Ke'Lee Bordeaux brings her groove back home

Time Bandits keep on playin'

By Richard Freedman
Vallejo Times-Herald

Ke'Lee Bordeaux knows the historical significance of her inclusion in The Time Bandits 10 years ago.

"They never really had a female vocalist. It was like a men's club," Bordeaux said. "I guess I was enough of a tomboy for them."

Bordeaux laughed. Yep, it's all good for the only gal in the nine-piece band with 20-year Solano County roots, mostly in Vacaville and Fairfield.

"I've been in a lot of other bands, but this is the one that's most like family," Bordeaux said. "I can trust them. I feel safe. They're all my friends. The guys would help me if I needed help. They've proven that. And they have a cute bass player."

Again, Bordeaux laughed. That would be Rob Lopez, who happens to be Bordeaux's significant other.

Throw in Bordeaux's domestic existence — a saved pooch, three cats, and a $700 one-bedroom apartment in Winters on a ranch — and life couldn't get much better.

Well, other than horrendous allergies.

"I'm smack in the middle of a farming community. The stuff I breathe is just insane," Bordeaux said. "Everything is in bloom. There was a gig where I lost my voice in the third set and ended up lip-synching."

Uh, how about the cats? "That's a good question," she giggled. "I'm going to shave them tonight."

Bordeaux takes her impressive vocals and whacky sense of humor to her hometown of Winters as the band returns for an encore performance in Winters for the 27th Annual Earthquake Festival on Main Street this Friday.

The Time Bandits, including drummer Darrell Echols Sr. (on the cover), play three area gigs in the coming weeks including Sunday at Vino Godfather in Vallejo, CreekWalk in Vacaville, and the 27th Annual Earthquake Festival in Winters.

The Festival gets underway at 5 p.m. and features fun for the entire family. It will feature local beer, wine, vendors and more. It is being sponsored by Berryessa Brewing, Preserve, Eagle Drug, Chuy's Taqueria, First Northern Bank, Steady Eddy's Marian Nut Company, Wade's Construction, Berryessa Gap Winery, Buckhorn Steakhouse, Cirarlo Ffruit and Nut, Palms Playhouse, Putah Creek Cafe, Seva Space Yoga Studio, Turkovich Family Wines and the Yolo Federal Credit Union.

"I feel so lucky to be in a band with really good musicians," Bordeaux said. "Everybody actually enjoys each other. We have tiffs now and then, but it's nothing serious. Nobody wants to be 'the star.' I want to say it's like a brotherhood, but here is a chick in there, too."

Speaking of which, why, no, it probably wouldn't be easier if the Bandits added another female to the group.

"Oh God, I don't even deal with girls. Yuck," chuckled Bordeaux. "I'm just kidding. I guess it would be cool. I would have to sing less. I do love chick drummers. I would love to be a girl drummer."

For now, she'll stick to vocals, belting out the old-school tunes that the Time Bandits are known for. There's the Temptations medley. And Earth, Wind & Fire. And Chicago.

"You take advantage of being a 'horn band' when you can," Bordeaux said.

Though five of the Time Bandit musicians are in other bands — Bordeaux and Lopez are in The Rhythm Method 4 — there's never been an accidental double-booking.

"There have been a couple of close calls, which is pretty good for one in 10 years or so," Bordeaux said.

"I've been in a lot of other bands, but this is the one that's most like family. I can trust them. I feel safe. They're all my friends."

— Ke'Lee Bordeaux

As for her career, it was always going to be music. One way or another. Take her high school days. First it was Armijo High in Fairfield, finally finishing up at the now-defunct Mary Bird Secondary Community Day School.

"I was a bad girl," Bordeaux said. "I was trying to do a lot of singing, believing 'I'll just have a job doing music all my life. I don't care about calculus.'"

Fortunately, she had the talent. At one time Bordeaux "was flying back and forth to L.A." doing background vocals for various artists, "trying to make something happen. But I didn't like the L.A. vibe."

She advanced from an audition of "American Idol" in San Francisco, but was stymied during the next level in Hollywood.

"The situation was too much for me," Bordeaux said, though pleased that the notorious Simon Cowell actually praised her talents.

Still, the stress was too much.

"I didn't sleep for three days," Bordeaux said. "It was just a lot of what I wasn't used to."

