Vallejo's 8th annual Visions of the Wild Festival is seeking artists

"Connecting nature, culture, and community" is the goal of Vallejo's Visions of the Wild Festival.

Steven Dunsky developed the Visions of the Wild Festival to "connect nature, conservation, and art."

"Vallejo has a very rich culture, multiple cultures," said Dunsky, the Acting Director for Public Affairs and Communication for the Pacific Southwest Regional for the United States Forest Service. "We believe the arts are a great way to bring people to nature. Each year we explore a different theme through field trips, art exhibits, concerts, speakers, and films. In 2023, we celebrate the environmental heroes, local and global, who are making a difference to conserve and restore our endangered planet."

The Visions of the Wild Festival is a free three-day event with opening night held at the Vallejo Naval & Historical Museum on Oct. 12. The festival will also include an art exhibit at the Vallejo Temple Lofts, a film festival at the Empress Theatre, and a Family Discovery Zone near the downtown Vallejo Farmers Market.

Dunsky believes small victories can be just as important as major successes.

"We decided we didn't want to only speak about the gloom and doom that goes on these days — environment and global warming, extinction, etc," said Dunsky. "We wanted to celebrate some of the environmental victories that have happened especially in places like Vallejo and also celebrate some of the heroes that have led to those victories, both locally and globally.

"Whether the heroes are building butterfly gardens, organizing neighborhood trash cleanups, planting trees, teaching children how to make birdhouses, or promoting environmental justice issues, we want to celebrate individuals who are making Vallejo and Benicia beautiful places to live."

In addition to honoring local conservators, Vallejo and Benicia artists can submit artwork for the chance to be displayed at the Visions of the Wild festival art exhibition. The six winners will not only have their art displayed at the art exhibition but will receive a $1,000 stipend.

All mediums of art can be submitted.

"In general, artists are amazing thinkers about the world. We don't want to limit their creativity," said Dunsky. "Artists look at the world in certain ways that the rest of us don't. Artists can take that vision and create something that helps us look at the world differently."

The Vision of the Wild committee will choose five wild visionaries to receive the awards and six artists' creations will be selected.

The Visions of the Wild Festival will take place on October 12-14. If you would like to nominate an "Environmental Hero" or submit artwork, please do so by Aug. 11 at visionsofthewild.org.

MOVIE REVIEW

Zach Galifianakis shines in engaging, relevant toy story

By Mark Meszoros

If only because it is the feature debut of co-directors Kristin Gore and Damian Kulash Jr. (singer and director of the band OK Go), it's surprising how consistently engaging and entertaining "The Beanie Bubble" proves to be.

Already given a limited theatrical release, the comedy-drama built around the wild Beanie Baby craze of the 1990s from Imagine Entertainment debuts this week on Apple TV+.

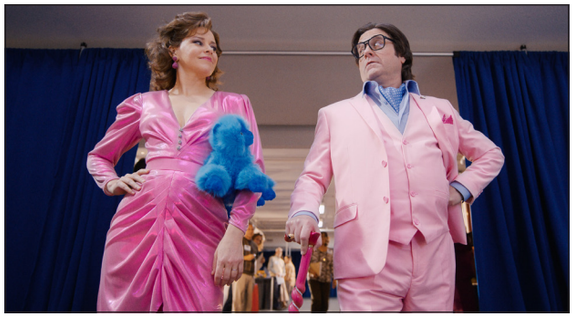

Penned by Gore ("Saturday Night Live," "Futurama"), it is based loosely on Zac Bissonnette's book "The Great Beanie Baby Bubble: Mass Delusion and the Dark Side of Cute," with significant liberties taken for narrative purposes.

"There are parts of the truth you just can't make up," reads text that greets the viewer in the film's opening seconds. "The rest, we did."

Of all the fine choices made by Gore and Kulash — high school sweethearts who've been married since 2016 — none is finer than the casting of Zach Galifianakis as Ty Warren, the toy salesman largely responsible for creating the little understuffed animals that would become speculative investments for many.

According to the movie's production notes, the couple saw the film as a vehicle for the hilarious "Hangover" star even before developing it. However, Galifianakis' Ty is nothing like some over-the-top characters the actor has played in that 2009 hit and other movie and TV projects; he is complex — at times funny and charming and at others greedy and duplicitous and still at others weak and immature.

This portrait of the eventual billionaire is told over two timelines — one beginning in 1983 and another starting 10 years later — and primarily from the points of view of three women. Although based partially on women from Warren's past, Elizabeth Banks' Robbie Jones, Sarah Snook's Sheila Harper and Geraldine Viswanathan's Maya Kumar have been invented for "The Beanie Bubble."

COURTESY OF APPLE

Elizabeth Banks and Zach Galifianakis share a scene in "The Beanie Bubble."

Ty first befriends Robbie, who's frustrated with both her job and marriage, and convinces her to start a business with him. The son of a toy salesman, Ty wants them to sell stuffed Himalayan cats — his innovation being that they stuff them only so much, causing them to feel softer and making them easy to pose.

