PROGRAM NOTE

The arranger writes, "It was always a dream of my late mother, Linda (Bentz) Parsons, to have one of her many compositions published. As an organist and music director for over 50 years, she frequently wrote original pieces for choir and piano/organ, including a large-scale instrumental work that I orchestrated and premiered at a 2014 concert. Since her passing in 2017, I've made it a mission to get a composition of hers in print to honor her memory and show my love for the person who was my biggest fan and supporter."

Freedom's Banner was originally written for a July 4th celebration and shows how much Linda Parsons loved patriotic themes. The melody is very memorable and heartfelt, and lends itself well to special performance today.

NOTES TO CONDUCTOR

The arranger writes, "As with any march, attention to articulations and accents is extremely important. I've also used dynamics to give some effective moments of contrast without taking away from the overall forward momentum, so be sure to work with your ensemble on these elements. It will also be helpful to review the eighth/sixteenth rest/sixteenth rhythm with the entire group, as everyone plays that figure at some point in the piece. The goal is to have a small bit of space on the rest for a crisper attack."

Most of all, I hope you enjoy playing this march. It's truly a labor of love allowing Mom's music and positive spirit to live on!"

ABOUT THE COMPOSER

Linda Anne Parsons (1943-2017) was many things: a musician for over 50 years, a devoted wife, and most importantly to composer/arranger Steve Parsons and his siblings, she was a loving (and much-loved) mother.

Linda Parsons' life included many roles and accomplishments. She was an ordained music minister and organist (American Guild of Organists). She played piano, autoharp and served as a choir director in numerous churches. She was a writer of choral music for use in church choir and educational settings, including writing and producing children's musicals. She was an event musician, playing for community dinners. She even tackled the calliope for street fair events! Simply stated, music has been very important part of the Parsons' family history.

Steve Parsons writes, "One of her best and endearing qualities was her unwavering support of all her children, especially my music career. As a composer and arranger myself, I tried to help Mom fully realize her creative vision on a regular basis, and always desired to see through one of her life goals: to get one of her original works into print. While I wasn't able to achieve this prior to her passing, it became a major mission of mine to complete the task. After combing through her files, I selected a catchy patriotic selection to arrange for concert band, which has resulted in Freedom's Banner, a concert march suitable for any flag-waving occasion, and very typical of mom's inspiring optimism."
