A passion for tourism: The aim of this guide is to introduce to tourism those who never dealt with it before. It is true that nowadays there is an entire world of information available on the internet with specific details and figures on how to do tourism, and technology is giving a great help to all those who would like to advertise their property. It links the globe continuously and the growth of reservations worldwide demonstrates how we cannot consider doing tourism without the most modern social networks, platforms and digital reservation systems. However, before reaching the point of being connected and advertising a local activity, my goal is to help those who have never dealt with tourism understand their potentiality and if they really know what they are going to face, moreover considering the practical everyday difficulties that they will incur into. This guide shows the initial steps, those first little movements that it is necessary to take before making such a decision, something that one can do by himself easily before getting in touch with serious marketing and tourism firms that can help promote and develop the business.Â