She made the top 50, but was eliminated when producers whittled the field to 45.

"Five away from being in the big part of the show," Bordeaux said.

Admittedly shy, Bordeaux said she has no problems hopping on stage and singing. It all turns uncomfortable, she said, "when there are cameras in my face. I couldn't handle it."

Singing with "The Time Bandits" and "Rhythm Method 4" is her comfort zone. And having her boyfriend in the band makes it better from all directions. Including getting to gigs.

"He has a Prius. He saves a lot on gas. And I save a lot on gas because he drives," laughed Bordeaux.

Yes, she continued, being a musician takes patience.

"Relationships with musicians are not easy," Bordeaux said. "There are a lot of things people (non-musicians) wouldn't understand. We do have that love of music."

And each other. And don't think Bordeaux doesn't notice her love muffin during a concert.

"Ladies, do not grind up on him on stage," warned Bordeaux. "I can bop your heads with a microphone."

Through August: Studio 94B welcomes back Phyllis DeHaven, photographer and collage artist. The theme of this show is images from traveling by "Train, plane and automobile" through Nevada, Colorado, Arizona, California and Utah. DeHaven travels with camera in hand, looking to capture those "once in a life-time" shots. As she puts it "each of these modes of transportation offers a different perspective, but the common denominator is the spectacular views that all provide." She and her husband have a small plane, that he pilots, a "Sting Sport." They enjoy Amtrak travel and also enjoy road trips by car. Studio 94B is located at 17992 County Road 94B. Summer hours will be posted soon. For an appointment to view the show call 400-7965, any day of the week.

Through September: September's Second Saturday at Studio 94B will feature a group show of the Creative Women's Circle. The media represented and the artist's showing are diverse in their talents and techniques. Phyllis DeHaven will be showing gourds. "Each gourd is unique and tells you what to do with it. Figuring this out is what makes it so enjoyable." Margaret Kronenberg's art will focus on horses. "My love for horses has always had a place in my heart. I love the way they sound smell and play. I like to get up close to capture details that most overlook." Karen Richardson works in fabric and quilting. "Practice makes perfect" is what you see in her quilting projects. This show features smaller quilt hangings and patterns framed for hanging. Lois Richter works in acrylics. Her work for this show has been made using a modified poured acrylic technique, which she calls "Swiped Acrylic." Joyce Winter is a prolific and talented artist and art teacher who works in a variety of media. This show features flowers and sunsets. The artist's reception is Saturday, Sept. 8, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Light appetizers will be served. Studio 94B will also be open during the month of September from noon to 4 p.m. on Sept. 7 and 8 and 14 and 15. Other times may be arranged by appointment by calling 400-7965. While Doyle-Martinez and Quintero are featured artists in the exhibition, all of the artists are high school or UC Davis students, or are local artists, community members, and UC Davis student interns who mentor workshop participants, according to Janice Purnell, YoloArts associate director. Gallery 625 is located at 625 Court St. in Woodland, in Yolo County's Erwin Meier administration building and is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and by appointment. artist. Her work has drawn both critical praise for its whimsical rustic style and national and international commercial success. Utilizing traditional techniques, her work embodies the importance of hand-made pottery in an era of disposability, while representing a new model of a functional potter in the modern era. Additionally, Davis musician and piano tuner Mike Musial will be playing live guitar music. The Clayground is located at 7 E Main St No. 7B, Winters.

Everyone at The Smith School is obsessed with Monster Mayhem, the latest reality video game craze. But when Drexel Caine, the mastermind behind the game is suddenly kidnapped, it becomes clear that the kidnappers are playing for more than just special badges. After Drexel's son — who is Abby's friend, Toby — receives a cryptic message, Abby and her friends discover the kidnapping is part of a bigger scheme that could take down The Center for good. With the help of Abby's frenemy (and reluctant mentor), Veronica Brooks, the group tackles their first official Center Mission. They tangle with the world's most notorious hacker, get in trouble for the possible theft of the Mona Lisa, and prepare for the ultimate showdown in London. But not before they have to contend with one more hurdle: the agonizing Smith School Spring Formal. Along the way, they discover they are much stronger as a team they can ever be alone. Edible art: Cupcakes look like anything but in new Food Network series

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

If you're someone who watches any of the myriad of cake-centric shows on television right now, it'll come as no surprise to hear that cakes that look uncannily like anything but desserts are so hot right now. Cakes that have been sculpted and iced to look like famous people, sports trophies, animals and cartoon characters are everywhere you look, taking "edible art" to a whole new level.

