On the Cover: A statue of James B. Beam, looking every inch the Southern gentleman, raises a glass of bourbon as he motions to the Jim Beam American Stillhouse in Clermont, Kentucky. Story on page 22.

From the Chairman

Dear friends,

That familiar chill is in the air, which can mean only one thing – the holiday season is nearly upon us.

Soon we'll be rushing around, busily preparing for the get-togethers and visits that make this time of year so exciting. These times call for a great bottle of wine, and in many cases Cabernet – the “king of the red wines” – fits the bill perfectly. Few know Cabernets as well as California's Mondavi family, the driving force behind Folio Fine Wine Partners and the Michael Mondavi Family Estate. In the World of Wine feature this issue, Michael Mondavi and Rob Mondavi, Jr., talk to us about the passion, heritage and history of Cabernets from around the world.

We also drop in on Jim Beam Master Distiller Fred Noe – the great-grandson of James Beauregard “Jim” Beam and the seventh generation of his family to play a role in the whiskey business. Noe tells us what it means to carry on the family legacy, and describes the honor of taking his place alongside generations of master distillers before him. While Jim Beam may be the no. 1 selling bourbon in the world, it remains very much a family affair to the Kentucky native.

A visit to the Seacoast brings us to Smoky Quartz Distillery and Owner-Manager Kevin Kurland. Kurland – a member of the New Hampshire Air National Guard – was on his second tour of duty in Iraq when he was struck by the idea to open a distillery. He followed that dream, and Smoky Quartz, named for the New Hampshire state gem, now crafts its award-winning V5 Bourbon (named for the five veterans in his family), vodka and rum at his welcoming Seabrook facility.

And with the arrival of the holiday season, we offer the perfect recipe for entertaining at home: a way to do less and enjoy more. Our expert provides a roadmap on when to cook and when to fall back on convenience.

As we're out exploring the main streets and storefronts of the Granite State, I encourage you to take a moment to appreciate the details that make our state such a great place to be.

In the meantime, we hope you'll refer to all the information and great opportunities for savings available at LiquorandWineOutlets.com.

As always, thank you for drinking responsibly. Salut!

ABSOLUT. ONE SOURCE

Nestled among the rolling meadows of Southern Sweden, a small village, called Åhus, has been the home to a community dedicated to one common goal...

Producing the world's most iconic vodka.

One Source. One Community. One Superb Vodka.

One source means that every aspect of Absolut's production process takes place in and around the small village of Åhus, in southern Sweden. This is where every single drop of Absolut comes from, the heart and soul of the unique production process. It guarantees impeccable quality - from seed to sip.

Åhus is located in the region of Skåne, among the beautiful surrounding fields, nature and 500 years of vodka-making tradition.

5 Key Elements to One Source Production

For Absolut, a perfect vodka starts with quality ingredients and a deep-seeded passion for distilling with utmost care.

It's in and around Åhus where beautiful fields, nature and 500 years of vodka-making tradition combine to provide everything needed to produce the perfect vodka. The simple process combines five key elements, all located in the small village of Åhus where:

- 1. Terroir Provides the Perfect Setting
- 2. Farmers Handle with Care
- 3. Winter Wheat Grows Strong
- 4. Water Is Pure & Pristine
- 5. An Icon Is Produced

Terroir Provides the Pefect Setting

Ahus provides unique geography that bestows character and individuality to Absolut. The cool winters and long, warm summers combined with optimal soil conditions, create a perfect place for growing Winter Wheat.

Farmers Handle with Care

Absolut has a long-standing relationship with up to 450 farms across the small region of Ahus. Many generations of wheat farmers have perfected and passed down the secrets to farming the best crops possible - where sustainability, traceability and environmental impact are of the utmost importance.

Winter Wheat Grows Strong

Vodka is uniquely affected by the characteristics of its raw ingredients.

Absolut is made with Winter Wheat, a crop that distinctively continues to grow as the soil freezes through the winter months.

This type of wheat is ideal for growing in the region of Skane.

Water is Pure & Pristine

With water making up more than half of every bottle of Absolut, the source is integral to the final product. In Ahus, an aquifer lies quietly beneath the small village providing pure, pristine water from a natural source.

An Icon Is Produced

After being distilled through a proprietary "continuous distillation" process - where every drop of Absolut is distilled hundreds of times - the liquid is poured into the iconic Absolut bottle and shipped around the world.

The Absolut One Source process is a process that has been perfected over time to produce the

One-Stop Holiday Shopping

I would rather chew tin foil or stick hot pins in my eyes than shop at a mall during Christmas week, let alone,

Black Friday, but that's just me.

However, with the Holidays upon us, it's good to know you can take care of a lot of the people on your list in one fell swoop and not go near the insufferable, claustrophobic and dreaded Dracula's Castle, aka, the mall. For at least the adults on your list, why not shop at one of our NH Liquor and Wine Outlet stores for a pleasurable shopping experience and one that will leave you very happy with how much you saved, how many people you checked off your list and will no doubt leave you more time to do the things you love, like relax with a glass of wine. With our tremendous value programs like Price Busters, Power Buys and Last Chance, there is truly no better time to enjoy great savings. More money left in your wallet is not so bad either, eh? (I am Canadian.)

What to buy?

If you're stocking up for the holidays, here are some suggestions that won't break the bank, are a little less commonly known and, hopefully, are new things to try:

Whites: Sancerre/Pouilly Fume are both 100 percent Sauvignon blancs from the Loire Valley in France, and offer big time quality-to-price relationship. Italian Vermentino is a Chardonnay-like wine that has good acidity and a fresh mouth-feel.

