ABOUT THE MUSIC

This arrangement is taken from Handel's Water Music Suite No. 2, but interestingly, Handel uses this Hornpipe and Bourrée in the first suite as well. Both pieces are in F Major and provide a thorough study of the key and finger patterns associated with it. The bass section will have a deep dive into half position. Hopefully they will also get familiar with 2nd position, which works so beautifully in F major and other flat keys.

The dynamics incorporated in this arrangement are very specific. While they are not what Handel put in the original, they offer a real interpretation of the phrasing and shape of the music itself. By following them, you will add a lot of depth to this masterpiece of the Baroque period.

The history behind the composition makes for a great lesson in British culture of the time. Handel's background will also offer many talking points in providing meaningful study of the music. Enjoy!
