About the Author and the Book

Matt Balkovic was born and raised in the outskirts of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, the son of a steelworker, with Yugoslav ancestry. He met his best friend in High School and has been married to her for over fifty years. They were married in 1960 and have three children &#x2013; Mark, John and Janice. These children married and added eight grandchildren &#x2013; Christina, Matthew, Michael, Paige, Robert, Claudia, Corinne, and Andrew. Matt and Roberta currently live in Holmdel, New Jersey and have a beach house in Wildwood Crest, New Jersey.

Matt has engineering degrees from Carnegie Mellon University and New York University and a business degree from Pace University. Matt lived most of his adult life in New Jersey, where he worked for AT&T Bell Labs, AT&T Computer Systems, and NCR. His work placed him on the ground floor of a number of technical explosions &#x2013; data communications and switching, personal computers, local area networks, and the Internet.

This book discusses his family life, his social life, his personal life and his career. It looks at the broad aspects of his life, such his philosophy, lessons learned and his relationships with family and friends.