Reds: Montepulciano d'Abruzzo is a simple Italian red quaffer that works with pizza, burgers, spaghetti or on its own. Dolcetto is a "Pinot-like" Italian red that is good with almost anything. Gigondas/Vacqueyras are special wines from the southern Rhone Valley that taste almost as good as their famed cousin Chateaunuef du Pape, but at less than half the price.

Traditional Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner and what to bring

If you are the cook, it's easy since you know the ingredients to better help you match the wine – plus, you can slurp some of the wine before dinner – just to be sure it matches of course...) But if you are a guest, find out what you can about the meal. If it's traditional American, you can go a lot of ways. With sweet vegetables and stuffing alongside the turkey and glazes on a ham, you want uncomplicated wines with or without a touch of sweetness. For instance, a very tannic Cabernet or Bordeaux would most likely overwhelm the medium body of turkey and ham as well as lessen the enjoyment of the wine itself, but for a standing rib roast, a big Cabernet or Bordeaux would be perfect.

Turkey/ham: Choose white wines – try Riesling for its fresh flavors and off-dryness that will hold up to the sweet things in the meal. For drier whites, consider Pinot Gris, Viognier, unoaked Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, White Bordeaux (mostly Sauvignon Blanc) or Albariño from Spain. For reds, you can't go wrong with Pinot Noir. Also, Malbec, Merlot, Syrah, Shiraz or low alcohol Zinfandels (under 14 percent).

Prime Rib: Choose Bordeaux, Napa, Sonoma or Washington State Cabernet, Italian Super-Tuscans, Brunello di Montalcino, Barolo or Barbaresco, wines from Priorat (Spain).

Gifts: Who's on your list?

Your boss: It helps to know what he or she enjoys, but if you don't, roll with a quality Pinot Noir. It's medium-bodied and goes with almost anything. Plus, you can still get more bang for your buck with a great Pinot than exalted Napa Cabernets. Look for selections from the Russian River Valley, Sta. Rita Hills, Los Carneros, Anderson Valley or Central Coast regions for outstanding quality.

Friends: You should already know what they like ;) However, do some research at the store and spend a little more than what they would for a special bottle of their favorite varietal.

Wine lover: The sky's the limit here, but try to find something less prosaic than mainstream wines which will show you cared enough to research it. Small production wines are often spectacular since so much attention is given to them. Consider reds like Italian Brunello di Montalcino, Barolo, or Amarone, or maybe a central Otago Pinot from New Zealand, or even a single vineyard Cabernet or Merlot from Washington State.

Still not sure? Our gift cards are always appreciated and allow the recipient to choose whatever they want – which offers a 100 percent satisfaction rate.

What about you? Celebrate another trip around the sun by getting something special for yourself. That great wine you've only been dreaming about? It should be yours! You've earned it.

Happy Holidays! 🍷

NH BUSINESS REVIEW

Making More Magic

Suna Offers Up New and Old Favorites

Scott Ouellette and Andy Juhasz are a well-oiled hospitality machine.

The two are the powerhouse owners of The Magic Foods Group: the company behind O Steaks and Seafood in Laconia and Concord, O Bistro at the Inn on Main in Wolfeboro, and Canoe Tavern in both Bedford and Center Harbor – and now the duo’s latest, Suna, at the base of Mount Sunapee.

Ouellette and Juhasz have worked together since 2005, serving up dishes like their award-winning Kobe Beef Pops, Prime Meatloaf, and the highly-sought-after lobster macaroni and cheese. Ouellette came from a commercial banking background and Juhasz from the fine dining world. Together, their expertise helped build a restaurant empire, complete with a stand-alone catering company.

With the opening of Suna, the sharp, amiable and creative team decided to capitalize on what they describe as “the high notes” from their locations at Canoe and O Steaks in their expansion to western New Hampshire. A restaurant space on Brook Road (just off of Scenic Route 103) became available in the spring of 2016. With the help of Ouellette’s mother and restaurant designer, Sandy Ouellette, the team quickly transformed the space into an upscale bistro. Suna officially opened in July of 2016 to a warm local reception. A visit to this welcoming spot reveals that the dining room has a more formal feel with fireside seating, while the bar has high top tables and a large flat screen television. The entire restaurant is open and light, with scenic sweeping views of Mountainview Lake, below.

“This area has been known for having or focusing on more pub style restaurants and food,” Ouellette says. “There is a good time and place for that, but we wanted something more in Sunapee. We saw a need for Suna. People tell us, ‘We love that you have sit-down dining here.’ and we know we have hit on something good.”

Suna is open year-round, catering to summer tourists and skiers alike.

“There are things that we are known for and we wanted to expand to this side of the state,” Juhasz says. “Our steaks and seafood are really approachable and we make food that people love. We want people to feel like they can come here and enjoy a well-made dish – whether it’s a plate of our house-crafted nachos, our BBQ, or our prime churrasco steak. We have it all.”

The growth of Magic Foods sprang from what Ouellette describes as, “A corporate structure without the corporate attitude.”

“We have a system here that supports our staff as well as good business,” he says. “Most members of our team have been with us for over a decade. We give them the freedom and support to love their jobs, and in turn, it treats us well.”

The Magic Foods team smokes and cures its own meats at its catering company (affectionately called, ‘Rubbin Butts BBQ’) and uses the BBQ products in all of the restaurants. Suna’s cheekily-named “Rubbin Butts Nachos” have quickly become a favorite. The dish features house-fried potato chips, a creamy white cheddar cheese sauce, cole slaw, and piles of the sweet, smoky and savory pulled pork.

