For years, a multicultural festival has been talked about in Vacaville. This weekend, that talk comes to fruition.

Vacaville's first Multicultural Festival, put on by the city, will feature music, dancing, crafts and food by local groups representing their cultural heritage.

"It started a long time ago and so now it's really exciting to see it land this year, and how timely right? We need something like this," says Special Events and Cultural Arts Coordinator Kristin Milliken.

The Chinese American Association of Solano County will do a martial arts demonstration, Hōlau Hula 'o Ku'ulei Cultural & Dance Academy will perform a traditional Hawaiian Hula, Arteritano Flamenco will dance the Flamenco and more.

For food, Shula's Kitchen, Love Lumpia, Kona Ice and La Guagua will provide a variety of cuisine options.

The inspiration for the event came in part after Milliken took a trip to Elk River three years ago for their well-established and popular multicultural festival. "It was just amazing to see the community come together and I was like, 'I want that for Vacaville,'" she says.

One local singer, Ramana Vieira, is excited to share her Portuguese heritage in her hometown. She will close out the event with a Fado performance.

Since she first moved to Vacaville six years ago, Vieira has heard talk of a Multicultural Festival in the works. Now she is thrilled to be a part of the first one, she says.

Fado, a style of music recognized as a symbol of Portugal, can be characterized by its melancholy tune and pointed lyrics. Vieira calls it "the music of the sea."

When she was growing up, Fado was the music in Vieira's household. "Through osmosis I was exposed," she says.

Her relationship with the music changed when she was thrust on stage in a local Fado house on a trip to Portugal at the age of 18, "auditioned in the back kitchen," she says.

After getting house approval, she says they "shoved me onto the stage with the musicians and I'm standing there like a deer in headlights, and then I sang a Fado that I gleaned from my childhood." The song she sang, "Estranha Forma de Vida," was received by a standing ovation.

Years later, Vieira has brought her Fado music all over the country and the Bay Area, but doesn't play often in her current home of Vacaville, she says. This weekend's Multicultural Festival will change that.

"I do a lot of shows outside of Vacaville and that's kind of bittersweet to me, that I have that sort of circulation outside of my hometown. The fact that I finally am integrating into this community with my music delights me beyond belief," says Vieira. "I'm delighted to be able to be the token Portuguese artist here in Vacaville and share my heritage."

There have been variations of this festival in Vacaville's history, says Milliken, adding that she is thankful for the community support and assistance in putting the multicultural event together. "It really comes down to those relationships and reaching out to the community," she said.

Talk of this event spread like wildfire in Vacaville, and the city has been able to have a lot of community involvement, says Milliken. With just a few days until the festival, she says she hopes people come out and come together in celebration.

Lovie Simone leads new adaptation of Blume's 'Forever...'

By Alicia Rancilio
The Associated Press

While cutting together scenes for the new series "Forever," Mara Brock Akil, who has created shows such as "Girlfriends," "Being Mary Jane," and "The Game," recalls asking her video editor to pause for a moment. Was there a problem? No. Akil was watching someone very right: the show's female lead, Lovie Simone.

"I was like, 'Oh my God, not only is this girl beautiful, she's acting her (expletive) off,'" Akil said. It was a privilege to know that "something that I wrote is aligned with her moment."

The title "Forever" may sound familiar because it shares a name with the Judy Blume novel first published in 1975, but frequently challenged by critics because it includes teen sexuality. This version is also a coming-of-age story but takes place in 2018 and 2019 instead of the 1970s, and the couple at the center of the story is Black. The series debuts Thursday on Netflix.

"I think it does a good job at mimicking the energy and the intention of the book," said Simone, who had not read "Forever..." prior to this job.

The protagonists, Kei-sha and Justin (played by Simone and newcomer Michael Cooper Jr.), meet at a New Year's party, like in the book. The two knew one another as kids, but it's been years since they've seen each other, and now there are romantic sparks.

Simone says that while yes, the show is about young romance and firsts, there's plenty of character development too.

"It was like, 'Wow, I am the love interest, AND I have a story to tell while being the love.'" It's really nice to not just be the girlfriend," she said.

Early on in filming, Simon and Cooper purposely kept their distance off screen to make their reacquaintance authentic.

