Woodland High School's Play Production class is proud to present their fall play, "Father of the Bride."

The play is based on the novel by Edward Streeter, written by Caroline Francke and produced by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Services, Inc.

It is being directed by Janet Sakona. The cast and crew is made up of 21 performing arts students.

In "Father of the Bride" — a comedy about letting go — Stanley Banks (Giovanni Garcia) is a secure professional and family man, who learns that one of the young men he has seen occasionally about the house is about to become his son-in-law. Daughter Kay (Tori Corrales) announces the engagement out of nowhere.

Mrs. Banks (Miyah Olson) is happy for the couple, but Mr. Banks is in disbelief that his "little Girl" is now grown.

The groom-to-be, Buckley Dunstan (Luke Rioux), appears on the scene and Mr. Banks realizes that the engagement is serious. Buckley and Kay don't want a "big" wedding — just a simple affair with a few friends.

Soon things get out of hand and trouble really begins as the guest list grows larger. Add to the mix, the eccentric and overbearing Wedding Planner, Ms. Massoula (Erin Bruni).

As caterers, florists, furniture movers and dressmakers take over, Stanley is overwhelmed by the wedding plans — more specifically, the escalating cost of those plans and the Banks household is caught in turmoil. When Kay, in a fit of temper, calls off the wedding, everyone's patience snaps When all is set right with the young couple, the Banks family can only hope that Stanley pulls himself together in time to make his little girl's big day memorable for all the right reasons.

The cast also includes Emily Cardoza, Lindsey Gonzales, Lili Hernandez, Joey Hill, Raina Hughes, Macie Killough, Emma Ludovina, Tim McBride, Sofia Morales, Rayvn Reed, Legna Saca and Kim Velasquez. Members of the backstage crew are: Noah Cline, Angela Chavez, Elicia Faulk-Ladd and Tyler Rogers.

Father of the Bride plays at 7 p.m., Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27, 28; and Thursday and Saturday, Nov. 2 and 4; and 5 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 29 and Nov. 5. There are no Friday performance on the second weekend due to the WHS vs. PHS football game.

Performance will take place at the WHS studio theatre. Tickets Available at the WHS Student Store and at the door.

ART

Through October: Studio 94B is featuring Vicki Osterli Rich through October. Vicki's primary medium is stained glass art. Works in this show are stained glass, fused glass and some unique kiln formed pieces. Vicki has worked in the stained glass art realm since 1975. Her art is a labor of love and Vicki describes her artistic process as "The favorite part of doing commission work is to challenge myself to design to the customer's taste, which may be different from my own. I like working with people to enhance their environments. People often find that once you have lived with stained glass, it is hard to live without." In viewing Vicki's commissioned art portfolio, you can see as an artist the very developed communication skills in the truly varied and elegant body of commissioned work that has been produced for the collections of her patrons. Vicki is also a resident artist of Studio 94 B and among the co-founding owners. Please join us for the opening reception for "Second Saturday" on Oct. 14, from 5:30 – 8:30 p.m. Studio 94 B is located adjacent to Watts Woodland Airport and the Yolo Flier's club at 17992 County Road 94B.

AUTHOR EVENTS and BOOKS

Friday, Oct. 20: 7:30 p.m. The Avid Reader welcomes back Davis' own award-winning author, Catriona McPherson for a reading, discussion and signing of her sixth psychological thriller, "House. Tree. Person." In a starred review, Kirkus writes, "McPherson is a master of creating psychological tension and doubts about the motives of her characters . . . the clever way McPherson reveals each hint of the truth makes this a one-sitting read."