O'Cosmo

Courtesy Beverage Director Aaron Leyton

1½ ounces Mount Gay Black Barrel Rum
(or dark rum of your choice)
1½ ounces pomegranate cranberry juice
1 teaspoon grenadine
Splash of orange bitter

Pour all ingredients into a cocktail shaker with ice. Shake thoroughly and strain into chilled martini glass. Garnish with an orange slice. Serve immediately.

The nachos pair nicely with the menu's zesty and citrusy Acrobat Pinot Gris.

The menu has the Magic Food Groups' classics: Kobe beef steaks and meatloaf, sweet and sour calamari, ribs, salmon and its beloved lobster mac-and-cheese. The balanced wine list features glass pours from across the globe, with a heavy lean towards American vintners. The Caymus Conundrum White from California is a popular choice, and matches expertly with the calamari. The hot, sweet, spicy, and crispy rings are a showstopper for The Magic Food Restaurant Group.

"We receive accolades from locals on that dish," says Beverage Director Aaron Leyton. "We knew we were on to something delicious, and that white is so nice with it."

White wines like the Emmolo Sauvignon Blanc from Napa Valley with its steely, floral and crisp notes stand up to house crab and corn bisque and Asian-style Ahi tuna. The J. Lohr Estates Riverstone Chardonnay is one of the group's most popular wines. Its pear, toast and mineral qualities are delicious all on their own or paired with the lobster macaroni and cheese.

No red pour is more popular than the house O'Pinot: a fruit-forward and food-friendly varietal made especially for the restaurant group. "We like to showcase rich and fruity flavors as a match with our steaks," says Leyton.

Ouellette describes the success of the O'Pinot as "very uplifting to us." When they started bottling in 2010, the team blended enough wine for 50 cases. This season, the team will blend and bottle more than 240 cases of the wine. The wine is consistently served at the restaurants in Pinot Noir glasses that have a large bowl and curved lip.

"It is the one wine that really tastes just right when it is in its specialized glass," Ouellette says.

All of the reds on Suna's wine list feature bold flavors. Patrons can choose from varietals like The Ruta 22 Malbec from Argentina or the Cline Ancient Vines Zinfandel. The Malbec is robust with cherry, mocha and smoky accents. The Zinfandel has spice, raspberry and blackberry notes: both make a beautiful match with Suna's Kobe meatloaf and tenderloin tips.

The bar serves up signature drinks that feature classics with a house twist and the team's interest in Barbados-style rum. Sippers can choose from

The Ultimate Cosmo, featuring Grey Goose L'Orange and Citron with a splash of cranberry juice, or the O'Cosmo that swaps-in a dark, Black Barrel Rum from Mount Gay. A steakhouse staple, the Manhattan, is the epitome of the team's style: Woodford's Reserve Bourbon is mixed with bitters, Fonseca Ruby Port and Luxardo candied cherries. The cocktail's flavors are rich, deep and full of smoky caramel notes.

"This location is so gorgeous," says Leyton. "We are so happy that Suna is attracting new customers to the company. They keep telling us that it's such a nice change for them."

Leyton has been with the company for more than three years and works directly with Ouellette and Juhasz on the signature beverage and happy hour programs.

"I love sharing the flavors like the O'Pinot and the Mount Gay rum. They both are so good and people really enjoy it. We love that people have made us their go-to spot and we look forward to seeing what's to come." 🍷

The Wine Enthusiast

Enthusiast:
Michael J. Donahue
Occupation: Lawyer

Selected Wine:
Heitz Zinfandel Ink Grade Vineyard 2012

Michael J. Donahue can thank Uncle Sam for his interest in wine.

An attorney and founding co-partner in the Exeter-based DTC law firm where he focuses on land use, permitting and real estate development, the 68-year-old took a winding path to the spot where he first discovered his enthusiasm for great wines. However, it all began at the New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlets.

"I remember going to the 'green stores' with my dad, where you filled out your order sheet at the counter," Donahue says.

After graduating high school, the Manchester native left the Granite State for what he calls "a progression of industrial cities" that included stops in Worcester (where he graduated from Holy Cross in 1970) and Philadelphia (where he earned his J.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania Law School). He then served on active duty in the Navy as a Judge Advocate from 1973 to 1976. It was during his time in the Navy that Donahue first discovered the world of wine.

"I knew nothing about wine while growing up in New Hampshire," says Donahue, who attended Our Lady of Perpetual Help and Bishop Bradley during his years in Manchester. "I wasn't a teetotaler or anything, but when I was in the Navy, I was in Long Beach in Southern California. There was a lot of information and interest in wine – understandably. It's a huge industry."

Donahue and his wife, Diane, would take trips to the Bay Area and explore the surrounding countryside into Sonoma and Napa.

"That was our introduction," he says. "We had started at the top. We had no idea at that time, but it was like waking up in Bordeaux. We didn't really appreciate it then."

After returning to New Hampshire in the late 70s, Donahue would continue to vacation in wine country, often bringing bottles of his favorite wines home.

"Fortunately, the way it's progressed, you don't have to do that today," he says. "I have to say, the New Hampshire Liquor Commission at this point has really embraced wine. It's very encouraging."

An avid gardener who possesses some serious grilling skills, Donahue is also a longtime member of the Zinfandel Advocates and Producers – a non-profit organization dedicated to advancing and promoting American Zinfandel.

Donahue sampled a Heitz Zinfandel Ink Grade Vineyard – a balanced and lively Zinfandel from the family-owned Heitz Cellar from St. Helena in Napa Valley. He paired the wine with a stuffed clam appetizer and a boneless lamb roast he cooked on a Weber kettle grill.