It isn't just cakes receiving this special treatment — their little cousins are getting in on the action, too, and in "Reality Cupcakes," one of the most talented cupcake artists in the country whips up little beauties that look like anything but tasty sweet confections. Beware: that may look like a juicy steak or a sushi roll on the plate, but if New York baker Ashley Foxen is in the kitchen, then diners are in for a surprise with their first bite.

In the first of this week's back-to-back episodes, airing Monday, Aug. 27, on Food Network, Foxen invites the TV cameras into her business as she bakes and decorates incredible steam-punk cupcakes for Coney Island's famous Mermaid

Ashley Foxen from "Reality Cupcakes"

Parade. Later, she decorates cupcakes to look just like miniature po'boy sandwiches that are served up at an outdoor food festival in Brooklyn.

The night's second episode finds Foxen making cupcakes for a 1950s greaser-themed party, and for an event like that there's really only one thing that the cupcakes can look like: milkshakes! Later, pretzel-shaped cakes are on the menu for a group of sports fans, and she even makes a dessert that's a rather morbid spitting image of one of the Founding Fathers.

Of course, Foxen doesn't run her business alone. In fact, it's a family affair, with her mom Denise, sister Lindsay and brother Alex all helping her create cupcakes that are capable of fooling even the closest of inspections.

Her business may be a small family-run affair, but Ashley Foxen is whipping up some of the most incredible cupcakes that New York has ever seen. Follow her and her creations in "Reality Cupcakes" on Monday evenings on Food Network.

A dog's life: fitness trackers help put fat pets on a diet

By Adam Pemble
Associated Press

PRAGUE » When Czech entrepreneur Robert Hasek began jogging with his dog, Darwin, the three-mile runs were making the bull terrier sick with fatigue.

Hasek was surprised, thinking his dog led a healthy lifestyle.

To solve the mystery, he strapped a Fitbit to Darwin and discovered he was actually only active in his presence. Otherwise, Hasek says, “he is lying, sleeping and doing nothing. He’s lazy!”

The businessman sensed an opportunity and developed one of the world’s first dog fitness trackers. His product is part of a growing industry of gadgets for pets that includes

GPS trackers, automatic feeders, ball throwing machines for dogs to fetch, and self-cleaning litter boxes for cats.

People in the U.S. will spend $72.1 billion this year on pet products and care, up 3.6 percent on the year in an industry that has grown steadily since the mid-90’s, according to the American Pet Products Association. Worldwide spending in 2017 was $109 billion dollars, according to Euromonitor International.

Hasek first sought funding on Kickstarter and then reached out to private investors. He moved to San Francisco for three months, tracked down Czech manufacturers and a customer service subcontractor.

Two years later, production and sales of the Actijoy fitness trackers have begun, with one unit costing about $300.

On top of the GPS tracking device that a variety of pet collars already offer, it tracks the intensity of the dog’s activity and comes with a internet-connected bowl that monitors food and water consumption.

It faces competition from a range of products, from the more basic fitness monitors to more advanced technologies.

The Wagz, for example, is also able to record and stream HD video from the collar. It sells for $495 apiece.

The pet bull terrier owned by Czech entrepreneur Robert Hasek, wearing a doggy fitness tracker attached to the dog collar during a demonstration in Prague, Czech Republic, Aug. 10, 2018. The Actijoy fitness tracker system not only tracks activity but also how rigorous it is, and comes with a internet-connected bowl that monitors food and water consumption, to make sure the dog has a healthy lifestyle.

That may be a lot for a collar, but some pet owners are willing to splurge. Among them are Millennials who put off having kids or decided against having any and have the extra income to spend, says Harrison Forbes, a dog trainer and pet products expert.

“Pet tech has been a hugely explosive part of the industry the past five or six years,” he said while attending the Superzoo industry conference on pet products in Las Vegas. Technology for pets has tended to follow innovations that were meant for humans and this is an example of that, he says.

Actijoy’s COO, Jana Rosenfelderova, says they are marketing these collars not only to people who have overweight pets, but also to those who want to avoid health problems in the first place.

