From the Commissioner

Dear Friends:

Beauty is in bloom and summer has officially arrived in New Hampshire. No matter what picturesque corner of our state you visit or call home, there's an unmistakable energy in the air – a unique passion and enthusiasm from residents and visitors alike to see and experience what the Granite State has to offer. Perhaps it's the bright warmth of the summer sun that puts a spring in our collective step, but whatever the cause, everyone at the New Hampshire Liquor Commission is thrilled to share with you some of the fun, food, and great spirits we've discovered.

In certain cases we find ourselves rediscovering old favorites, as is the case in recent months with gin. It's long been a popular spirit thanks to its crucial role in such classic cocktails as the martini, the gimlet, and even a simple gin and tonic, but it's undergoing a surge in popularity as new botanical blends emerge featuring an unexpected and delicious balancing of flavors. On page 30 we take a closer look at the balance between gin's long history and the fresh ingredients and exciting new products on the horizon.

Our featured winery undertakes a similar balancing act, blending the utmost respect for winemaking tradition with a commitment to conducting fresh research. Combine those methods with the incredible, ideal growing conditions of Eastern Washington and you have Chateau Ste. Michelle, one of the most acclaimed names in all of American wine. Turn to page 26 for our illuminating conversation with Head Winemaker and Washington wine advocate Bob Bertheau.

By now, we're certain you'll have some ideas of your own about the next spirit or wine you'd like to sample or your next occasion for entertaining friends and family, so don't forget to turn to page 8 for the latest new products available and on sale in our stores. If you'd prefer to enjoy an afternoon or an evening out, turn to page 68 for an extensive listing of all the exciting happenings across New Hampshire this season.

We hope you'll take advantage of all the information and great opportunities for savings available at LiquorandWineOutlets.com, and as always, thank you for drinking responsibly.

MySummerDinnerParty.calm

By Gordon Heins
Product Merchandising Specialist for
New Hampshire Liquor Commission

With seemingly the longest winter in the history of mankind and a short spring now well behind us, we New Englanders are ready for some quality outdoor time, and among other things, that means eating outside whenever possible.

Usually in July at our place we get together with family and friends for a dinner party to celebrate the July birthdays among us. Since I'm the cook, I also get to pick the wines. I like to enjoy my cooking time and visit with guests without stress – so calm is the word of the day here as I try to do as much as I can ahead of time. Maybe some of this will inspire a get-together or two for you with great wines to match.

Appetizer: Heirloom Tomato Bruschetta

At our house we worship the tomato.

When they are ripe and in season, I find any and every opportunity to use them, so my starter has to be bruschetta. Often in restaurants, you get a salsa-like bruschetta with strong raw onions, too much garlic and watered down tomatoes. I make it like they do in Italy where it's all about the tomato. There, they usually grill the bread and rub it with garlic then add fresh chopped tomatoes in olive oil – that's it. I slow sauté the bread in a lot of olive oil until golden. I flip them to the other side for just a minute or so to slightly crisp it, but leave one side semi-soft. I lightly rub the golden side with a large cut garlic clove and let them rest and cool. As for the tomatoes, I select the ripest heirlooms from the farmer's market and roughly chop them. I add sea salt and pepper and a liberal dose of olive oil and let them sit at room temperature for a couple hours. I scoop the tomatoes on the sautéed baguette slices and top with a little grated good Parmesan Reggiano (parm-reg) cheese and hand-torn basil. I serve these on small plates on our back deck before the air raid of mosquitoes arrives and tell people to hold the plates right under their chins because it's going to get messy...yum.

Pairing: Provence Rosé

Why it works: Rosés from Provence have a gorgeous coral hue and visually seem like summer in a glass. Also, if they are made from Grenache (most of the best ones are) they have good acidity. When paired with an acidic appetizer like bruschetta, they work well together.

Salad: Arugula with toasted pine nuts, parm-reg shavings and roasted grape tomatoes

When it's time to retreat to the porch and watch the mosquitoes bat their brains out against the iron bars of our screens, I serve a fresh salad of arugula, pine nuts, and roasted grape tomatoes. I add slivers of parm-reg and top with lemon rind. To assemble the salad, I lightly salt the greens to bring out more flavor. I combine the juice of a half lemon with good quality olive oil, salt and pepper in a small bowl. I grind some parmesan into it as an emulsifier. I pour the dressing around the salad in a large bowl and blend with my hands so I only use as much dressing as I need to gently cover the leaves. Then I mound the leaves on a platter top with shaved parm-reg and toasted pine nuts. I add the tomatoes all around and a few slashes of balsamic glaze for drama and contrast. There are many wine choices here – like sauvignon blanc for one – but I like to use white French

Burgundy, which is 100% chardonnay, or Lugana from Italy, which is a special kind of rare, reasonably priced white made mostly from a version of the Trebiano grape.