"The cork popped nicely and the nose in the bottle was pretty restrained," Donahue says. "Some Zinfandels are fruit bombs and they explode, but this one was quite restrained. You could smell a little of the smoky oak and certainly some fruit, but there were no stray or off flavors."

The wine was very bright, with a sparkling ruby color in the glass.

"It had good body," Donahue says. "Some of the Zinfandels are really extracted – very viscous, hanging around the edge of the glass. This wasn't like that. It was just straight down the middle."

As the wine opened up in the glass, it presented more of the varietal character, particularly with additional fruit that didn't appear on the nose. The first taste was "surprisingly clean," he said. It was very smooth with an herbal backing and hints of oak.

"If someone had asked me what the alcohol in this wine was, I never would've said 14.5 percent," Donahue says. "There was no hotness or any of the other excesses you often encounter with Zins. They're often made with high alcohol, but this was very refined."

With that refinement comes a very definite purpose: The Heitz Zinfandel Ink Grade Vineyard is, without a doubt, a food wine.

"It's made in that style that is associated with Napa Valley Zinfandels," he says. "They used to label it Claret, and that's the style it is. There's a lot of acid in this wine and that helps it stand up to the spicy food we had."

The lamb roast had fresh rosemary and garlic, and the stuffed clam appetizer had chorizo in it – a spicy, bold Portuguese sausage.

"This wine was just perfect with it," Donahue says. "I wouldn't serve this wine for a meet-and-greet party. It's really better than that. And it doesn't have any of that residual sugar left in it that people sometimes like when they're starting to drink wine. But it's a very refined and drinkable wine."

"It's a classic Napa Zinfandel, and they're not making much of that anymore." 🍷

King of the Red Wines

A Look at the Passion, Heritage and History of Cabernets From Around the World

Cabernet is the best-known varietal in the world, and the most popular red wine in North America. Few know Cabernets as well as California's Michael Mondavi family, the driving force behind Folio Fine Wine Partners and the Michael Mondavi Family Estate (MMFE).

"Cabernet Sauvignon is considered the king of red wines," says Rob Mondavi Jr., a co-founder of Folio and president of winemaking for MMFE. "It is a thick-skinned variety and can be grown in many parts of the world."

"Its attributes are very appealing to the consumer," he says. "It offers a beautiful balance of dark fruit aromas, texture, structure and suppleness, and can be produced in a wide and diverse range of styles. On the palate, it shows a ripe suppleness. And with all this complexity, it's no wonder that it has become 'King.'"

Michael Mondavi founded Folio in 2004 with his wife, Isabel, and children Rob and Dina. According to the elder Mondavi, his inspiration was a vision "that the best wines in the world would come from producers that are family-owned and operated, [and] a steadfast belief that in every wine we represented would be the unique essence of the land each family stewards."

Folio today represents 18 winemaking families from North America, Italy, Spain, France, Argentina and Austria.

"When the family name is on the bottle, there is passion, heritage, history, provenance, integrity and longevity," says Michael Mondavi. "Much like a guild, we wanted to provide our distributors and key trade partners the best of what the world's premiere wine regions had to offer without compromising on the marketing, sales support, PR and compliance that many small producers could not deliver."

Cabernet Sauvignon has been a Folio mainstay since the company's inception.

"The beauty of being a producer and importer is we have access to a great selection of Cabernets from around the world," says Michael Mondavi. "There are many Cabernet Sauvignons under $40 that are an excellent value from both Napa Valley and abroad. Look out for Emblem Napa Valley, Oberon from Napa County, Susana Balbo Signature or Ben Marco from Mendoza, Argentina, or Le Volte dell Ornellaia from Toscana, all from the recent 2012, 2013 and 2014 vintages."

A grape native to France ("Sauvignon" is believed to be derived from the French "sauvage," or "wild"), Cabernet Sauvignon is the result of the cross-pollination of a red Cabernet Franc grape and a white Sauvignon Blanc grape. Cabernet Sauvignon can now be found on several continents, in both hemispheres. That's a testament to the grape's durability, and ability to thrive in a number of soil types.

"One of the reasons that Cabernet Sauvignon is so popular is that the different soils and climate in which the grapes grow will impart a delicate and unique flavor from that area,” says Michael Mondavi. “Add to that the heritage and tradition of the people who make the wine, and the various regions produce their own unique style.”

Each terroir is a unique combination of environmental factors that affect a crop’s genetic profile, and lends distinctive notes to the wines.

“Terroir is the essence of the land, the air, humidity, sun exposure and geology, every potential sense of place which form the soul and essence of a wine,” says Rob Mondavi Jr. “While Cabernet Sauvignon has its varietal attributes, the diverse terroir of Napa Valley (in California) has a profound impact on the wines produced. The region offers the perfect moderate climate and dry growing season and a winemaker can harvest their grapes at their specific sites at the peak of the grape’s perfection.

“Napa showcases half the world’s soil series and multiple micro-climates, allowing us to harness the terroir and sculpt benchmark wines from our little corner of wine growing Nirvana,” he says. “In comparison to Bordeaux France, Napa Valley has more consistent vintages and produces wines that are more opulent with ripe fruit flavors versus the leaner red fruit profiles from Bordeaux.”

Mondavi’s use of the terms “har-ness” and “sculpt” is intentional. Both reflect the role of the winemaker’s skill and artistry in crafting each vintage.

“Terroir is the key influencer of Cabernet Sauvignon, yet the winemaker has substantial influence,” Rob Mondavi, Jr. says. “And the influences that the winemaker can have are limitless. We have the opportunity to ferment at varying temperatures, in different shaped fermentation tanks and vessels, and we can age in a wide choice of oak types.

