CALL FOR NOMINATIONS:
The New York Academy of Medicine
2020 Edward N. Gibbs Lectureship And Award in Nephrology
Deadline for Nominations: Friday, July 24, 2020

ELIGIBILITY AND QUALIFICATIONS:

The New York Academy of Medicine seeks nominations of physician scientists who have dedicated their careers to advances in nephrology or are presently making cutting-edge discoveries in the field. Candidates must hold an MD degree and be US citizens. The recipient of this honor will present his or her research at a lecture before a broad audience of scientists and clinicians, to be presented virtually in the fall of 2020. The award recipient will receive the Edward N. Gibbs Memorial Medal and an honorarium of $7,500; all travel expenses associated with the lecture will be paid by the Edward N. Gibbs Memorial Endowment. It is expected that the manuscript from this lecture will be submitted to a scholarly journal for publication.

Deserving individuals may be nominated by submitting a detailed letter, not to exceed 3 pages, outlining the importance of the candidate’s work and explaining why his or her research embodies significant contributions to the field of nephrology. Individuals who have been nominated previously but not selected may be nominated again, but a new submission is required. The candidate’s curriculum vitae must accompany the letter of nomination. The combined materials must be emailed as a single PDF by Friday, July 24 to: dfingerhut@nyam.org. Questions may be directed to Donna Fingerhut at dfingerhut@nyam.org, or (212) 419-3645.
