SCALES

Title of Paper	Effects of Systematic Social and Token Reinforcement on the Modification of Racial and Color Concept Attitudes in Black and in White Preschool Children
Authors	Margaret Spencer
Date	May-70
Measures
Link to Paper	Pictures were used to provide a measure of attitude toward and preference for "dark-skinned" (black) and "lightskinned" (white) persons. In this set, each of eight 15 x 22 inch cards showed two children in full-length drawings. More measures are further discusses in the following link: https://psycnet.apa.org/record/1974-06900-001
Scales/Constructs	In previous investigations, it has been demonstrated that preschool children perceive the color black and black minority group members as negatively evaluated and the color white along with whites as positively evaluated. The present authors attempted to modify this particular attitude where it was assessed both in black and in white preschool children.
Age Normed	age 3-5