“House ‘style’ is also important, and bears the signature of a winery,” he says. “It is this signature that wine enthusiasts follow. They understand that each year will tell a slightly different story, yet that story has a framework to it as well which should give confidence and excitement to the wine lover.”

That, of course, is part of the allure of enjoying fine wines. There’s a sense of adventure to it, and that adventure is open to both the beginner and the experienced wine enthusiast alike.

For the more experienced wine drinker looking for wines to cellar, many of the Cabernets produced in Napa Valley are intended to be aged in the bottle for a number of years to mature the tannins and enable the wine to gain better balance.

“Consumers who are just discovering wine should consider the more moderate priced Cabernet Sauvignon produced to be consumed while young and fresh,” said Rob Mondavi Jr. “Our family’s Emblem Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon is a contemporary, fruit-forward style, and produced in a style to be consumed while young.

“For the more experienced wine drinker looking for wines to cellar, many of the Cabernets produced in Napa Valley are intended to be aged in the bottle for a number of years to mature the tannins and enable the wine to gain better balance,” he says. “These are great wines that have given Cabernet Sauvignon its reputation but best enjoyed between 10 and 20 years of age.”

Michael Mondavi readily admits that, when it comes to Cabernets, “Napa Valley has been a favorite for four generations.”

“From Charles Krug, to Robert Mondavi, and today at Michael Mondavi Family Estate, Cabernet Sauvignon has been a cornerstone of our winemaking,” he says. “The planting of a single 15-acre vineyard Animo in the ‘90s, from which we produce two prestige Cabernet Sauvignons – Animo and M by Michael Mondavi, signaled the founding of MMFE. Both wines are the best expression of our vineyard high atop Atlas Peak.”

Internationally, Bordeaux France is the original area for growing Cabernet Sauvignon and possesses a unique style and firm finish, says Michael Mondavi. In Tuscany, Italy, the IGT “Super Tuscan” wines are primarily made with a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon with small nuances of other Bordeaux varietals and Sangiovese. For example, from Bolgheri, Ornellaia is a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot, which exhibits a definite Cabernet style but with Italian heritage and finesse. Similarly, Frescobaldi Toscana’s Mormoreto is a rich, refined Cabernet Sauvignon blended with small percentages of Cabernet Franc, Sangiovese and Petit Verdot.

“In Argentina, Cabernet is becoming an increasingly popular variety that produces wines that are full-bodied in style, brimming with fruit flavor and robust, ripe tannins,” Michael Mondavi says. “The Ben Marco Cabernet Sauvignon is sourced from high-altitude vineyards in Los Arboles, Uco Valley, Mendoza, which is known for its lean, stony soils.”

World of Wine

Not only is Cabernet Sauvignon a malleable variety with respect to environment, complementing a broad variety of foods (“I love the classics of grilled lamb, osso bucco or mushroom risotto,” Rob Mondavi Jr. says. “These dishes with their rich flavors and flavor-some proteins, match perfectly with the tannins and acidity in Cabernet to freshen the palate.”), but it also blends well with other varietals, opening an almost endless world of possibilities for both the winemaker and the wine aficionado.

“The beauty of Cabernet Sauvignon is that it’s very enjoyable alone, but also can be complemented by other renowned varieties such as Merlot, which will soften and make for a more delicate palate,” Michael Mondavi says. “Cabernet Franc will give the wine more structure and backbone, and Petit Verdot gives a wonderful high aromatic to the wine.”

Some of Michael Mondavi’s recommended Cabernet blends include Bolgheri’s Le Volte dell’Ornellaia – a combination of Merlot, Sangiovese and Cabernet Sauvignon from southern Tuscany – Frescobaldi Toscana’s Terre More dell’Ammiraglia – a complex merger of Cabernet Sauvignon with nuances of Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Syrah, and the Susana Balbo Signature Briosio – a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Malbec, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot from Mendoza Argentina.

“All wines here have the structure and complexity of Cabernet Sauvignon, made in a style that reflects the region and winemaker’s influence,” Michael Mondavi says.

Which is exactly what you’d expect from the king of red wines. 🍷

Continuing the Tradition

Bourbon a Family Affair for Jim Beam Master Distiller

Bourbon, often referred to as “America’s native spirit,” has a cultural significance that is undeniable: it’s co-starred in countless westerns, stands at the center of generations of southern legends – both mythical and real – and carries with it a unique sense of cool that transcends its simple elements.

But to Jim Beam Master Distiller Fred Noe, it remains very much a family affair.

Noe, the great-grandson of James Beauregard “Jim” Beam, is the seventh generation to play a role in the family business. The brand traces its lineage back to 1795, when Jacob Beam sold the first barrels of his whiskey, then known as Old Tub. Fathers passed the business along to sons, until James Beauregard Beam took control. He managed the business until Prohibition put a halt to things in 1920. When the Volstead Act was repealed in 1933, Jim Beam went back to work, renovating and rebuilding the Clermont, Kentucky distillery in just 120 days. This was the business, and the family, Fred Noe was born into.

“I used to follow my dad around the distillery when I was a little boy,” Noe says of tagging along behind his father, Booker Noe. “He’d explain what was going on and I’d ask questions. I learned the business over the years. I guess it was on-the-job training.”

Though there’s a parent company

Master Distiller Fred Noe

now (Jim Beam was purchased by Suntory in 2014), that authenticity is what has helped Jim Beam become the #1 selling bourbon in the world, Noe says. A visit to the Jim Beam American Stillhouse in Clermont, Kentucky drives that philosophy home. A replica of a 1940s stillhouse it includes a staircase from one of the original structures. The large, gray building stands alongside rackhouses, limestone water wells, bottling lines and tasting rooms. Next door, visitors can sample bourbon-inspired fare at Fred’s Smokehouse, a counter service café overlooking the rolling Kentucky foothills.