A year ago, she was happily married, running her beauty salon, raising her son, living in her dream house. Now, Ali McGovern's dreams are slipping away and all her old ghosts are rising. A job at Howell Hall, the private psychiatric facility nearby, seems too good to be true. Why have they employed her? How can they afford her? And what are they hiding? When a body is discovered in a shallow grave on Ali's first day at work, it feels like one last horror. But it's just the beginning of her descent into a nightmare world she never imagined existed, far too close to home. The Avid Reader is located at 617 Second

Northern masters: 'MasterChef Canada' gives a hit show distinct flair

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

Michael Bonacini, Alvin Leung and Claudio Aprile in "MasterChef Canada"

Been watching the latest season of "MasterChef?" Don't worry — new episodes of the Gordon Ramsay-headlined hit cooking show haven't snuck onto TV screens while you weren't looking, but its more northerly sibling might have creeped in under the radar.

This past spring's season of "MasterChef Canada" premiered south of the Canada-U.S. border with back-to-back episodes last week and continues to air Tuesdays on Cooking Channel. As with previous seasons of the Canadian version of the hit series, Cooking Channel is broadcasting the show a few months after it wrapped up in its home country, with a new episode airing Tuesday, Oct. 17.

But what's different about the Canadian version of "MasterChef?" Well, not much — but also a lot. The basic trappings are all the same: A group of talented home cooks with dreams of careers in the culinary world take part in a series of challenges under the watchful gaze of three knowledgeable judges — chefs Claudio Aprile, Michael Bonacini and Alvin Leung in this version. Week after week, the weakest performer is eliminated, until the sole remaining home cook wins the "MasterChef" title and a nice heap of cash. Like its American parent, "MasterChef Canada" has team, mystery box, elimination and pressure test challenges, and the kitchen itself even has a very similar look and feel.

The big difference, though, is in the tone. Ramsay has a notoriously bad temper, and while he definitely tones it down for "MasterChef" — these are amateurs, after all, not trained chefs — the threat of one of his outbursts always looms. True to stereotype, the Canadian judges are just so much nicer, with their criticisms always accompanied by advice.

Of course, the show also has a healthy dose of Canadian culture. In this week's episode, the season's first team challenge celebrates Canada's 150th birthday by challenging the home cooks to prepare a meal for 150 new Canadians who have just had their citizenship ceremony — what a way to say "welcome home!"

And that's really "MasterChef Canada" in a nutshell: It's "MasterChef," but with some softer edges and a slightly different coat of paint. The fourth season of the northern hit airs Tuesdays on Cooking Channel.

Two cookies to satisfy your sweet tooth

By Susanna Gaertner
Santa Cruz Sentinel

Spanning the gamut from simple to sublime, snickerdoodles and chocolate meringues are about as far apart as it is possible to get in the cookie universe. One is hearty, sugary simplicity itself, the other a decadent fluff of spun chocolate melting suavely on the tongue. The snickerdoodle recipe comes from the mid-'60s edition of the Betty Crocker Cookbook via my friend Pete O. The double chocolate meringue is one of the fabulous deserts prepared by Chef Justin Macy at the Miraval Resort & Spa. My thanks to his team for adjusting the recipe to fit a home kitchen.

I'm offering these recipes from the two ends of the cookie spectrum because both contain few ingredients and, while the taste of each finished cookie is pleasingly complex, the process of making them is not.

SNICKERDOODLES

Ingredients

1 cup butter, room temperature
1 ¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
2 ¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Directions

1: Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.

2: In a large bowl cream together butter sugar and eggs. In a separate bowl sift together flour, cream of tartar, baking soda, and salt; add dry ingredients to wet.

3: Mix 2 tablespoons of the sugar and cinnamon.

4: Shape dough into 1-inch balls and roll in

California study: Pets don't improve kids' health

By Tracy Seipel
Bay Area News Group

Contrary to popular belief, having a dog or cat in the home does not improve the mental or physical health of children, according to a new RAND Corporation study.

The findings, published online by the journal Anthrozoos, are from the largest-ever study to explore the belief that pets can improve children's health by increasing physical activity and strengthen young people's empathy skills.

"We could not find evidence that children from families with dogs or cats are better off either in terms of their mental well-being or their physical health," Layla Parast, a co-author of the study and a statistician at RAND, a nonprofit research organization.