Pairing: Chablis, Pouilly Fuisse, Macon Villages, Lugana, Sancerre

Why it works: Chardonnay from Burgundy is lower in alcohol and higher in acid than their California versions, which would be too oaky and bold for this salad. If you don't like Chardonnay, try the Lugana (Trebiano) or Sancerre (sauvignon blanc).

Main Course: Grilled Moroccan spiced pork tenderloins over Israeli cous cous with roasted pearl onions and cherry tomatoes in a balsamic glaze

For the main course I want to do something less predictable than steak and a bit exotic. I am really a sauté/stove cook and less of a griller, but I do have a fool-proof method of grilling pork tenderloins. After I trim the silver skin and fat from the tenderloins, I dry them and then rub them in olive oil. I add copious amounts of ground coriander – it's almost impossible to overdo this – make it rain. Then I crack peppercorns until my wrist aches, add a little cumin, paprika, a little nutmeg and a small amount of finely diced rosemary and let it sit for an hour. I buy a great organic brand of pork that needs no salt. If you feel you need it, I would suggest you brine them before preparing instead of adding salt directly. While the pork reaches room temperature, I make the Israeli cous cous. I toast them in a dry pan until light golden and then remove to cool. I add butter and olive oil to the already hot pan until the foam subsides and sauté finely diced whole yellow onion, fresh carrot and two garlic cloves. I cook this and make sure it does not brown (about 10 minutes). Then I add the cous cous a small handful of toasted slivered almonds and a couple of tablespoons of golden raisins. I add a lot of ground coriander, chopped fresh cilantro and parsley and a cup or more of homemade chicken stock and stir to incorporate. Cover and simmer for about 15 minutes until tender and liquid is gone. Meanwhile, roast some cherry tomatoes and pearl onions in balsamic and olive oil with fresh thyme, salt and pepper until tender.

Rosés from Provence have a gorgeous coral hue and visually seem like summer in a glass. When paired with an acidic appetizer like bruschetta, they work well together.

To grill the tenderloins on a gas grill, light all burners to high and leave lid closed for 10-15 minutes. This should get you easily to 600ish degrees or more. Add the tenderloins and set a timer for six minutes and don't open the lid. After six minutes turn them over and set a timer for five minutes. When the timer goes off, don't open the lid but shut the gas and burners off and set the timer for (you guessed it) four minutes (six...five...four...). After four minutes, bring the tenderloins in and let them rest on a warm platter under a foil tent for 10 minutes. This should produce succulent tenderloins that are slightly pink inside – but you can cook them longer if the pink makes you nervous and if you like them DRY. Slice the tenderloins on the bias in thick slices, and serve two to three per person over a bed of the cous cous, with the accumulated juices poured over the pork. Surround with the tomatoes and pearl onions and then make an artistic “z” over everything with balsamic glaze. For me, the balsamic glaze is like my paintbrush creating art on this plate.

Pairings: Chateaufeuf du Pape and Amarone. The exotic quality to this dish requires and equally exotic red wine. Both Chateaufeuf du Pape and Amarone are hedonistic wines that are a perfect match for this dish. However, both are pricy. If you want to spend less, I've included some great other choices.

Why it works: there's a “sweetish” quality to Amarone and Chateaufeuf du Pape, even though the wines are technically dry. Other choices include Valpolicella Ripasso (baby Amarone), Gigondas, and Vacqueyras.

Dessert: Italian Strawberries

I learned this from an Italian-American wine colleague; I'm not sure why she called them Italian strawberries, but it sounded good to me. Basically, pick your own berries that morning if you can. Core them and slice them in rough quarters. Add some sugar – about this much – the juice of a half lemon, grated rind, and about ten good turns of fresh ground pepper. “Did he say...pepper”? Yeah pepper. Let it steep for a few hours in the fridge, remove when dinner begins and serve in small bowls when you're ready.

Pairing: There's only one. Banfi Rosa Regali.

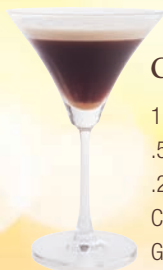

Why it works: Rosa Regali is a wine from Italy's smallest DOCG region. It's made from the red Brachetto grape and is fizzy. It should be served cold, but not overly so. It tastes just like fresh strawberries with a kick of heat, so this is a no-brainer.