“One of the main things is our legacy and our family,” he says. “Someone from the Beam family has been at the helm since that day in 1795. Recipes have been passed down from generation to generation and our family is proud to carry on that tradition. That’s something we have that no one else in the industry has.”

Even the yeast used in the bourbon is started from a strain crafted by Jim Beam himself just after prohibition was repealed, and is propagated today.

“It’s a family heirloom,” Noe says from his office in the T. Jeremiah Beam building on the grounds of the distillery in Kentucky.

Another legacy passed from Booker to Fred is the accumulation of knowledge amassed from generations in the stillhouse.

“He always told me to be truthful – be honest,” Noe says. “Treat people like you want to be treated and when you meet customers, treat those people nice. That, and make the best bourbon you can. Don’t make stuff you wouldn’t drink yourself. Make stuff you’d be proud to serve to your family and friends.”

That roster of offerings includes a number of different permutations. Among them:

Jim Beam White Label is the brand's flagship, aged four years and bottled at 80 proof. As the original, it's medium bodied and mellow with hints of caramel and vanilla.

Jim Beam Devil's Cut is created from liquid extracted from inside the barrel wood. It has a deep charred aroma with a full-bodied, intense oak flavor and vanilla notes.

Jim Beam Apple retains a traditional bourbon core. It opens with green apple aroma and offers the taste of apples and subtle oak undertones.

Jim Beam Double Oak is aged in charred American white oak barrels, and then aged again in freshly charred barrels to mature for a second time. The process imparts a deeper level of oakiness and rich caramel.

Jim Beam Rye is a pre-prohibition style whiskey. Made from one of the Beam family's oldest recipes, it has notes of rye spiciness with rich, oak smoke and spicy yet sweet flavors of caramel.

Noe leans toward the Jim Beam Black Label – aged eight years and bottled at 86 proof – and Booker's Bourbon – a small batch cask-strength bourbon named for his late father and bottled uncut and unfiltered at between 121 and 130 proof.

"The Booker's, Knob Creek, Basil Hayden – they're all doing really well,"

Noe says. "People want to drink less, but drink better, and that's where the premiumization is really driving the bourbon category now. But I always tell people to drink it any way they like. The main thing is to get it to a strength that's pleasing to the palate. You can add water or mix it with a soft drink in a highball – the main thing is to get it to a pleasant strength. If you taste a bourbon and make a face, it's too strong and you need to cut it down. If someone gives you a shot in a shot glass and it's a little strong for your palate or a bit hotter than you

The Jim Beam American Stillhouse is a combination of tasting room, information center, café, merchandise store and history museum.

The Distiller's Craft

MAKING WHISKEY WITH MILA

Mila Kunis

THE JOB OF MASTER DISTILLER HAS CHANGED OVER THE YEARS, says Fred Noe. Where previously it meant primarily overseeing the distillery and managing the business, it now also includes public appearances, a great deal of travel and on occasion, rubbing elbows with celebrities.

Jim Beam's most recent and notable spokesperson is Mila Kunis. When the actress, known for her work on the TV series, "That 70s Show," and many films, such as "Black Swan," "Bad Moms" and "Oz the Great and Powerful," arrived to shoot several TV spots, the two instantly hit it off.

"Mila was a great spokesperson and still is great for us because she is amazing," Noe says. "And it's worldwide. She's got a lot of popularity in Australia and Germany, and she's brought women to Jim Beam. She's an actress girls like, as well as the guys. A lot of people comment on the commercials, saying that she's like the girl next door. Someone everyone would like to hang out with. We've had a lot of positive feedback on the commercials."

Kunis traveled to Kentucky and upon arrival, began asking questions about bourbon – how it's made, how it's aged and all about the company's history.

"She got into it," Noe says. "She's been a great partner."

were expecting, it might turn you off and you may never drink bourbon again. Make it pleasant and acquire a taste for it."

Two years ago, the company unveiled a statue of James B. Beam, the man who shepherded the business out of Prohibition and into industry prominence. The work features Beam in a 1920s suit, coat, necktie and suspenders, looking every inch the Southern gentleman. The bronze Beam is raising a glass of bourbon as he motions to the stillhouse behind him, which brings it all full circle. Family remains part of the conversation whenever Fred Noe discusses the business and his legacy.

"My proudest moment was when my picture was added to the side panel of the Jim Beam white label bottles with the other six generations of my family who ran the business before me," he says. "It was good to see my picture beside my father on bottles of Jim Beam that get shipped all around the world. When they actually did it, when the first labels came out, it was something I was never expecting. You never expect that kind of thing. You think that maybe they'll do it when you've passed away, but when they do it when you're still alive – it was a hell of an honor for me." ☞

Success Through Teamwork

New Nashua Outlet is the State's Largest

Moving from a relatively small store to one that's nearly five times that size could be a daunting challenge for some retail managers. Chad Gibson saw opportunity.

Gibson, store manager at the newly opened New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlet at 294 Daniel Webster Highway, has worked for the New Hampshire Liquor Commission for 13 years in stores of all sizes. None, however, approach the size of what is now the largest Outlet in the state.

"When you're in a smaller store, you can control more things, whereas in a larger store you have to rely on your team a lot more," Gibson says.

Luckily, that's a strength for this 33-year-old Nashua native, who oversees the 37,000-square-foot store just north of the Pheasant Lane Mall.

