

Parental Sportsmanship Pledge

The WHYS program was developed from the mind of Will Hunter. He wanted to bring his life lessons, teaching background, and experience from the HIGHEST LEVEL of sports to a community based program. Will strongly believe in the model, "each one, teach one!" Thus the birth of WHYS!!!

WHYS core beliefs is centered on sportsmanship, teaching, and player development. Our aim is to teach and grow the players in our community. These beliefs go hand and hand with fair play and community building. In order for WHYS programs to be successful, we need each individual member and their families to do their part. We are here to encourage the players to do their best, allow the Coaches to teach and inspire, and respect the organizations practices. While we encourage competitive play, the spirit of the program is not to be lost. No one, player, fan, or supporter should feel threatened or made to feel less than at any of our programs.

At WHYS we want an environment that is fun and exciting for everyone. As a parent, it should be understood that you are the player's first role model. The actions and beliefs you have will shape their character. With that in mind, remember we are trying to create an environment of fun, learning, and development. To create this environment it is important that parents set an example for their kids and show sportsmanship and good behavior. Any negative behavior or actions is not acceptable and will not be tolerated. Parents should always encourage participation, respect, and support for the coaches as they create the best possible experience for your child.

We are grateful for your registration and want this to be a positive and fun experience for all parties involved. Thank you for doing your part!