"Everyone on the research team was surprised — we all have or grew up with dogs and cats. We had essentially assumed from our own personal experiences that there was a connection."

The study analyzed information from more than 2,200 children who lived in pet-owning households in California and compared them to about 3,000 households without a dog or cat. The information was collected as a part of the 2003 California Health Interview Survey, an annual survey that for one year also asked participants about whether they had pets, along with many other health questions.

Researchers did find that children from pet-owning families tended to have better general health, have slightly higher weight and were more likely to be physically active compared to children whose families did not have pets. In addition, children who had pets were more likely to have Attention Deficit Disorder/Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, were more likely to be obedient and were less likely to have parents concerned about their child's feelings, mood, behavior and learning ability.

But when researchers adjusted the findings to account for other variables that might be associated with both the likelihood that a family has a pet and the child's health, the association between pet ownership and better health disappeared.

Overall, researchers considered more than 100 variables in adjusting their model of pet ownership and health, including family income, language skills and type of family housing.

sugar/cinnamon mixture.

5: Place 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheet and bake for 8-10 minutes. Cookies will puff up at first, then flatten out.

NOTE: This recipe is for six dozen, so it's easy enough to halve the recipe but this is a huge load of cookies for a small cost in time and ingredients.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE MERINGUES

Ingredients

2 cups powdered sugar
¼ cups unsweetened cocoa powder
5 egg whites
¼ cups semi-sweet mini chocolate chips

Directions

1: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line a baking sheet with parchment and lightly coat with nonstick cooking spray.

2: Sift the powdered sugar and cocoa powder into separate bowl and set aside.

3: In a stand mixer whip the egg whites until soft peaks form. Slowly add the powdered sugar, a half cup at a time: slowly is the operative term as you don't want to deflate the egg whites. Now add the cocoa powder at low speed. Remove from stand and fold in chocolate chips using a rubber spatula.

4: Transfer batter to a piping bag (no tip needed). You can also use a large zip-top plastic bag with one corner snipped off. Pipe out quarter-sized mounds of batter and bake for 12-15 minutes until the cookies are puffed to about double their size and a crisp shell has formed on top. They should release easily from the parchment.

5: Depending on your altitude — as in geographic elevation — and the vicissitudes of your oven, the perfect meringue may require some fine-tuning. But it will be so

Time-traveling 'Legends': CW superhero drama does time jumping right

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

TIME-TRAVELING 'LEGENDS'» Time travel is always tricky to get right on screen. It can be confusing for audiences to keep track of parallel timelines and reality-shaking paradoxes, but that hasn't stopped networks from trying to nail down that elusive timeline-hopping series that can keep audiences engaged.

Well, CW seems to have done it. "DC's Legends of Tomorrow" has two successful seasons behind it, and its third premiered last week, with another new episode airing Tuesday, Oct. 17.

It's a time-traveling series with a superhero twist. Set in CW's "Arrowverse," the shared universe that also includes "Arrow," "The Flash" and "Supergirl," "Legends" follows the adventures of a group of time-traveling superheroes who are trying to protect the timeline from nefarious forces intent on twisting it for their own ends.

As this season's premiere made all too clear, the actions of the Legends last season have shattered time itself. In response, Rip Hunter (Arthur Darvill, "Doctor Who"), the Time Master who recruited the superheroes to his team in the first place, has created a new organization, the Time Bureau, to set things right again — a course of action that puts him into direct conflict with the Legends.

Of course, all of the series' main stars are back as well. Brandon Routh ("Superman Returns," 2006), Caity Lotz ("Mad Men"), Victor Garber ("Argo," 2012), Franz Drameh ("Attack the Block," 2011), Amy Pemberton ("Doctors"), Dominic Purcell ("Prison Break") and Wentworth Miller ("Prison Break") all return as part of the ensemble cast of superheroes fighting to protect the Earth — not only today's Earth, but also yesterday's and tomorrow's.