"In the beginning of the story, they hadn't talked in so long so, we didn't want to have too much rapport," she said. "We were like, 'OK. We're not gonna see each other too much ... We still kind of want to be strangers a little bit.'"

Keisha is also grappling with betrayal by her ex-boyfriend who shared an intimate video of her that was seen by other students. She transferred schools to escape the bullying. Keisha is determined to be perfect in all things to get into Howard University and make her mother proud.

That pressure to live up to high standards is a familiar one for many teens and "we can all relate to those feelings and how they make us feel," said Simone.

Set in Los Angeles, the show was filmed in real neighborhoods giving it authenticity. The characters shop in the Fairfax District. Keisha lives in Crenshaw, and Justin's family lives in Park-Windsor Hills, an affluent African American neighborhood.

Simone wasn't familiar with LA prior to filming. She grew up in New York and now lives in Atlanta.

"I don't know too much about LA culture. I know the stigmas around it, but I don't know LA culture, and coming here and falling in love with the true LA culture was so amazing," she said.

Simone began acting around age 9 and remains the only actor in her family. She has a twin sister, Yuri, a musician who goes by Reiya The Giant. Simone's original dream was to be like Selena, Miley, Keke and Zendaya.

"I really wanted to be the girl on Disney Channel with the neon wand, tracing out the logo," Simone said, adding that as she got older, she felt a pull to more serious stories.

Her first big opportunity was the role of rebellious teen Zora on the OWN drama "Greenleaf," about the family behind a popular megachurch. After the first season as a recurring character, Simone was bumped up to series regular.

"That was college for me. It was four years with all of these 'GOATS' like Oprah Winfrey, Lynn Whitfield, Keith David, Lamman Rucker. I learned how to react with a sense of groundedness. I really want to always fool myself. I know that we are acting for audiences, but I work to fool myself, to make myself believe that I exited myself and a new person came in."

Money or power: Malarkey reigns in 'Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

The ever-fastidious Brian Malarkey ("Guy's Grocery Games") dishes out "unpredictable and diabolical culinary challenges" (per Food Network), testing all-star chefs on their culinary capabilities, strategic thinking and ability to face the heat during the all-new series "Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out," making its television debut on Food Network Tuesday, May 13, before streaming on Max the following day, Wednesday, May 14.

In this nine-episode series, four talented chefs begin each installment with an impressive $25,000 in their pockets. This money — to be spent on advantages for themselves or sabotages against their competition — can be used across both rounds of gameplay, leaving the "Cutthroat" champion with whatever change remains once all is said and done.

After introducing the weekly challenge in Round 1, Malarkey kicks off an auction that can make or break a player's game, as the competitors must balance the stress of cooking under a time crunch while deciding what advantages to buy. Once bidding closes, the cooks have one minute to gather any necessary ingredients from a shared pantry, one that closes as soon as the clock runs out. With whatever they've secured — in ingredients and in advantages — they must present worthwhile dishes to save themselves from being eliminated from the game. While one contestant is eliminated, another (the round's "MVP") is given an additional $1,000.

Round 2 begins with another auction for the three remaining chefs, this one specifically full of sabotages to unleash on the competition. "From foraging ingredients from a plane's bar and snack carts, to cooking a posh meal using only a hot dog roller and popcorn maker, the chefs must be strategic and crafty to navigate obstacles and outdo the competition," explains Food Network.

At the end of each episode, a special guest judge will evaluate the dishes one by one, without knowing what advantages or challenges their chefs faced. This season, fans can expect to see the likes of Maneet Chauhan ("Tournament of Champions"), Scott Conant ("Beat Bobby Flay"), Alex Guarnaschelli ("Ciao House"), Aarti Sequeira ("Halloween Wars") and Jet Tila ("Cutthroat Kitchen"), extraordinary chefs who will ultimately determine who wins the game — and their remaining cash.

"Cutthroat Kitchen: Knives Out" premieres on Food Network Tuesday, May 13, streaming on Max the following day.

BALLET

'Swan Lake' comes to Vacaville

The studio's spring show challenges its dancers and sends off its seniors with a classically loved ballet

By Saija Maki-Waller
swaller@thereporter.com

When Artistic Director of Benicia Ballet Teresa Taylor first decided to take on "Swan Lake," she was nervous about the execution. Now, she's just excited to see it all come together on stage on Saturday.

