Dear Reader,

Gold just hit a 6-year high. If you are a panicked investor, gold might be the only shining star. This year, investors have flocked to gold thanks to things like the U.S-China trade war or the tensions rising between the U.S and Iran.

Driving gold prices this last week are investors who are reading the central bank's stance as a signal for a rate cut sooner than later.

"This (US-Iran tension) has likely stirred up investors' appetite for the safe haven asset, adding to the uptrend in gold price that started in early May, even as the US Federal Reserve turns increasingly dovish and the US-China trade tensions prolong," pointed out Eun-Young Lee, an analyst at DBS Bank, in a report.

My strategy remains the same as it's been for years: I bet on real money, which is gold and silver. I also continue to borrow funny money to buy real estate. Since oil and gas are in high demand globally and appear to be going up in price, I also invest in oil and gas production.

Again, I'm not really betting on these assets -- I'm primarily betting against the dollar, and the leaders who manage the U.S. economy.

Here are my 6 reasons why I own gold and silver.

#1: Real Gold and Silver Are Not Investments

I do not own gold and silver to make money. They are insurance, a hedge against the stupidity of the elites… and me. I have insurance on my car, just in case someone hits me, or in case I hit someone else. Gold and silver serve a similar purpose. I do not trust the elites.

They believe they know everything. They believe they are always right. In their minds, they do not make mistakes. They will never admit they are wrong. Elites are not the only ones with this affliction. All of us are afflicted with the “I am right, and you are wrong” disease. We all know someone who is always right. At times, I am that person, too.

The challenge for elites is that they live in their sheltered world with other elites, out of touch with the rest of the world.

They send their kids to the same elite schools with other elite kids.

They believe they are doing good, working for the good of the world, yet they are out of touch with the real world.

They hold massive charity events, they feel good, look good, want to see and be seen at galas, raising billions of dollars to save the world … but who saves the world from them? They were born smart, then highly educated, driven by hard work, yet—unwittingly—they have rigged the system to make themselves richer… at the expense of everyone else.

Hard working Americans are already collecting their "Cannabis Checks".

All made possible thanks to a "loophole" in the Farm Bill.

#2: No risk

All investments have risk. Real gold and silver have no risk. The price of gold and silver will go up and down—because the value of our fake money is going up and down.

When a person invests, let's say in a stock or real estate, they expect an ROI, return on investment, because they are taking a risk.

When a person saves money in a bank, they expect a rate of return in the form of interest, because saving money in banks is extremely risky, especially when elites are printing money.

When I purchase a gold or silver coin, I do not expect an ROI, because I am not taking a risk. Gold and silver are God's money. Always remember, the price of gold or silver will go up or down because the value of our fake money is going up or down. Gold and silver are just gold and silver. Gold and silver will be here long after you, I, the elites, and the cockroaches are gone.

#3: Gold and Silver Attract Real Wealth

Wealth attracts wealth just as poverty attracts poverty.

I was once invited to a seminar featuring the Hindu guru Gurudeva. I was excited to attend. When it came time for questions, most questions were on enlightenment, others on spirituality, peace, or happiness. The guru was wearing a lot of gold: gold glasses, a large gold earning, gold bracelets, and a gold necklace. Since I was raised a Methodist, and Methodist ministers did not wear much (if any) gold, I raised my hand and asked, "Why do you wear so much gold?"

The kindly guru smiled and said, "Because the tears of God are made of gold."

He then said, "The tears of God—gold—attract wealth."

When I asked what he meant by gold attracting wealth, the guru replied, “Let’s say you want to attract $1,000 a month into your life. Then you own $1,000 of real gold.” “And if I want $1 million a month, then I own $1 million in gold?”

The guru, sensing that my greed over taking my spirituality, just smiled and said, “Why don’t you start with a $1,000 and see if what I say works for you.

Gold does not work for everyone. There are conditions on God’s generosity.”

#4: Why Real Gold and Silver?

Why not paper gold and silver exchange traded funds (ETFs)?

I do not trust anything paper. Anything paper is a derivative, a fake, something that requires a counterparty for value. The reason I want my real gold coins in my own private vault and not paper gold coins in an exchange-traded fund (ETF) vault, is because for every real gold coin, there are an estimated 100 to 500 fake paper coins. Everything will be fine… until everyone wants real gold.

You wouldn't know this if you watched CNN...

But the president has quietly funneled $11 billion into the pockets of Americans who hold a special type of “trust.”

This “trust” – which is available to every American –has allowed some Americans to collect $4,472… $8,005… even as much as $22,287.

Best of all…

The companies that offer this “trust” are required – by LAW – to pay out at least 90% of their income to trust holders.

And I bet less than 1% of Americans even know this exists…

#5: God’s Money Versus Government Money

Question: How much more fake money can our governments print?

Answer: The elites can print as much as they want as long as people will work for it.

Meanwhile, the elites are warehousing real gold. They know the game is over.

#6: God’s Money is Easy to Acquire

Buying gold and silver mines is hard. I know. I've bought and built two of them. Buying mines takes a lot of time, money, and brain power. Acquiring real gold and silver requires very little money, very little risk, and very little financial education.

It is much easier and less expensive to just buy real gold and silver coins from a reputable coin and silver dealer. If you are a beginner, I would not buy numismatic, rare collectible coins. That requires a lot of financial education and years of experience. The best news is that everyone, rich or poor, can afford God's money.

I hope these 6 reasons helped you fully understand the importance of buying and owning gold and silver.

Regards,
Robert Kiyosaki

P.S. Apart from owning commodities, the rich have assets in multiple classes…

And lucky for you, my friend and former Goldman Sachs Managing Director, Nomi Prins knows something many traders don't.

There's an anomaly in the market that's made a small group of people a ton of cash.

Money made the very same day is amounts like $5,500… $11,500… and $17,750.