Arthur Darvill stars in "DC's Legends of Tomorrow"

This season of "Legends" also promises to have a crossover that will span the Arrowverse, something that's become an annual tradition for the various shows in the shared universe. One big event is set to occur across all four Arrowverse series, with characters jumping between shows, and consequences that could reverberate throughout the entire franchise.

Strap yourself in — time travel is rarely a smooth ride. "DC's Legends of Tomorrow's" third season airs Tuesdays on CW.

HIGHLY 'RAIDED'» Relax, "Vikings" fans. The show isn't going away anytime soon. The hit historical epic was recently renewed for a sixth season, but first it needs to share its fifth.

There's only a short wait until season 5 Wednesday, Nov. 29, on History, and by then, production on the next season will already have begun in Ireland.

Details on that sixth season are scarce so far — understandably so, since the fifth hasn't even aired yet — but one tidbit that has leaked out is that star Katheryn Winnick ("Bones"), who plays legendary shieldmaiden Lagertha, will be making her directorial debut for one of the season's episodes.

As for the much-closer fifth season, two newcomers have joined the cast and will be popping up on the screen. Adam Copeland ("Haven"), who's probably better known by his professional wrestling ring name Edge, and Kris Holden-Ried ("Lost Girl") both bring their talents to the historical epic.

"Vikings," a favorite with audiences and critics alike, is a joint Canadian/Irish production that's found love on a global scale. Its Canadian talent has brought home a broad swath of awards and accolades, including eight Canadian Screen Awards. Pretty impressive for a show about history — but what an era of history it is. "Vikings" is inspired by the Norse sagas of the legendary Ragnar Lothbrok and other heroes as they fight, pillage and conquer their way across England and France.

Season 6 of "Vikings" is already in the works, but season 5 hasn't even begun yet. Catch that fifth season's premiere when it arrives in late November.

REINVENTING LAMARR» Diane Kruger has joined a project to return one of the 20th century's most fascinating actresses to the screen. The "Inglorious Basterds" (2009) star has joined a project from Straight Up Films that's in the early stages of coming together: a miniseries adaptation of the biography "Hedy's Folly: The Life and Breakthrough Inventions of Hedy Lamarr, The Most Beautiful Woman in the World." The potential miniseries is still very early in development, and doesn't yet have a date or network attached to it.

Hedy Lamarr was a film sensation in the 1930s and 1940s, starring in "Algiers" (1938) and "Comrade X" (1940), among other silver screen hits, but it was her activities outside of the film studios that history most remembers.

In an era when women were typically consigned to specific fields of work, Lamarr refused to let established gender norms restrict her natural inventiveness. Her most notable invention was patented in 1942: a system that would allow the radio signals of torpedoes to signal-hop, thus protecting the signals from being jammed by enemy warships.

Seeing Walt Disney World from the outside in 'The Florida Project'

By Bob Strauss
Los Angeles News Group

A24

Most people who go to Walt Disney World and other Orlando theme parks would never dream of staying at The Magic Castle. They probably wouldn't find a room anyway at the hot pink roadside inn if they tried, seeing as how its cheap lodging has become home to various down-on-their-luck residents.

And vacationers aren't likely to want to rub shoulders with the strippers, waffle restaurant waitresses and their unruly kids who stay there week-by-week, stretching into months and, for some, years. But Sean Baker really wanted to get to know these folks and – as the filmmaker did with young Valley porn actresses in "Starlet" and transgender prostitutes on Santa Monica Blvd. in "Tangerine" – he's made an empathetic and really quite magnificent movie about them, "The Florida Project."

As he's tended to do throughout his career, Baker mixed professional actors such as Willem Dafoe and the then six-year-old dynamo of adorable destructiveness Brooklynn Prince, incredibly talented first-timers like Instagram discovery Bria Vinaite and some actual residents of the budget motels for this, well, project, which was named after what Walt Disney and his engineers initially called their Florida park venture.