"That's one of the biggest things we've realized through all of this," he says. "It doesn't matter how many superstars you have on your staff – you have to have a team that can work together and be cohesive. You develop everybody's skills and once you know those strengths and figure out where people excel, you can work toward creating a unified team."

Leading that team of 59 employees are Gibson and the store's full-timers, David Swisher, Jay Hinch, Julius Denitto and Jennifer Merlin.

"It's one of those jobs that always changes and there's always more to learn," Gibson says. "I think that's what attracted me to it, to be honest – the constant evolution of learning."

A tour of the store reveals just how much easier and pleasant the shopping experience is at the new Nashua location. Nine registers stretch out across the wide, bright entry, with accessory shelves displaying special items, gift sets, mixing supplies and special items across the front-end. Wider aisles packed with endless brands and styles of wine (to the right) and spirits (to the left) provide an extensive selection. A wine chiller stands at the back of the store just to the left of a display case holding high-end Scotch and spirits, and an eye-catching climate-controlled wine vault provides customers with highly-sought after options.

“We had someone come in looking for a lot of the Armand de Brignac,” Gibson says. “Now we have room to have those types of products for people. We’re getting people who shop more and can buy more exclusive items.”

Wine manager Jay Hinch, who has an affinity with numbers, makes a few quick calculations and estimates that during the move from the old store less than a half-mile away, to the new store, 340 pallets of stock were trucked-in, with more than 600,000 pounds of product.

“We generally had a huge whiskey-Scotch-bourbon-Irish whiskey clientele,” Hinch says. “But we didn’t have the real estate to carry the wide selection we wanted. Now that we’re here, we can organize and set it up the way we want and to better serve our clientele. Having this much room allows you to enjoy what you’re doing – to look around and not have to side-step people all the time.”

Perhaps most unique, however, is the Learning Center at the back of the store. Several rows of tables face a display counter with a sink, a wine chiller and even a retractable screen. Whiskey barrels stand by the soundproof glass wall and framed maps across the back of the room outline specific wine regions throughout the world. The room will be used for wine tastings, employee training and spirits events.

“This is something you won’t see in any other store,” Hinch says.

The uncommon and unique aspects particular to the store give the team a sense of pride, which is something Gibson hoped to see in his staff.

“If there’s a passion behind something, it seems to show, especially in our interaction with customers,” he says. “We have specific people who are unbelievable in certain areas – and when they’re in those sections they really shine.”

“We like to develop people,” Gibson continues. “Give them more knowledge and train them with different skill sets. Most people come in here and they know the basics, but by the time they leave here they know the difference between 10 different wines that they hadn’t even heard of before. We like to broaden people’s palates and horizons, too. Like Jay said, we really like to teach people. At the end of the day, this is one of those businesses where you’re constantly learning and constantly teaching.” 🍷

AGED RUM

Uniquely different from other rums because Barceló Añejo is made from the fermented juice of the sugar cane and not from molasses.

Aged up to 4 years in American bourbon oak barrels.

Golden, amber color. Woody aromas of butterscotch and toffee with flavors of vanilla bean, caramel and mild spices.

A rich, flavorful rum.

SUPREME QUALITY

Enjoy responsibly.

THE SPIRIT OF OUR BARRELS, SKILLFULLY CRAFTED.

JAMESON THE COOPER'S CROZE, a whiskey curated by 5th generation Head Cooper, Ger Buckley, showcases the diversity of barrels at the Midleton distillery and the profound flavor that wood yields.

Its namesake – the Croze is a tool used for making the groove into which the head of the cask or barrel is positioned.

Using virgin American oak, seasoned bourbon and Iberian sherry barrels, The Cooper's Croze is a perfect illustration of oak's influence on a whiskey's character. This non-chill filtered whiskey effortlessly carries vanilla sweetness, rich fruit flavors and a fine balance of floral and spice notes.

“You Can Take Whiskey Out Of Wood But You Can Never Take The Wood Out Of Whiskey”

— GER BUCKLEY, HEAD COOPER

Smoky Quartz a Granite State Gem

Great ideas can come at unexpected times. For Kevin Kurland, owner-manager of Smoky Quartz Distillery, inspiration struck during a mortar attack on the Baghdad International Airport.

Kurland – a member of the New Hampshire Air National Guard – was on his second tour of duty working in intelligence and overseeing anything coming in and out of the area, when an alarm signaled an incoming attack.

"It was the first half of that deployment in 2008, and the insurgency was still relatively strong in the Baghdad region," Kurland says from the much quieter environs of his Seabrook distillery. "About once a week or more we'd get a rocket or mortar barrage on the airfield. When that happens, you put on your helmet and your gear and basically, you're stuck wherever you are."

Kurland took shelter and hunkered down with a copy of the Wall Street Journal someone had left lying around. An article in that issue said that craft distilleries were expected to take off in the coming years. At that moment, Kurland knew what he was going to do when his tour was up.

"I had no experience," Kurland says. "I just went and started buying equipment, making phone calls and doing research."

Appropriately for this veteran and father of three, Smoky Quartz (named for the New Hampshire state gemstone) moved into its Lafayette Road location on July 4, 2013.

"It was one big empty room when we got here," he says. "Everything you see here we did ourselves." All of the work was completed by Kurland, his family and close friends.

"There are five vets – me, my dad, my brother, my uncle and my stepfather," Kurland says. "It's definitely a family business. I'm the name on the paper, but if it wasn't for family, I wouldn't be open now, that's for sure."