Local Rules at Republic

WRITTEN AND PHOTOGRAPHED BY SUSAN LAUGHLIN

Claudia Rippee at Republic with loaves of sour dough bread made in house. She gives the dough a slow rise to develop flavor.

The first thing you need to know about Republic is that there are certain rules to be followed. The charming, comfortable Manchester eatery is the rare establishment that has a tongue-in-cheek manifesto outlining what's important to them. For most, the idea of rules and regulations at a restaurant may sound odd, but for co-owners and chefs Ed Aloise and Claudia Rippee, there's little that's more important than holding themselves to serious standards when it comes to sourcing their ingredients. In short, Ed says, they look to make delicious Mediterranean-inspired cuisine using sustainable, local ingredients.

Which brings us to our first rule, as Ed explains: "The first rule is that our protein must come from local farms." Claudia agrees: "To know the farms and farmers where animals were raised is the least we can do."

The least they can do has paid off, as Republic was the first restaurant to be Certified Local by the New Hampshire Farm to Restaurant Connection (NHFR). Such a certification is no easy feat; as the NHFR performs thorough checks with local farmers and the restaurants themselves before bestowing the Local designation.

It's a commitment Ed and Claudia are passionate about, though, and their dedication is evident given Republic's menu. You can get a juicy steak here, for example, but only when a sufficient quantity of steak cuts are available from Little Brook Farm in Exeter. That sometimes means items must be taken off the menu, as local farms are unable to continually supply a busy restaurant with prime cuts.

The menu is more than just red meat, of course, with one or two seafood specials offered daily. Republic's fish supply is held to the same high standard as any other ingredient. Fish arrives several times a week, sourced by two fishmongers with seats at the Boston fish auction. They represent 12 boats that fish from Nova Scotia to Montauk Bay. “We don’t carry farmed fish or anything flown in by air,” Ed says. “It’s just another rule of Republic.”

Vegetables are also a vital component of Republic’s menu (“Meat proteins are just a small part of meals in this area,” says Ed). They’re sourced from a variety of farms, all within a 50-mile radius and seasonally appropriate, as much as possible. In summer, tomatoes from Rusty’s Heirloom Tomatoes in Boscawen are a real treat. Local sourcing can be challenging, Ed explains: “The weather doesn’t always cooperate and as a consequence, I have to take an item off the menu. I won’t substitute.”

There’s enough variety on the menu, however, to compensate for occasional changes. Ed creates two blackboard menus each day, and Claudia conducts research for future menu choices and bakes bread daily while planning desserts. Some of the staples on Republic’s menu – all developed from one of the 17 countries that touch the Mediterranean Sea – include Turkish chicken, vegetable Tangine, hummus, falafel fried fish, and Moroccan red lentil stew. Lamb and rice is stuffed in cabbage, chicken is slivered on sandwiches and beef is savored in meatballs and sausage. Chef Aloise uses overnight braising to add flavor to everything from beef and lamb to white beans.

There’s plenty of flavor on the spirits menu, too. It’s anchored by Republic’s award-winning Moroccan Old Fashioned. The secret ingredient is a sweet Berbere spice blend featuring allspice, clove, coriander, pepper and more. It’s made with Old Overholt Rye Whiskey — one of the three “Olds,” orange bitters and a twist of orange.

Moroccan Old Fashioned

- | | |
|--|-------------------------------------|
| 1 to 2 teaspoons Berbere flavored simple syrup | 3 dashes Angostura Aromatic bitters |
| 3 dashes Angostura orange bitters | 2 ounces Old Overholt Rye Whiskey |

Make a simple syrup with a Berbere spice blend. (Blends can be purchased online).

In an Old Fashioned glass, add the syrup, bitters and orange peel. Use a muddler to gently press the orange peel to release the citrus oils or peel it over the glass. Add ice cubes followed by the whiskey and stir to chill.

Chef Aloise fillets fish from the local Boston market.