Baker's longtime writing partner Chris Bergoch, a Disney World fan whose mother lives nearby, began bringing his observations about the local motel residents to the director six years ago. He and Baker were particularly taken with the poor but fun-loving, hellraising young children who were determined to enjoy their childhoods any way they could. To Baker, they seemed the perfect subjects for the updated Little Rascals movie he'd been contemplating.

And it is a very R-rated version of that. But "Florida Project" also tells the much wider story that Baker and Bergoch uncovered in their person-to-person research.

"We made trips to Florida and did what we essentially did with 'Tangerine'; talk to residents, local business owners, motel managers – that's basically how Willem's Bobby character was inspired – and of course, agencies that are dealing with the social services for these folks," Baker explains.

At least five indelible main characters and dozens more memorable ones came out of that. First, there's the kids: Ringleader Moonee, played by Prince, a Central Florida actor who's been working professionally since the age of three; her downstairs neighbor Scooty, whose portrayer Christopher Rivera was actually living in a Route 192 motel at the time he was cast; and Jancey, whom Moonee and Scooty became fast friends with after spitting all over her grandma's car at a nearby motel (she's played by newcomer Valeria Cotto, whom Baker spotted at a Kissimmee, Fla. Target store).

"I realized that I basically cast three extroverts," Baker soon discovered. "They weren't in any way intimidated, they weren't embarrassed, they were just having fun. That helped so much, and little Brooklynn, I've gotta say, she's as professional and as skilled as any actor I've ever worked with, of any age."

"I don't spit on cars or eat lots of ice cream," Prince, now seven, says of some really fun stuff she got away with making the movie. Her mom, an agent and acting coach, doesn't let her say many of the bad words Moonee spouts in the movie either, but – complete professional that she is – Prince modestly thanks a reporter who tells her she cusses very well.

Cotto's casting was nothing compared to how Baker found Vinaite. The tattoed, Lithuania-born New Yorker is an ever-exploding firecracker playing the character of Moonee's single mom Halley, a sometimes stripper/prostitute and full-time scam artist who's almost as immature, and as full of zest, as the daughter she loves in her own peculiar way.

"We had a much bigger budget than in the past, so there was a responsibility to my financiers," Baker notes. "So we went down the conventional route of trying to cast this character with an A-Lister. If you think about any 20 to 24-year-old in Hollywood, we thought about all those names.

"But I kept going back to this Instagram girl I had found completely by accident," he admits. "It wasn't like I was following her, somebody reposted something of Bria's and it made me laugh. She was carefree, she had the physicality with all those tats. And I could see how confident she is, just doing those little six-second videos. I knew she'd be able to pull this off – with some work and a crash course in acting. So I DM her; she thinks I'm a stalker. But she finally Googled me, figured I was OK, came to Orlando and hung out with the kids. It was exactly what I was looking for."

Vinaite, who designs her own clothing line called ChroniCal NYC, was briefly living in Miami and feeling bored when she started Instagramming.

"I would just make these videos, dancing around and being weird," Vinaite, who is as demure and polite as Halley is raucous and confrontational, says. "I never thought anything past that. It was just self-expression, a way to get over my boredom and talk to people. I never would have imagined it went from that to this."

Vinaite did take that acting crash course upon arriving in Orlando some weeks before shooting commenced last summer. She also hit it off instantly with Prince; they still hug and kiss each other frequently whenever they're together, a year after making the movie.

As for Dafoe, the actor's actor plays Bobby as constantly harried by the likes of Halley and the kids – and totally devoted to their well-being in whatever limited capacity he can provide.

"In research, I talked to some people that had this kind of job and this kind of life," Dafoe ("Spider-Man," "The Last Temptation of Christ," "Platoon" and over 100 more) says. "One of the biggest things that I took away from that was that he was very proud of his job. And he was very proud that he made the motel a better place than it was."

Dafoe refrained from imparting Thespic Wisdom to the newer actors, and Vinaite, for one, appreciated the respectful support that he showed her. As for the little monsters, though . . .

