About The Composer

Ehan Hartung is a vocalist, composer, conductor, and commercial music performer. Prior to serving as the operations manager at Endeavor Music Publishing, he taught middle and high school choir for 10 years. Ehan is a conductor, educator, and composer who partners with schools, churches, and individual musicians to deepen their understanding of voice mechanics, literacy, and expressivity.

A native of Kansas, Ehan received his Bachelor of Music in Music Education and Vocal Performance from Friends University and his Master of Music in Choral Conducting from Western Illinois University. His main research interests involve the effects of vocal mechanisms on expressivity and their impact on pedagogy and assessment standards.
