A Note From The Composer

"Simplice" began as a simple harmonization of a lullaby that I made up while singing my children to sleep. I spent over four months writing this work, and during this time, I began to think about some regrets in my life. The "B" section of this work shows this, as the music becomes beautifully sad. As the work develops, the lullaby slowly creeps back into the music and the recapitulation is finally reached at m. 114. During the writing of this work, I found that the love of ones children can overcome any of life's problems.

This work will require some mature sounds, a wonderful solo flute (my wife's instrument), an expressive alto saxophone (my instrument) and a great deal of patience to work out the delicate writing that is all throughout this composition. The process of writing this work has been very fulfilling. This work should prove effective in a concert where you would want to program something deep and beautiful.