"There were parallels" to the movie, Dafoe confirms with his trademark demonic grin. "Sean, in order to let them feel free and not self-conscious about acting, encouraged [the children] to have fun and, also, be a little devilish. So they'd get cranked up the way kids do, plus they had all of the attention of the film crew on them, a built-in audience.

"It's true I love those kids, but they were sometimes a real pain," Dafoe concludes. "That just made my job easier, because there was so much reality."

Always Something to Celebrate!

THANK YOU LETTERS

We are grateful... and in need of CASA volunteers

We are full of gratitude because on Sept. 17, we hosted our most successful dinner and auction yet, thanks to our generous community members. All proceeds will go toward training Court Appointed Special Advocates for foster children to provide them with consistent and stable relationships, and ensure that their voices are heard and their needs are met in the dependency system.

John Martin and Rafael Galiano again donated the use of their beautiful venue at Park Winters to Yolo County CASA's annual dinner and auction, but the generosity didn't stop there. Knowing that Yolo County CASA relies on private philanthropy and grants to survive, individuals and organizations from all over Yolo County came together to transform the lives of foster children.

Sponsors for the evening included Jim and Georgia Corbett, Christopher and Sharon Steele, Kathy and Henry Thornhill, First Northern Bank, Greiner Heating and Air, Sandy and Bob Lorber, Richard Mandelaris, DMD, Nugget Markets, Syar Foundation, Sutter Health, Diane Makley, Van Dermyden Maddux Law Firm, Odd Fellows Lodge #169, Rebekah Lodge #253, Davis Ace Hardware, Davis Food Co-Op, Yolo Federal Credit Union, and Park Winters.

This outpouring of support comes at a critical time. At the auction, I told attendees that five years ago we made a goal to provide every foster child in Yolo County with a CASA volunteer, and we are on track to meet that goal based on the number of kids who were in care then — about 250. However, what we did not know when we set our goal, is that the number of children in foster care would more than double. We are now at an all-time high of over 500 children in our dependency system, so we need to work harder than ever to reach our goal.

This was followed by the "Fund a Need" portion of the event. Inspired, the audience stepped forward. Attendees held up their bid numbers to pledge anywhere from $100 to $15,000 to aid in the recruitment, training and supervision of additional advocates to meet the growing need. Individuals also donated vacation homes and other prized possessions to the live auction on the spot.

Yolo County CASA has doubled its capacity in the past five years. To serve the current amount of children in the dependency system, it must double it again. Research has shown that children with CASAs graduate high school and attend college at higher rates, do better in school than their counterparts without CASAs, are less likely to be involved in delinquent behavior, and are more likely to be involved in their communities as adults. Equally, if not more important, we see each day the profound impact that having an unpaid CASA volunteer devoted to a foster child's well-being makes for that child. All of a sudden, the foster child does not feel alone in a system of many teachers, social workers, and legal professionals.

On the heels of the auction's success, recruiting more CASA volunteers is vitally important. As we grow our capacity to support our CASA volunteers, it is essential that we spread the word. If you've ever even had an inkling to become a CASA volunteer, we urge you to explore it further. It truly is an opportunity to completely change a child's life when they need it the most.

For more information, about the training or Yolo County CASA in general, please refer to www.yolocasa.org.

Tracy Fauver, LCSW is the executive director of Yolo County CASA

CASA holds successful fundraiser

A successful dinner and auction fundraiser was held recently for Court Appointed Special Advocates, which will be used to assist foster children to provide them with consistent and stable relationships, and ensure that their voices are heard and their needs are met in the dependency system.

John Martin and Rafael Galiano again donated the use of their beautiful venue at Park Winters to Yolo County CASA's annual dinner and auction, but the generosity didn't stop there. Knowing that Yolo County CASA relies on private philanthropy and grants to survive, individuals and organizations from all over Yolo County came together to transform the lives of foster children.

Yolo County CASA has doubled its capacity in the past five years. To serve the current amount of children in the dependency system, it must double it again.

Jim and Georgia Corbett participate in the live auction for the CASA fundraiser.