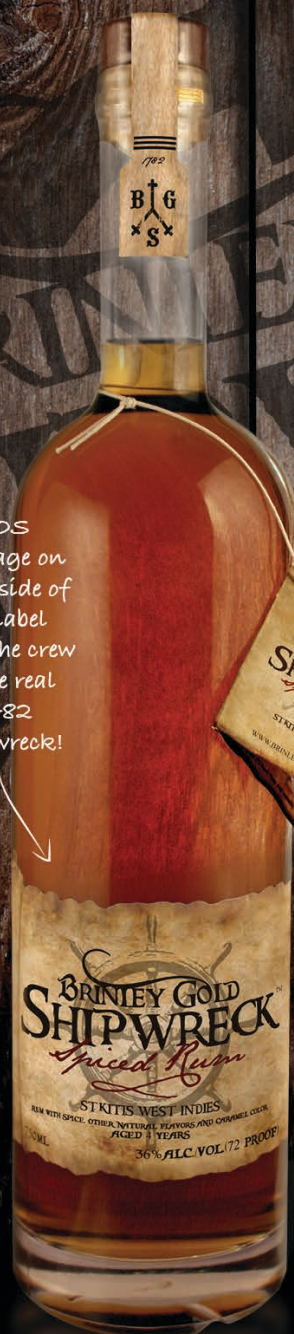

Republic was the first restaurant in the state to have wine on tap. It required a great deal of research on the part of Perfecta Wine Company to identify a West Coast winery that could package their wines in a keg. Gotham Project and Silver Tap labels are offered on tap for $4 a taste, $6 a glass, $16 a half liter or $30 a liter.

Most of the wines offered at Republic are from California and arranged on the menu by price. On the high end are a Frog’s Leap Sauvignon Blanc and a Franciscan Cabernet Sauvignon. Bottles under $25 include a Cline Viognier and a Velvet Devil Merlot. In

A New Opportunity

You'd expect there to be some nerves involved with the transition to a new position, but any stress Dave Hall felt about his new job as manager at Store #10 in Manchester disappeared as soon as he got the chance to spend some time with his staff. Now, instead of anxiety, Hall says, he's feeling invigorated by his new opportunity.

"Based on my experience so far, I'm absolutely thrilled by the people I'll be working with," Hall says. "They're hard-working, knowledgeable, and they have a great approach in terms of customer service. I'm pretty fortunate to be working here."

Though Hall may feel lucky, he has years of management experience and an extensive background after learning the ropes at various positions with the New Hampshire Liquor Commission. It's easy to see why he feels lucky, though; his new full-time staff, which includes manager Tammy Martin, Cathy Smith and Kristina Gosselin, have spent years developing familiarity with each other, their widely varied local customer base, and the expansive selection of wine and spirits offered by New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlets. They are, along with the staff of part-timers, precisely the sort of seasoned professionals that keep the store's shopping experience quick, pleasant, and often educational.

That know-how, Hall explains, will be essential to the operation of a new store. Store #10 opened at 68 Elm Street in Manchester just this year in May, completing both a transition to a new location and to operation as a wine specialty store. Becoming a wine specialty store is no insignificant shift, as the store has historically seen approximately 75% of its sales from spirits (with brands like Captain Morgan and Smirnoff the prevailing customer favorites). They have welcomed an influx of new products that tripled its wine selection.

"Oh, the new store is a huge change," Tammy Martin explains. Like Hall, however, she's excited about the new location's features; with 12,000 square feet of space, customers will be able to take advantage of spacious aisles, significantly upgraded shelf space, and far easier navigation of the greater product selection in both wine and spirits. "We have more space, more selection, and it's going to be much easier for us to make recommendations. If one of our regular customers enjoys a certain wine or a spirit, I'm excited to be able to easily say, 'Oh,

"We have more space, more selection, and it's going to be much easier for us to make recommendations."

you like this? Come right this way, I have something I think you'll love to try."

Dave Hall agrees, and believes the epicenter of the new expanded wine selection – the wines of the world room, filled with selections from across the globe – will be embraced by customers seeking either staff suggestions for new wines or simply to find their favorite brands.

"There are so many options, no matter what you're seeking," Hall says. "I'm very excited about the displays we have installed, the Power Buys – anything that provides our customers good value and encourages them to come and visit our store. The accessibility of our store, right off of Elm Street, is very convenient for a variety of people, too."

Even before their new location, Store #10 had long been known for welcoming an extremely diverse base of regular patrons spanning ages, backgrounds, and taste preferences. It's visited often by residents from Manchester's nearby west side as well as by customers buying in bulk for local businesses, from popular bars and lounges to the widely varied restaurants, that collectively make up Manchester's vibrant downtown business community. That range of customers makes for a day-to-day experience that keeps work fresh and engaging for Hall and his staff.

"I think my favorite part of my job – and I've heard this from other staff members as well – is the interaction with customers," Hall says. "It's extremely satisfying for us when a customer visits our store feeling unsure about what they want, and we're able to provide them with a recommendation they otherwise might have missed. It's rewarding when we recommend something, and then customers come back and visit us again later, looking for the next thing to try."