Eventually, as success comes, a romance blossoms.

In the later timeline, Ty Inc. is doing well, and the company hires college student Maya as a receptionist.

Meanwhile, Ty is hours late for an appointment at his house with Sheila, a lighting designer. When she reads him the riot act, he is immediately smitten and puts the full-court press to convince the mother of two young girls to go out with him.

Ty really takes to the girls, and he values their opinions on his products. In fact, the idea for Beanie Babies comes when one is disappointed one of his stuffed animals is too large to fit in her backpack, making it impractical for show and tell at school.

"Before we knew it," Sheila says in narration, "we were a family — a funny, weird, happy family."

Ty never enters into a romantic relationship with Maya, but she becomes indispensable to him at the company — or so it would seem, at least. Among her ideas are creating scarcity to make certain Beanie Babies objects of incredible desire and to create a company website at a time most businesses had yet to do so.

As the popularity of Beanie Babies grows and grows, Maya closely monitors trends, using eBay and other new online resources, and she grasps what is happening with the craze and where it's all heading far better than Ty. (That he detests Beanie collectors — because they're making money off his creations, not appreciating that they're fueling his overall business — is both hilarious and, in its way, tragic.)

"The Beanie Bubble" keeps you invested as it runs along its parallel tracks, even as they draw closer to their inevitable conclusions. Perhaps it's all a little predictable, but that's understandable given what we remember about the time when Beanie Babies were all the rage — and then weren't.

In the hands of Galifianakis ("Due Date," "Between Two Ferns"), Ty is a compelling figure even when we are meant to loathe him. The strange businessman radiates a unique energy that powers "The Beanie Bubble."

That said, Banks ("The Hunger Games," "Love & Mercy"), Snook ("Succession," "Predestination") and Viswanathan ("Blockers," "The Broken Hearts Gallery") each brings qualities to her character that help make the firm work. You root for all three of them but especially Maya — increasingly underappreciated by Ty — thanks largely to the earnestness Viswanathan infuses in her.

Dinner for two: 'Love at First Bite' tosses singles into culinary bootcamp

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Premiering with a larger-than-life, 90-minute episode, "Worst Cooks in America: Love at First Bite" chomps down on Food Network, Sunday, Aug. 6.

The eight-episode season brings chefs Anne Burrell ("Beat Bobby Flay") and Jeff Mauro ("The Kitchen") to the kitchen, asking them each to lead a team of fun-loving singles – all self-proclaimed "kitchen disasters" – through a relentless and life-changing culinary boot camp. As Burrell and Mauro teach the contestants the skills required to master the kitchen once and for all, they hope to turn them, as Food Network says, from "cooking duds into kitchen studs."

In its description for the series, Food Network explains: "The recruits not only learn how to make date-friendly dishes like sushi, spicy wontons and classic French pastries, they also go head-to-head in romantic dating-inspired challenges like the Cupid Games, the Bagel-orette and the Inferno Zone. In the end, only the most improved recruit left standing is awarded a $25,000 grand prize, bragging rights for their mentor and the ability to add "great cook" to their dating profile.

The network continued with a deep dive into the season's first episode, dishing out some juicy details: "Before picking teams, Anne and Jeff kick off the competition by having the recruits make their signature 'seal the deal' meal to show off their skills, or lack thereof, in the kitchen. Then in the main dish challenge, the teams learn to make duck paired with a fruit sauce. After assessing everyone's skills, Anne and Jeff reveal a unique twist when choosing their teams."

During following episodes, these culinary (and relationship) hopefuls are introduced to some of the classic dishes of Italy, take a lesson on hand-pulling made-from-scratch noodles with chef Victor Huang and compete in a dazzling, Las Vegas-inspired challenge, recreating an over-the-top dish without a recipe.

In the grand finale — a double date of its own, with the two final episodes airing back-to-back on Sunday, Sept. 10 — the two "most improved" chefs put their newfangled know-how to the test as they are asked to serve a three-course, restaurant-quality meal to a panel of expert judges, including chef Hawa Hassan, Christian Petroni ("Food Network Star") and Chris Scott ("Top Chef"). Whoever can serve the most date-worthy meal will go on to win it all.

With twists, turns and romance in abundance, "Worst Cooks in America: Love at First Bite" premieres Sunday, Aug. 6, on Food Network.

By Richard Bammer
rbammer@thereporter.com

Scott Nichols, a University of California, Berkeley, graduate in architecture, once quit a job to make more money to pursue his passion: Buying fine art photographs, especially those in the Group f/64, founded in 1932 by Ansel Adams and six other Bay Area photographers who shared a common Western style of sharply focused and carefully framed images. Besides Adams, the group included Edward Weston and Imogen Cunningham.

Nichols, a San Anselmo resident who owns a namesake photo gallery in Sonoma, said his expertise centers on those artists and the era in which they lived.

"I love Ansel Adams' work," Nichols said during a telephone interview Monday, adding that he shows "a lot of" Adams photos at his gallery but also, from time to time, some in Europe and Asia.