Monitoring water consumption, for example, can reveal if a pet is drinking unusually large amounts, a sign of kidney problems or diabetes.

“Our (ideal) customer is a dog owner that wants to prevent,” she says.

RUSTICREHAB

HGTV 8:00 p.m.

David and Chenoa take a chance on a house they've only ever seen in an old picture in this new episode. As they begin renovating the home, they realize they may have gotten more than they bargained for, but not necessarily in a good way.

TRIAL & ERROR

3 KCRA 9:00 p.m.

Jesse Ray Beaumont (Michael Hitchcock) comes to Josh's (Nicholas D'Agosto) rescue with some game-changing evidence in this new episode. Meanwhile, Carol Anne (Jayma Mays) rushes to wrap up the case before her baby arrives.

SWAT.

13 KOVR 9:00 p.m.

An ex-convict holds a local family captive in this re-broadcast, and it's up to Hon-do (Shemar Moore) and S.W.A.T. to de-escalate the situation and secure the victims' safety. Elsewhere, Street (Alex Russell) lets Chris (Lina Esco) fix his dating profile.

Back again: 'Timeless' uncanceled a second time for a special finale

By Andrew Warren

TV Media

BACK AGAIN» Every show sees its end eventually — it's just an inevitability. Unfortunately, more often than not this end comes by way of cancellation. Once in a while, though, a network will take mercy on a canceled show's fans and breathe new life into it. It happened with "Nashville" and "Last Man Standing," both of which were snatched from the grave by new networks, and "Star Trek" and "Jericho" both got new seasons after a fan outcry following their cancellations. NBC's "Timeless," though, hasn't just been canceled — it's been canceled twice, and it's coming back yet again. The time-hopping sci-fi drama may have been pulled from the network's schedule, but a special two-part conclusion for the series is in the works for a holiday airing.

Since its premiere in 2016, "Timeless" has struggled to hold onto viewers for its broadcast, but it's shown surprising strength in the number of people who tune in via online streaming in the week after each episode aired. Those weak numbers had sealed the show's fate by the first season's cliffhanger ending, but three days after its cancellation, NBC reversed its decision and greenlit a second season.

The numbers just didn't pick up for the second season, and thus the second cancellation. But the surprise announcement of a two-part conclusion means that the show's story will at least come to a satisfying end.

"Timeless" stars Abigail Spencer ("Suits"), Matt Lanter ("90210") and Malcolm Barrett ("Preacher") as three experts in their respective fields who are tasked with finding and stopping a man who has stolen an experimental time machine, which he is using to alter and rewrite the country's history. Along the way, they uncover a far-reaching secret society that's interwoven all through America's past and discover that even small changes in the past can easily rewrite the future in unimaginable ways. Claudia Doumit ("How to Be a Vampire") and Sakina Jaffrey ("House of Cards") also star. "Timeless" is a rollicking good time, and while it may have been canceled — again — it's at least getting a conclusion. The two-part series send-off will air this holiday season on NBC.

TIMELESS ROMANCE» HBO has caught the time-traveling bug. The last few TV seasons have seen a number of series about time travel pop up, with "Timeless" on NBC, "Legends of Tomorrow" on CW and the short-lived "Making History" on Fox, to name just a few. Now, HBO has picked up an established property that's being adapted for television by "Sherlock" and "Doctor Who" producer Steven Moffat.

An adaptation of the acclaimed novel "The Time Traveler's Wife" has been given a direct-to-series order by HBO. The romantic tale is the story of a loving couple who have one small problem in their marriage: the husband keeps involuntarily jaunting through time.

It may sound a bit ludicrous, but it's a love story that's become a favorite for romantics around the world. A movie adaptation starring Eric Bana ("Munich," 2005) and Rachel McAdams ("Mean Girls," 2004) was released in 2009 and was a smash hit with audiences despite wishy-washy reviews from critics.

The TV adaptation is still in its earliest planning stages, with no premiere date set or casting announcements yet made. Moffat is a longtime fan of the novel, and he even wrote a "Doctor Who" episode that paid homage to it. He called the opportunity to adapt the book a "dream come true" during the announcement.

"The Time Traveler's Wife" is a classic love story with a supernatural twist, and with a direct-to-series order, it seems HBO is hoping that its popularity carries over to television.