With a seasoned manager, a talented, enthusiastic staff, and a brand new, conveniently located store, it seems Store #10 has the ideal foundation for a successful future. No wonder Dave Hall and his staff are excited. 🍷

Chateau Ste. Michelle's Head Winemaker, Bob Bertheau

The Gem of Washington Wines

Chateau Ste. Michelle

There's likely no more influential force in the history of Washington's wine industry than Chateau Ste. Michelle. Chateau Ste. Michelle was the state's first winery, and since its founding in 1934, just after the repeal of Prohibition, the winery has played an instrumental role in the evolution of Washington into the second largest wine-producing region in the entire country. It's pioneered vinifera grape growing in the state and has produced classic European varietal wines under the Ste. Michelle label since 1967.

Today the winery owns 3,500 acres of vineyards in the Columbia Valley of Eastern Washington, where warm, sunny days and cool evenings create the ideal conditions for growing world-class grapes. Thanks to this near-perfect environment and a dedication to both classic winemaking tradition and fresh research, Chateau Ste. Michelle has become known for its highly acclaimed Chardonnay, Riesling, Merlot and Cabernet. These wines have helped Chateau Ste. Michelle consistently garner some of the industry's highest accolades, including designation as Winery of the Year 19 times by Wine & Spirits Magazine – more than any other American winery.

We discussed the history, success and focus of Chateau Ste. Michelle with Bob Bertheau, its decorated, respected Head Winemaker. Bertheau has become known as a passionate advocate for the celebrated wines of both Chateau Ste. Michelle as well as all the wines produced in the state of Washington.

As the head winemaker for Chateau Ste. Michelle, what's your winemaking philosophy?

To respect what the vineyard gives us. The winemaking should be sculpted around the regional expression of the fruit. In Washington, red varieties have amazing depth and concentration due to our climate, soil and diurnal temperature fluctuations. Gentle handling, careful extraction techniques and proper cellar aging all play a key role in harnessing the power of Washington red fruit. On the white side, we have found great new places to grow Riesling and other white varieties for our cooler, more “mineral” fruit-driven style that we strive for in our white wines. We also try to craft wines so they can either be enjoyed upon release or age in your cellar. You could say we want to have our cake and eat it, too.

You produce Single Vineyard wines. Can you tell us the difference between Cold Creek and Canoe Ridge Estate?

Our vineyards at Canoe Ridge Estate and Cold Creek are some of the best sites in the state. These wines have the ultimate sense of place.

Cold Creek Vineyard was planted in 1972 and is one of the oldest, warmest vineyards in Washington. The 40-year-old vines produce low yields and small berries with intense flavors and beautiful color. The wines from Cold Creek are concentrated, with fruit-forward jamminess. Cold Creek reds are very age-worthy, too.

Our Canoe Ridge Estate vineyard was planted in 1991 and sits high on a steep slope overlooking the Columbia River. The moderating influence of the river and strong wind patterns results in wines with more Old World restraint and elegance with refined tannins.

Both our Canoe Ridge Estate and Cold Creek vineyards are LIVE and Salmon Safe certified, something we’re very proud of. Not only are we trying to grow the highest quality fruit possible, we also want to make sure we farm the vineyards the right way so they will be around for generations to come.

You have a red wine winemaker and a white wine winemaker. Why is it important to have a winemaker dedicated to each?

Chateau Ste. Michelle is one of the world’s few premium wineries with two state-of-the-art winemaking facilities – one devoted to whites and another to reds. Our white wine cellar is in Woodinville, outside Seattle, and our red winery is at Canoe Ridge Estate in Eastern Washington. This allows us to customize each facility for the unique specifications of red and white wines. Making red and white wine takes a different mindset – there’s different equipment and focus. It’s of the top tourist destinations in the Seattle area, with over 300,000 visitors annually. The winery offers daily winery tours, tastings, special events and a popular summer concert series.

Are there challenges to winemaking in the Columbia Valley Appellation? How do you overcome them?

There are a few challenges. When you plant, you must understand where the ideal to have our red winery close to the vineyards in Eastern Washington. Having winemakers at each winery presents challenges, so we try to have as much crossover as possible, so they can learn from each other. It’s critical that everyone in the winemaking be involved with both. The Woodinville Chateau is where guests can visit us to taste our wines and learn more about Washington wine. The Chateau is one water rights are. It’s very specific in Washington, so you need to look at where you’re going to source water from. The other challenge is our extremes; we have a continental climate, and we don’t have the coastal effects. We get very hot in mid-summer and we also get cold fast and early. One of our biggest challenges is early frost and the danger of Spring frost. We’ve had years when we’ve had our eye on where the upcoming freeze is and how many grapes are still on the vine. I've been able to make ice wine 4 of my 11 years here. That's what gives us our character color and characteristics. Wine growing on the edge usually makes the best wine in the long run, like Bordeaux.