The idea to perform "Swan Lake" at Benicia Ballet came after a group visit to see the San Francisco Ballet's performance over a year ago, says Taylor. Afterwards, graduating Benicia Ballet dancers Nanami Stewart and Ineza Marekani approached Taylor about putting on the show at their studio.

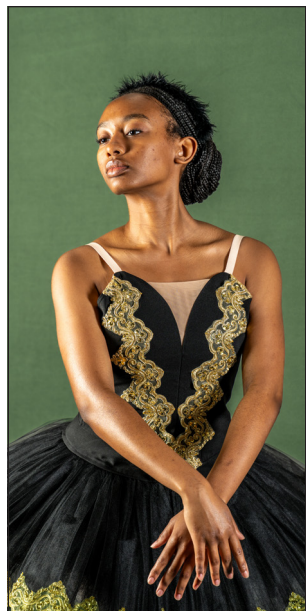

"After just seeing (San Francisco Ballet's performance) I was like, 'Are you sure?'" Taylor laughs, adding that the young women didn't know quite what they were getting themselves into.

Swan Lake, while being a classic, is also a difficult ballet, especially for dancers with an age range of 4-17.

Taylor worked for almost a year with the music, deciding if they would be able to pull it off. This weekend is the culmination of all of her and the dancers' hard work, bringing together 33 student dancers in one performance.

Part of Taylor's motivation for the show came from Stewart and Marekani, who have been dancing with Benicia Ballet since they were young children. Swan Lake will be their final show before graduating high school.

"It's bittersweet because they're leaving but it's fabulous to have had all this continuity with them and to see them grow within the studio and become young women, and yeah, it makes me tear up a little just thinking about it," says Taylor.

There are 36 dancers in "Swan Lake," three of whom are adults. Due to a lack of male dancers at the studio, Taylor has brought in two Bay Area professionals to play the necessary male roles, she says.

The guest dancers, Tian Tan in the role of Prince Siegfried and David Bier as Von Rothbart, have both worked with Benicia Ballet before, but had a fairly quick turnaround for their roles in "Swan Lake," says Taylor.

For the young student

Benicia Ballet students Anna Reyes, and Cassandra Aguilar-Robles will perform May 10 in the ballet's production of Swan Lake.

dancers, working with Tan provided an opportunity to practice their partner work, a difficult task in ballet that requires trust and incredible balance. "Tian has really stepped up in dealing with girls that have had very little partnering experience and he does it with grace," says Taylor.

"It's not easy to partner and then with very little rehearsal time and especially with no experience leading into it, it's a huge challenge, and he's risen to the occasion as well as the girls," she said. "I'm proud of all of them. They're all doing amazing."

Choreographing a beloved show for such a wide range of dancers and dance levels has been both exciting and daunting, Taylor says.

Despite the hard work and the nerves, Taylor is just just excited to see it all come together, especially the final scene, when all of her students are on stage together.

"I call it our second family," says Taylor. "We may not always see eye-to-eye but we're always there for each other."

Carrie Preston stars in “Elsbeth”

ASK THIS OLD HOUSE

KVIE 7:30 p.m.

During this new episode, host Kevin O’Connor and experts Tom Silva and Richard Trethewey troubleshoot air conditioning airflow before removing a shellac finish from wood. Later, they spot-light metal fabricator and business owner Shelby Barnhart.

POLICE 24/7

KRON KQCA 8:00 p.m.

Running from the law is an art form, but luckily for these officers, plenty of people are still struggling with the basics. This time, police find a man suspected of domestic battery hiding under a vehicle. Then, a woman is found passed out in her car.

ELSBETH

KOVR 8:00 p.m.

Elsbeth (Carrie Preston) knows how to do it right as this Season 2 finale is a re-union like no other. As the somewhat unconventional attorney does her thing with the NYPD, viewers get to witness a parade of guest stars returning from the past two seasons.

Louis Cunningham stars in “Marie-Antoinette”

MLB BASEBALL

ESPN 4:00 p.m.

The final game of this three-game series between the Philadelphia Phillies and the Cleveland Guardians broadcasts live from Progressive Field in Cleveland today. With both teams off to good starts this season, viewers should expect a competitive game.

TRACKER

KOVR 7:00 p.m.

