Oliver Wortham is introduced to the game of football by his father, and he instantly realizes his love for the game. From a very young age, he would practice and hone his skills so he can be the very best. He meets a teammate and forms a chemistry that leads both of them to be highly recruited for college football. What happens next confuses and shocks the small families of these two majorly unknown stars. To reach them, the families must work together because they have no idea what is in store for their sons.