SUPER GUEST STARS» "Supergirl" may not be coming back until Oct. 14, but guest stars aplenty have been signing up for the fourth season of the superhero series, including a visitor from the final frontier.

Brent Spiner has joined the cast in a recurring role, bringing his considerable gravitas to the role of Vice-President Baker, a character who will play a significant role in the new season. The actor is best known for playing the beloved android crew member Data in "Star Trek: The Next Generation" and in four Star Trek films, and more recently he starred in 2016's "Independence Day: Resurgence."

Other newcomers in the upcoming season include Sam Witwer ("Being Human"), who joins the cast as Agent Liberty, an anti-alien activist who runs up against Supergirl (Melissa Benoist, "Glee"); Rhona Mitra ("The Last Ship"), who takes on the role of Lex Luthor's former bodyguard Mercy Graves; and Robert Baker ("Grey's Anatomy") as Mercy's strong-armed enforcer and brother, Otis.

That's a lot of new faces for Kara/Supergirl to deal with, but hey — she's a superhero. The fourth season of "Supergirl" premieres Sunday, Oct. 14, as part of CW's exciting new Sunday night lineup.

'Crazy Rich Asians' hoopla elicits mixed feelings in Asia

By Derek Cai
Associated Press

SINGAPORE » The craze for "Crazy Rich Asians" is hitting Asia, with a premiere in Singapore followed by openings in several neighboring countries later this week.

Much of the over-the-top romantic comedy was set in this wealthy city-state. As the stars streamed past flashing lights down the red carpet Tuesday evening, local fans and tourists swarmed around them taking photos and asking for selfies.

The movie is expected to draw enthusiastic crowds across Asia after its box-office bonanza in the U.S.

Directed by John M. Chu, the film was adapted from Singaporean author Kevin Kwan's best-selling novel of the same name. It follows Chinese-American Rachel Chu as she travels with her boyfriend Nick Young to Singapore to meet his family and discovers they are ultra-wealthy.

The movie is drawing a mixed reaction. Admirers of the film say that as the first majority Asian-cast film in over two decades to be released by a major Hollywood studio it upends Hollywood's usual stereotypes of Asian characters.

Critics say it misses a chance to showcase the city's ethnic diversity.

The $30 million Warner Bros. film has grossed more than $35 million since its Aug. 15 world debut in Los Angeles and came out tops with its release in U.S. theaters over the weekend.

"This (movie) is something very personal to people, and it feels like a bigger movement than just the movie itself," Chu, the director, told The Associated Press.

The film has drawn criticism for its inaccurate portrayal of Singapore's ethnic diversity, with some calling it a misrepresentation of the country's minority races. Even though a majority of its residents are Chinese, a quarter of its population are Malay, Indian, or Eurasians, with many migrant workers from surrounding countries like Bangladesh or the Philippines.

"There's this whole notion of the movie being a triumph for representation, which is very problematic. The only Indians and Malays you see are servants," said Nicholas Yong, a Singaporean journalist and author who saw the movie before its Singapore premiere.

Even though its glamorous depiction of Singapore could give its tourism a boost, it was not entirely welcomed.

"To us, 'Crazy Rich' should not just be about the opulence and luxury showcased in the film, but Singapore's actual richness in terms of our diversity," said Singapore Tourism Board's spokesperson Lynette Pang.

As is true anywhere, in Singapore, the super-rich with their extravagant lifestyles are a tiny, privileged minority.

Writing in the South China Morning Post of Hong Kong, which has more than its share of tycoons and elite wealthy families, commentator Alex Lo said he enjoyed the film with "guilty pleasure."

"But amusement aside, it strikes me the whole purpose of the film exercise is to glamorize and legitimize the super-rich in Asia, many of whom are ethnic Chinese in real life," he said.

"Should we, as the audience and hoi polloi, be tantalized and awed by the display of mega wealth, which has been described, by most accounts, as accurate. Or should we rather be repelled?"

Many in Asia looked forward to seeing some familiar faces.

In Manila, the Philippines, an audience of mostly movie writers, critics and bloggers and some celebrity guests were thrilled and applauded when two Filipinos in the film, Kris Aquino and Nico Santos, appeared in their roles during an advance screening Monday night, said Ruth Navarra-Mayo, an editor of the Lifestyle section of the newspaper Philippine Daily Inquirer.

