After working a twelve hour emergency room shift, Doctor Edward Majorski stops at a convenience store on Christmas morning. He looks forward to Corn Pops and milk, and ten hours of much-needed sleep. He got neither.

Caught in a botched robbery-turned-hostage situation, he is thrust into a crisis requiring a quick mind and surgical skills in rudimentary conditions. Despite his reluctance, he is forced to make choices that will determine life or death—including his own.

From the Georgia coast to the depths of the Okefenokee Swamp, he battles a psychopath who is intent on surviving at all cost.
