Six years ago their love for music brought them together when Heather moved to town to take a teaching job nearby. They soon discovered the love they shared wasn't just for music. A relationship built on and strengthened by a common shared interest proves to be full of ups and downs in everyday life. When Jade loses her father, the only family she has left, she risks losing Heather by withdrawing into silence and solitude. Will their love for each other prove strong enough to forge through this emotional path?

"You did as I asked. You lay there on top of me. You didn't know what I needed or wanted. You only knew I wanted you there. You were filled with desire. Yes, I felt just how wet you'd become just lying there on top of me. Yet you had the respect for me to let me be the one to make the move. You fell asleep, I was livid. How could you fall asleep when I need you to love me?"
