued by CRS and the Bank Information Center.

Ian has been a member of the World Bank Extractive Industries Advisory Group; a member of the Global Steering Committee of Publish What You Pay; and a founding steering committee member of the Open Contracting Partnership. Ian has been a frequent commentator on extractive industries issues in major media outlets including New York Times, The Economist, The Guardian (UK), Le Monde, Washington Post, Financial Times, BBC, NPR and other outlets. He has testified twice before the US Congress and given presentations at the European Parliament, World Bank, Royal Institute of International Affairs, United Nations, U.S. State Department and Harvard University, among other venues.

Ian was an advisor with the World Bank Extractive Industries Advisory Group from 2005-2009 and was a steering committee member of the Open Contracting Partnership. Ian has conducted field research on extractive industries issues in Ghana, Nigeria, Chad, Cameroon, Sierra Leone, Liberia, Mali, Republic of Congo, Democratic Republic of Congo, Angola, Kenya, Uganda, Peru, Laos and Cambodia. He holds a MA degree from the University of Leeds (UK) in the Politics of International Resources and Development and a BA from the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

Michael Jarvis

Executive Director, Transparency & Accountability Initiative, USA

Michael Jarvis joined T/AI after almost two decades working on different aspects of the global good governance and development agenda. Most recently, Michael was the Global Lead for Extractives Governance within the World Bank Group's Governance Global Practice. He led the institution's programming to reinforce knowledge, learning and innovative approaches to strengthening good governance in the critical oil, gas and mining sectors. Overall, Michael worked over ten years with the World Bank in a variety of roles relating to anti corruption, private sector partnerships for development, and multi-stakeholder governance. This included a focus on contracting issues through which he helped shepherd development of a new global initiative on Open Contracting to promote better outcomes from the estimated $9.5 trillion in public-private contracts globally.

Michael previously worked on industry codes of conduct and as a consultant on corporate responsibility and transparency issues, including a focus on the agribusiness, chemical and defense industries. Michael has advanced degrees from the University of Cambridge and Johns Hopkins University. He is a frequent author and blogger and misses his time as a radio DJ.