The results of that teamwork are immediately obvious. An eye-catching, well-kept exterior right on Route-1 near the Hampton Falls line leads to a welcoming, comfortable tasting room. Reclaimed wood from a barn built in 1850 lines the walls; a chalkboard with events written on it came from an old schoolhouse undergoing renovations in Pittsfield and whiskey barrels hold up the well-worn bar top. A door leads visitors into the distillery itself, where a large, shiny still of Kurland's own design sits alongside Northern Wisconsin White Oak barrels and a 1953 Yankee cook kettle serving as a mash tun. It's here that Smoky Quartz's spirits are crafted.

The Smoky Quartz V5 Bourbon (named for the five veterans in the family), is a small batch whiskey aged in 15 gallon white oak barrels and bottled at 90 proof. It's sweet, flavorful and has a long, warm finish. The company's flagship, it garnered Kurland the 2016 American Craft Spirit Association's Silver Medal.

"I just wanted to keep it simple," Kurland says. "There's no malt in it – it's 100 percent corn. I call it a very simple whiskey. You're not going to get overly complex. It's a very balanced whiskey. There's a nice balance between the sweet and the heat, and at the back of the throat you get a nice warmth with no burn to it."

The Solid Granite Vodka is created with corn grown within 125 miles of the distillery. As a result, Kurland says, it's not the vodka most people have become accustomed to.

"It's eastern European style so it's got a lot of body and a lot of character," he says. "It's very smooth, but when people taste it, they'll find that it's sweet on the tongue and it has a nice mouthfeel. It's just different. It's a freezer vodka. It makes a great lemon-drop martini with a lighter taste – great for a vodka-tonic or a vodka-soda or a gimlet. You'll just want it served ice, ice cold."

The Granite Lightning Moonshine is Kurland's unaged whiskey, which is unlike other similar products. No extra sugar is added, and he uses Monadnock Springs water, which results in a much higher-quality version of the spirit.

"Tap water and filtered tap water doesn't have the flavor or the body to carry a spirit," he says. "I try to use top grade ingredients. I use the best corn I can get. I use the best water I can get. Even the glass – I'm using top-shelf glass, and it's pricey. I could get cheap, Chinese glass for 20 cents a bottle, but this is $1.60 a bottle. It's not cheap glass."

While Kurland suggests trying his moonshine in a Moon-a-Rita (substitute Granite Lightning for tequila), a visit to the distillery during the colder months provides visitors with a creative use.

"I always have a crock pot of hot mulled cider in here all the time," he says. "Add some cinnamon sticks, a little vanilla, a little brown sugar and nutmeg – you get a hot mug of that, put a shot of Granite Lightning in there, and it makes it really, really nice."

While there have been a few slight changes in recipes and processes, it's all come together nicely for the seacoast distiller.

"There was a lot of trial and error, but New Hampshire has been a great state to open a business in because the New Hampshire Liquor Commission is so open to home-grown businesses," he says. "Mark Roy and everyone at the Commission office in Concord – they're all awesome to work with." 🍷

Carefree Holiday Entertaining

The perfect recipe for holiday entertaining goes like this: do less and enjoy more.

Why spend time in the kitchen when you can spend it with friends and family? Banish long days of cooking for each and every occasion. The trick is knowing when to cook and when to fall back on convenience.

With all the options open to us now, we no longer should feel obligated to make everything homemade. My advice: cook the turkey, and buy the pies, scalloped potatoes and sides from local shops. In my village, you can order and pick up on the day all sorts of holiday menu fixings from a local café.

And keep it simple, as well, with the drinks on the menu. Choose this recipe for a “house cocktail” and serve red and white wines with dinner.

Cranberry Prosecco Sparkler Serves 1

- 1 ounce unsweetened cranberry juice
- 1 sugar cube

Top with a dry Prosecco

Put the sugar cube into a champagne or wine glass, pour in the cranberry juice, then top with Prosecco. The sugar cube will add more bubbles and make it a fun experience to drink.

Christmas and Hanukkah offer the freedom to put together a restaurant take-out mix-and-match buffet for family or friends. Order a spinach pie from a Greek restaurant, dumplings and dim sum from a Chinese restaurant, sushi from a Japanese restaurant and dips and chips from a Mexican restaurant. Send the spouse out to do the pick-ups - done.

Just because it's convenient doesn't necessarily mean it can't be elegant. Think shrimp scampi from an Italian restaurant and a glorious cake from a local bakery.

The one thing you do need to make homemade is a great house eggnog.

Eggnog Cocktail Serves 1

- 2 ice cubes
- 2 tablespoons strong, fresh coffee
- 4 ounces store-bought eggnog
- 4 ounces bourbon
- Whipped cream
- Freshly ground nutmeg

First, add ice to each glass or mug. Pour in coffee, eggnog, and bourbon. Give it a good stir. Top with whipped cream and a dusting of nutmeg.

The ultimate New Year's celebration includes a dessert buffet. Outsource this as well. Cookies, cupcakes and pastries can come from a local bakery. I love piling ice cream sandwiches in a big silver bowl over ice. Pies and cake pops are also a welcome addition. And don't forget some beautiful fruit skewers and a vase filled with candy canes for a seasonal touch.

Drinks? Always champagne or Prosecco. Have some frozen raspberries ready to drop into each glass. In addition, set up a table nearby for a cocktail do-it-yourself bar and fill it with offerings of gin, vodka, rum, bourbon, whiskey and plenty of fun things to mix them with: gourmet cherries (Luxardo Maraschino Cherries), an assortment of bitters (Peychaud's, Fee Brothers, The Bitter Truth, etc.), Filthy Brand olives, fresh cut lemon and lime slices, pickled vegetables from Tillen Farms, and various tonics and sodas.

It's all about doing less to enjoy your holiday more.