Colter (Justin Hartley) finds himself back in Echo Ridge looking into the disappearance of a diner owner in this season finale. As the lone wolf survivalist searches for clues, he uncovers a stunning family secret and a kidnapping that goes back decades.

MARIE-ANTOINETTE

KVIE 10:00 p.m.

It’s the end of the beginning for Marie Antoinette (Emilia Schüle) and Louis XVI (Louis Cunningham) in this Season 2 finale. Marie struggles to support Louis’s overreaching rule caused by his depression, leaving her to step up and rule in his place.

MOVIE REVIEW

‘Another Simple Favor’

Lively, and especially Kendrick, are enjoyable again in mildly enjoyable second affair

By Mark Meszoros
mmeszoros@news-herald.com

Debuting on Prime Video last week, “Another Simple Favor” honors its predecessor in more ways than one.

For starters, the sequel to director Paul Feig’s 2018 black comedy mystery is peppered with self-aware references to how ridiculous it is that Anna Kendrick’s mom vlogger Stephanie Smothers and Blake Lively’s scheming and murderous Emily Nelson are spending time together again.

And then there’s the fact that, like “A Simple Favor,” “Another” largely falls apart down the stretch after a promising-enough first half or so.

However, like the first effort, this second “Simple Favor” — written by Laeta Kalogridis (“Shutter Island”) and the returning Jessica Sharzer — is more entertaining than not, thanks largely to the performance of Kendrick, who does the sweet-and-quirky thing really well. Lively, too, is fun — at least when she’s channeling Emily’s sexy-and-sinister side, the actor proving to be less successful when she’s asked to do a more sincere spin on the duplicitous felon later in the affair.

If you need a refresher, the meek Stephanie and the much slicker Emily became friends in the first “Favor” thanks to their sons being in school together. Emily taught Stephanie not to apologize for everything and unearthed a dark (and dirty) secret she’d been keeping. Soon, Emily disappeared and was found dead, with Stephanie and Emily’s handsome writer husband, Sean (Henry Golding), quickly acting on their mutual attraction. Ah, but it turned out Emily had faked her death for a $4 million insurance payout by murdering her twin sister, and, yada yada yada, she went to prison, with Stephanie and Sean going their separate ways.

“Another” begins with Stephanie live streaming while under house arrest on the beautiful island of Capri, off the coast of Italy.

“I want to be clear: I did not kill Emily’s husband,” she states.

We then go back in time, to Emily — out of prison, at least for the time being — showing up to surprise Stephanie at a reading of her recently released book about solving the aforementioned mystery. The sly Emily’s not out for revenge against Stephanie — mostly, kinda, probably — but if the latter doesn’t agree to be her maid of honor when she marries a mystery man on Capri, she’ll sue her over the book. Plus, you know, it will be

(Does anything scream “sequel!” quite like a plot built around a destination wedding?)

“Another Simple Favor” boasts plenty of moving pieces, with Emily set to marry the suave Dante Versano (Michele Morrone), a high-ranking member of an Italian crime family at odds with another, and Dante’s powerful mother, Portia (Elena Sofia Ricci), vehemently opposed to the union. Also along for the ride is Sean with his and Emily’s son, Nicky (Ian Ho); as Sean angrily day drinks, Nicky busies himself with a drone that we know will play into the proceedings before they conclude.

And Portia has an unpleasant surprise for Emily: She has invited the latter’s mother, Margaret — “Hello, Mother, you look different,” Emily says to Margaret (Elizabeth Perkins, replacing Jean Smart from the first film) — who has arrived with Emily’s aunt, Linda (Allison Janney).

Soon, a person is killed, and the local police are content to chalk it up to an accident, despite Stephanie’s well-founded objections, as they appear to be in league with the Versanos. That makes it all the more frustrating when they pin Dante’s murder on her, with Emily’s ultimate plan now (cough) seemingly clear.

With apologies to its appealing supporting cast, “Another Simple Favor” is best when it’s just Stephanie and Emily, which allows Kendrick and Lively to cook, such as Emily’s two-person bachelorette party, in a rented-out pool and complete with stiff martinis. The pairing is less successful in the film’s third act, but we’ll steer clear of those details.

As with the first entry, “Another Simple Favor” doesn’t fit all the strengths of Feig (“Freaks and Geeks,” “Bridesmaids”), but the director keeps things moving along swiftly enough.