Santos plays a fashion designer. Aquino, a popular actress and daughter of late pro-democracy champions in the Philippines, played a member of Malay royalty.

A former American colony, the Philippines has a highly Westernized culture and Hollywood movies are a local entertainment staple.

Audiences would welcome more films with Asian themes and characters, Navarro-Mayo said.

"We want to see Asian actors on Asian topics," Navarro-Mayo said. "We're hungry and ready for this type of film."

UC Davis program highlighted

STEM for Girls, a UC Davis program for girls in Yolo and Sacramento counties, has recently been named a winner of a 2018 Inspiring Programs in STEM Award from Insight Into Diversity magazine.

The national honor recognizes colleges and universities that encourage and assist students from underrepresented groups to enter the fields of science, technology, engineering and math, or STEM.

STEM for Girls immerses about 60 girls, age 10 to 12, in the fields through a one-day program of workshops and more. Guided by UC

Davis student volunteers, the participants have built working electrical circuits, tasted fermented food, explored the science of flavors and untangled mathematical knots. They also tour campus labs, maker spaces and farms to meet scientists, technologists, engineers and mathematicians in their places of work.

STEM for Girls, which plans to hold its eighth annual event on May 11, 2019, is a joint program of the Women's Resources and Research Center in Student Affairs and the Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering in the College of Engineering.

"Our goals are to expose students to STEM fields, build confidence in their abilities to participate in STEM and introduce them to role models in the fields," said Sara Blair-Medeiros, assistant director of outreach at the Women's Resources and Research Center.

The magazine will feature STEM for Girls and 77 other recipients of the award, announced last week, in its September issue.

Want to make money? Be a pro gamer

Competitors at worldwide events earn up to millions of dollars

E-sports is on the rise and there's no stopping it. Short for electronic sports, this type of competition doesn't require running, passing or hitting, at least in the physical sense. It's about clashing on a TV or computer screen through video games.

The rise in internet during the 1990's brought in a new wave of multiplayer gaming that now involves monetary rewards. From popular sports titles like the Madden NFL and NBA 2K series to fighting games such as Street Fighter, there's at least one video game out there for everyone to try their hands in competition.

ESPN reported back in 2016 that 427 million people will be watching e-sports by 2019 and there has even been talk of it being an Olympic competition. Reuters noted that a summit held by the International Olympic Committee in October 2017 acknowledged the growing popularity of e-sports and the possibility of its addition in the future.

That same year, popular games such as Call of Duty: Infinite Warfare, Heroes of the Storm, League of Legends, Counter Strike: Global Offensive, and Dota 2 brought in more than $78 million in combined prize pools at its many competition venues around the world.

Dota 2, for example, had the largest prize pool of $10.8 million for a team's victory. Each Dota 2 team is comprised of five players, meaning each participant on the winning team won a little over $2 million. As of August, 51 players who are professional e-sports competitors are millionaires, according to esportsearnings.com. Five of whom have earned over $3 million.

They're making money by playing video games, a dream for some people.

The typical monthly salaries of average pro gamers can range from $1,000 to $5,000, whereas the highest paid League of Legends players can earn up to $15,000 per month apart from the money that they get from prizes.

They get this by through sponsorships from the likes of gaming peripherals and even food and beverage companies. Many e-sports pros even use online streaming as a way to supplement their pro gamer salary, mainly using platforms like Twitch. A Twitch streamer with 2,000 subscribers can earn an extra $5,000 a month. Subscribing to a Twitch stream costs $4.99 per month, and the streamer gets half of that money. Streamers can also monetize their streams with ads and take donations from viewers.

The money earned during gaming may never be on the same level as the "main" sports in the U.S. Atlanta Falcons quarterback Matt Ryan makes $30 million a year through his current five-year contract while Golden State Warriors point guard Stephen Curry makes a cool $34 million annually.

Unlike their situation, however, there is no potential time frame.

The average professional athlete's career is over by age 33, according to Morvarid Taheripour of the Legal Studies and Business Ethics Department at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

While video games require reflexes and hours of training, there has not been a definite age as to when e-sports players begin to slow.

So, if you have extra time on your hands to train and the patience to slowly climb the gaming ranks, look into the professional world of e-sports. Turn a hobby into a career.

POWER ON is a video game column by Democrat reporter Cutter Hicks that covers retro to modern gaming topics.