Having amassed a significant number of Adams photos over the years, he decided to open a new show of the San Francisco native's works, "Ansel Adams: an Exhibition in Wine Country," some 70 prints in all, at Nichols' gallery just off the plaza in the historic Sonoma County town.

The show, which continues to Oct. 14, comes just as the De Young Museum's major exhibition of Adams photos, "Ansel Adams in Our Time," is scheduled to close Sunday at the San Francisco venue.

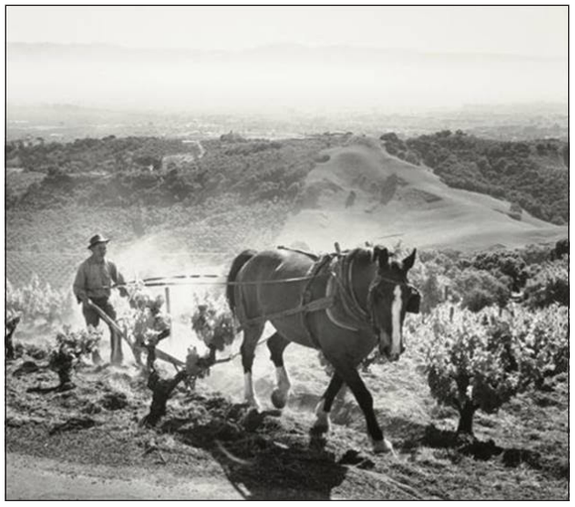

"I have a lot of Ansel Adams," said Nichols. "That's what inspired the show.'

He said the "famous" Ansel Adams photos, among them the epic landscapes of Half Dome and El Capitan in winter in Yosemite National Park and a moonrise in New Mexico — and so many more — "have become difficult to come by."

Among the roughly 70 Ansel Adams photos on view through Oct. 14 at the Scott Nichols Gallery in Sonoma is "Autumn Storm, Owens Valley, California, 1943."

"Winery Facade, Paul Masson Vineyards, 1959" is one of some 70 Ansel Adams photos on view through Oct. 14 at the Scott Nichols Gallery in Sonoma.

But those who wander into his First St. East gallery, perhaps fans of Adams, "want detailed information" about the man who was born in 1902, was educated as a pianist before discovering his passion for photography in 1927 and composed his images in painterly ways that, at the same time, expressed musicality.

Adams, noted Nichols, died in 1984 and was, by that time, the best-known photographer of the modern era. Throughout his life, Adams called the Bay Area, Yosemite and Carmel-by-the-Sea his home.

Some half-dozen Adams photos scheduled for his gallery show sold before the show even opened, said Nichols, underscoring the famed photographer's cache. Images spanning his long career as a photographer, including early vintage photographs, images of Yosemite National Park, the desert Southwest, and the Bay Area will be available for viewing or purchase, said Nichols, adding that images, in small and large formats, range in price from $1,000 to nearly $300,000 but most are priced from $2,500 to $35,000.

"Storm Surf, Timber Cover, California, 1960" is one of some 70 Ansel Adams photos on view through Oct. 14 at the Scott Nichols Gallery in Sonoma.

What Nichols offers to the casual viewer or buyer "are a lot of uncommon images you wouldn't see elsewhere," he said. "That's what I like — the off-the-beaten path stuff." The oldest photo in the show includes a 1927 image, "On the Heights," a photo of Virginia Best, who later married Adams," and the most recent one stems from 1964, "his really productive period," noted Nichols, who is a member of the Association of International Photography Art Dealers.

In 1927, Adams published "Parmelian Prints of the High Sierras," photos that imitated Impressionist painting by deemphasizing detail in favor of soft, somewhat mystical effects achieved the darkroom, where Adams excelled as a printmaker.

Nichols said Adams "didn't get really famous" until he published "Images" in 1974, "a really big coffee table book. There are a lot of things that are in there, places, that you just don't see in the real world."

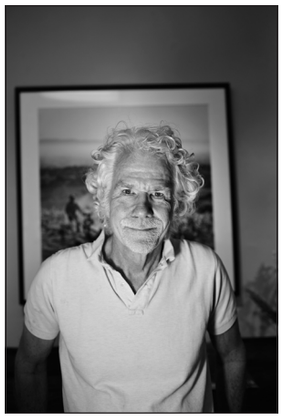

Myriad critics have mused on Adams' legacy, a career that includes not only his photos and writings but also his leadership in the Sierra Club, during which he served as a visionary and voice in the fight to preserve and protect America's wilderness areas.

To Nichols, Adams also achieved something else, too, by bringing photography "into the realm of fine art. His business manager and the people around him, the publishers elevated photography into a fine art."

Adams' overarching message, he added, "is the beauty of the landscape, the monumental presentation of Yosemite and other places like that."

Of the seven members of the Group f/64, Adams is set apart by "redefining Yosemite photographically," said Nichols. "Everyone had a different take. I think he was exposing Yosemite to the world — much more than Carleton Watkins," who photographed Yosemite in the 19th century and died nine years after Adams was born.

As for Adams' gift for composition, Nichols said, "He was able to present the image without cropping."