With over 300,000 visitors annually, the Chateau is one of the top tourist destinations in the Seattle area.

Chateau Ste. Michelle wines are consistently in the Top 100 in the Wine Spectator. What is it about your production techniques that ensure consistent quality?

When we got the award for our Horse Heaven Sauvignon Blanc last year, that made five varieties we've had in the Top 100. That shows the consistency of our vineyards and our vineyard management. Our team's attention to detail is amazing and key to this success. The amount of attention every lot gets is what makes our wines consistent across variety and across vintage. No matter what varietal and what vintage, consumers know they can count on a consistent product. We take that trust very seriously.

Tell us about your history with Chateau Ste. Michelle. What drew you to Washington from Sonoma County?

I was born in Seattle and grew up in the Northwest. I got a job in a winery while an undergraduate in Idaho. I then went to UC Davis and learned from amazing wine masters. From tiny winery Hanzell to large winery Gallo, with Chalk Hill winery in between. The experience and knowledge gained at each place shaped my winemaking.

I also wanted to return to family in the Northwest and try something new in my career. This was a job that was enticing and exciting to me. I still sneak down to Sonoma every now and then. One of my mentors, Bob Sessions of Hanzell, helped shape my technique after finishing at Davis. At a small winery like that, you learn every part of the process. Hanzell is one of those industry diamonds.

How would you describe the Washington wine industry to someone new to it?

There's a pioneer spirit to the industry. It's wide open to ideas and very proud. Growers here are truly farmers first; they cultivate many other crops, and there are many areas growing different grapes and styles, from the Walla Walla Syrah to the Ancient Lakes Riesling. We're exploring Washington's diversity and honing in on what grows well. We're not as well known for our AVA's (American Viticultural Area, the federally recognized term for growing regions), but we're getting there.

What do you think put Washington on the world's wine map?

Quality and value are putting Washington wines on the world map. Washington wines have amazing fruit purity and expression made from high-quality vineyards and winemaking. Our wine quality and price points offer the consumer a great value. We have that high tier of wines, but we do extremely well in that $15 tier, as well. You also need a range of wineries, from Chateau Ste. Michelle, the pioneering winery, to the many smaller boutique producers throughout the region.

Are there specific grapes that Washington does well? Why?

The underdog we all need to work on is Syrah. If you look at our climate and soils, we're more like the Rhone than Bordeaux. Cabernet Sauvignon does not grow well in every area; however, Syrah is amazing no matter which part of the state it's from. It isn't as popular, though, so we use it in many blends. The other grape that works particularly well is Riesling. The three most important things in a great Riesling are acidity, acidity, and acidity, and because of our cooler temperatures we can produce great Rieslings.

Chateau Ste. Michelle was the first winery in Washington to introduce international partners. In 1999 we developed a relationship with Dr. Ernst Loosen of Germany to create the Eroica Riesling. Our intention was to bring up the image of Riesling in the U.S., and now we're one of the world's largest producers of Riesling.

In addition to the amazing Single Vineyard wines you produce, you also produce other lines labeled Columbia Valley, Indian Wells and Reserve. Can you tell us about these wines?

They're all important. There's little difference in the winemaking. The bigger the blend the more I need to involve others. I'm most proud of our Columbia Valley tier because of how many people we can touch with those wines. When we make those wines, we're so proud of what we can do at that price point. Indian Wells wines are jammier; the Chardonnay tends to be more tropical. With the Single Vineyard tier, I want you to feel like you're in the vineyard. When we're making the blends it's about making the vineyard the star. The high-end line of Ethos and the Artist Series are the best of the vintage. They're always a blend of estate fruit. Ethos is a new world style, and it's an example in which we are flexing our muscles to show the power and complexity of Washington. The Artist Series is more about layers

and complexity, with upwards of five Bordeaux varieties. 2011 is such a refined cool vintage so the Artist Series is almost all Cold Creek Vineyard. We lure them in with the quality of the Columbia Valley and then they step up to the higher tier, which is really fun to do.

How does the 2014 vintage look?

We got off to an early start, but we're right at normal as far as bud break. We're slightly ahead now because of recent heat. It's shaping up to be another great vintage. The climate change has simply made us more extreme – not necessarily warmer or colder.

Quality, consistency, value and dependability are all characteristics of Chateau Ste. Michelle. We're moving forward with winemaking trends while maintaining what we've done well. You know what to expect when you open a bottle of Chateau Ste. Michelle and this is a gem in the wine world. 🍷

Always Drink Responsibly

THE DISTILLER'S CRAFT

The Flavorful Future of Gin

BY KENNETH GAGNON

There's little doubt gin is a classic. Any spirits aficionado can tell you gin is a crucial component of a dizzying array of many timeless mainstays of the cocktail landscape, from a Tom Collins to a Gimlet, from a Negroni to an old-fashioned Gin and Tonic, and all the way down to the universally known Martini. It's a spirits favorite, in other words, that's derived much of its popularity from the way its unmistakable yet versatile flavor profile – that fresh, piney essence is juniper berries – compliments some of the most well known drinks in bars all over the globe.

For a time, gin's presence became so widespread that its popularity waned. Some spirits enthusiasts simply tired of the cocktails of which gin was a part, while others had negative experiences with gin of inferior quality. While the majority of the most acclaimed gin is crafted using pot or column distillation, which involves several steps and the infusion of carefully selected natural flavoring botanicals, other kinds of gin commonly called compound gin, are made without distillation by quickly combining commercial grade neutral alcohol and flavoring juniper essences or oils. Compound gin is, in most all circumstances, of significantly lesser quality.

While the aforementioned circumstances led to gin temporarily losing something of its appeal, it seems that as of late the spirit is making a considerable comeback. At the heart of this resurgence are two factors. First is the emergence of gin brands no longer content to build a flavor profile featuring only the standard juniper essence; instead, many gin distillers, embracing the movement toward craft distilling, are favoring complex, balanced blends of flavor with both juniper as well as a variety of other tantalizing botanicals. Floral notes like lavender and hints of citrus fruit are becoming more common, as are spices like coriander and sage.

As distillers are embracing a craft-centric approach, so too are bartenders, who are exploring flavorful new ways to approach classic cocktails as well as innovations of their own. Whether they're exploring the old or the new, bartenders can work easily with gin, which is versatile on its own and is even more desirable in many cases when it features complex botanical notes. These notes play well off of other house-made syrups and natural flavorings that are becoming go-to elements for any discerning drinkmaker. Those who may have not enjoyed gin in the past, or the cocktails in which it was utilized, have new, flavorful options that are perfect for summer – or any time of year.

Gin has evolved over the course of a millennium from a herbal medicine to one of the most popular of spirits.

The New Botanical Blends

Here's a look at a few of our favorite brands – available at your favorite New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlet – leading the expansion of the botanical blends and the resurgence of gin, as well as some enticing cocktail recipes you can try the next time you're seeking a fresh take on this classic spirit.

Hendrick's Gin

Hendrick's Gin is one of the gin makers at the forefront of the movement toward more balanced botanical flavors. Its flavor profile includes flowers, roots, fruits, and seeds across the globe, including the Bulgarian Rosa Damascena and specially selected cucumbers from the finest available producers. The combination of these flavors and Hendrick's complex distillation process generates a subtle, balanced flavor and an extremely smooth finish.

Bombay Sapphire East Gin

Bombay Sapphire goes to unique lengths to produce its legendarily balanced and flavorful gin, using a vapor infusion process and 10 precious botanicals including lemon peel, grains of paradise, coriander, cubeb berries, orris root, almonds, cassia bark, liquorice, and angelica.

St. George Terrior Gin

St. George Spirits calls its Terrior Gin an ode to the wild beauty of California. It is possessed of a complex blend of botanicals that produce aromatics that make you feel like you've been transported to the towering western forests. You'll enjoy dueling scents of Douglas fir, California bay laurel, coastal sage, and other evocative botanicals.

Uncle Val's Botanical Gin

For a small-batch, Tuscan-inspired botanical gin, try Uncle Val's. The botanicals – including not only juniper, but also cucumber, lavender, lemon, and sage – are not only Uncle Val's favorite cooking ingredients, but also make for an exceptionally unique, smooth and delicious gin.

Karner Blue Gin

Karner Blue Gin is a local favorite, produced at one of the few distilleries in New Hampshire. It's also distilled from crisp, delicious New Hampshire apples and steeped with nine botanicals, including juniper, citrus, orris root and cubab berries. The final result is a gin that's richly complex and memorably sweet.

Death's Door Gin

Death's Door Gin is a simple but powerful gin with botanicals that include juniper berries loaded up front; spicy, citrusy notes from the coriander seeds in the mid-palate; and a soft, cooling finish provided by the fennel seeds. It's sourced and prepared within Washington State for a gin that's enjoyable on its own or within a wide variety of new twists on classic cocktails.

Aviation American Gin

Aviation Gin employs an especially expansive variety of botanicals, seeking to build a taste profile that's less juniper-forward than traditional gins and more reliant upon a complex depth of flavor. In just one sip you'll detect traces of many botanicals from the Pacific Northwest, like anise seed, cardamom, coriander, elletaria lavender, Indian sasparilla, juniper, and dried sweet orange peel. ☞

At the beginning of anyone's experience with appreciating wine, it's easy to feel a certain pressure to develop what one imagines is a sufficiently sophisticated palate. It can seem daunting to be able to detect all the notes of flavor and finish in a given wine. That's why Ken Krauss and his wife Suzanne Roantree – wine enthusiasts and proponents of big, bold flavors – have developed their own irreverent vocabulary for what they savor in a wine.

"We describe both food and wine as needing a Ummm and an Ahhh," Krauss explains.

"For us, a wine with a nice, big nose gave it the Ummm, and a lingering finish gave it the Ahhh. When we find a wine that does both, we tend to be pretty happy. I've never been able to discern earthiness and other complex flavor, but I don't have to in order to enjoy wines. It's okay to like whatever you like – for whatever reasons you do."

While Krauss says he lacks the palate necessary to be what he jokingly calls a connoisseur, he's developing an appreciation for memorably bold tastes since before he could even drink wine. Krauss' mother and father were innkeepers, and from their cooking he cultivated a taste for interesting, spicy types of food. That early exposure influenced the types of wines he would seek out years later, after graduating from college, Krauss befriended a sommelier from a local 5-star hotel to learn about and try a variety of different kinds of wine.

"We've been fortunate enough to try a variety of wines from Château d'Yquem, ports, Cabernets and Chardonnays from California, South America, or Australia, big Tuscans, Spanish and Portuguese reds," Krauss says. "Really, we just like all kinds of big flavors," he laughs.

Krauss was particularly surprised by the big flavor of the 2010 Penner-Ash Williamette Valley Pinot Noir, as he had yet to especially enjoy Pinot Noirs in the same way he savors other varietals. "I've always found West Coast Pinot Noirs to be fruity but lackluster in their finish," Krauss says. "In my experience they cut out too soon for my tastes."

At first, on its own, the 2010 Penner-Ash was as Krauss expected, with an amazing medium red color, a nose of cherries and vanilla, and a finish that was shorter than he preferred. However, once Krauss and his wife paired the wine with food, the flavors took on a whole new life. Krauss has nurtured a passion for food since his childhood experiences with his parents' cooking, and an enthusiasm for all things culinary has been present for Krauss and his wife throughout their marriage, too.

They paired the wine with a small antipasto of cut pieces of parmesan, sharp provolone, and a firm Dutch Goat cheese, accompanied with thin sliced Prosciutto, fresh apricots, dates, and some varietal olives; Krauss says that the taste of the wine exploded with cherry, vanilla and pepper flavors and the goat cheese flavor was enhanced, as well. It was, in other words, the perfect moment for the quintessential Ummm and Ahhh – and for the addition of another important term: A-Ha!

"I sat back and savored the flavor, and I had what I call my 'A-Ha!' moment, because I finally understood how Pinot Noir fit for my tastes," Krauss says. "I often drank heavy reds in the Fall and Winter, and bold Chardonnays in the Spring and Summer. This Penner-Ash Pinot Noir was a perfect Spring/Summer red to pair with my love of salads, goat cheese, and grilled chicken, pork, and a spicier Tuna or Salmon which my heavier reds would just overwhelm. As I realized the pairing of the antipasti allowed for the longer finish I was missing, it brought a smile to my face." 🍷

An American Celebration!

JULY 4 • PORTSMOUTH. "An American Celebration" is Strawberry Banke Museum's annual salute to America, Independence Day and the joys of summer. Beginning with a US Naturalization Ceremony, Strawberry Banke gives multiple generations the opportunity to enjoy the 10-acre living history museum on a day that American history takes the spotlight. Live music and picnic food sales complement the historic houses and costumed role-players. The children's activities shine, including a parade of decorated bikes and wagons; and children under 17 are admitted free thanks to sponsors BAE Systems and Bottomline Technologies. As a Blue Star Museum, active duty military and their families are free. Tickets are available online at strawberrybanke.org; $17.50 adults; (603) 433-1100
