SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

This document contains proposed amendments to 26 CFR part 1 under section 381 of the Code. Section 381(a) generally provides that in certain acquisitions of the assets of a distributor or transferor corporation by another corporation, the acquiring corporation succeeds to the tax attributes, including the earnings and profits, of the distributor or transferor corporation. For this purpose, §1.381(a)-1(b)(2) defines the acquiring corporation with regard to transactions described in section 381(a)(2) (relating to certain reorganizations under section 368), as either the corporation that ultimately acquires all of the assets transferred by the transferor corporation, or the corporation that directly acquires the assets transferred by the transferor corporation if no single corporation ultimately acquires all of the assets so transferred.

1. Proposed Section 312 Regulations

A notice of proposed rulemaking containing proposed regulations (REG-141268-11) under section 312 was published in the Federal Register on April 16, 2012 (77 FR 22515) (proposed section 312 regulations) to clarify the regulations under §1.312-11 regarding the allocation of earnings and profits in nonrecognition transfers of property from one corporation to another. The proposed section 312 regulations provide that, in a transfer described in section 381(a), the acquiring corporation, as defined in §1.381(a)-1(b)(2), succeeds to the earnings and profits of the distributor or transferor corporation. For example, if in a reorganization under section 368(a)(1) by reason of section 368(a)(2)(C), the transferee corporation that directly acquires a transferor corporation's assets transfers some, but not all, of the acquired assets to a controlled subsidiary, the transferee corporation (the acquiring corporation under §1.381(a)-1(b)(2)) retains the earnings and profits. However, if the transferee corporation instead transfers all of the transferor corporation's assets to a controlled subsidiary, then that controlled subsidiary (the acquiring corporation under §1.381(a)-1(b)(2)) would succeed to the transferor corporation's earnings and profits. Comments responding to the notice of proposed rulemaking were received. No public hearing was requested or held.

2. Summary of Comments Received with Respect to the Proposed Section 312 Regulations

Some commenters recommended that the definition of acquiring corporation under §1.381(a)-1(b)(2) be changed for purposes of determining the location of the transferor corporation's earnings and profits. These commenters believed that the rule in the proposed section 312 regulations allowing the section 381 acquiring corporation to succeed to the earnings and profits of the transferor inappropriately allows electivity of the location of the transferor corporation's earnings and profits in connection with section 381(a)(2) transactions based on whether the transferee corporation that directly acquires the transferor corporation's assets retains a single asset. These commenters also expressed concern that this rule raises difficult practical issues in determining whether all of the acquired assets have been transferred to a controlled subsidiary.

As an alternative to the proposed section 312 regulations, some commenters recommended adopting a rule that provides that the corporation that acquires substantially all of the assets transferred by a transferor corporation in a section 381(a)(2) transfer succeeds to the transferor's earnings and profits. One commenter recommended that earnings and profits remain with the direct acquiring corporation even if all of the acquired assets are transferred to another corporation pursuant to the plan of reorganization. Another commenter suggested that there should not be disparate treatment of earnings and profits in nonrecognition transfers to controlled subsidiaries merely because a reorganization has occurred, and therefore the rule for determining the location of earnings and profits in connection with section 381(a)(2) transfers should be consistent with rules that govern nonrecognition transfers to controlled subsidiaries.

The IRS and the Treasury Department believe that adopting a substantially all approach would introduce unnecessary uncertainty surrounding the measurement of "substantially all." The IRS and the Treasury Department, however, agree with the recommendation that the direct acquiring corporation should succeed to the earnings and profits. The IRS and the Treasury Department believe that this approach addresses the other comments received regarding consistency among nonrecognition transactions. Moreover, after considering all comments received with regard to the proposed section 312 regulations, the IRS and the Treasury Department have concluded that this recommended change is appropriate not merely with respect to the determination of the location of the transferor corporation's earnings and profits but also with respect to the other tax attributes governed by section 381. Accordingly, this notice of proposed rulemaking (proposed section 381 regulations) revises the definition of acquiring corporation as described under the Explanation of Provisions. Because the proposed section 312 regulations merely cross-reference the section 381 regulations, those proposed regulations will remain outstanding. It is anticipated that the proposed section 312 regulations and the proposed section 381 regulations will be concurrently published as final regulations in the Federal Register after the comment period for the proposed section 381 regulations has closed on [INSERT DATE 90 DAYS AFTER PUBLICATION OF THIS DOCUMENT IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER] and the IRS and the Treasury Department have had an opportunity to consider the comments received.

Explanation of Provisions

1. Direct Transferee Corporation is the Acquiring Corporation

The proposed section 381 regulations provide that, in a transaction described in section 381(a)(2), the acquiring corporation is the corporation that directly acquires the assets transferred by the transferor corporation, even if the transferee corporation ultimately retains none of the assets so transferred. The current regulations under section 381 yield an identical result, except when a single controlled subsidiary of the direct transferee corporation acquires all of the assets transferred by the transferor corporation pursuant to a plan of reorganization. In that case, the current regulations treat the subsidiary as the acquiring corporation, a result that effectively permits a taxpayer to choose the location of a transferor corporation's attributes by causing the direct transferee corporation either to retain or not to retain a single asset. The IRS and the Treasury Department believe the proposed rule produces more appropriate results because it would eliminate this electivity. The proposed rule also eliminates the administrative burden under the current regulations associated with determining whether a particular corporation in fact has acquired all of the assets transferred by the transferor corporation pursuant to a plan of reorganization. In addition, it eliminates the disparate effect of the presence or absence of a plan of reorganization and produces results consistent with those obtained if a corporation that has not engaged in a reorganization transfers assets to a controlled subsidiary in a nonrecognition transaction.

Finally, the IRS and the Treasury Department believe the proposed rule is appropriate with respect to determining the location of the earnings and profits of a transferor corporation because the proposed rule generally maintains such earnings and profits at the corporation closest to the transferor corporation's former shareholders, except in the case of triangular reorganizations. The IRS and the Treasury Department considered an alternative approach that would achieve this result in all cases by treating the corporation that issues stock pursuant to a plan of reorganization (the "issuing corporation") as the acquiring corporation. An issuing corporation approach would, however, present complex considerations in the context of cross-border transactions, potentially requiring a number of special rules to preclude opportunities for the avoidance of tax. Accordingly, the IRS and the Treasury Department believe that the proposed rule produces more appropriate results than the current regulations (including in the context of cross-border transactions) while preserving simplicity and administrability.

2. Removal of §1.381(a)-1(b)(3)(ii)

The proposed section 381 regulations also remove §1.381(a)-1(b)(3)(ii) relating to a transfer by the acquiring corporation of the acquired assets to a controlled subsidiary. Section 1.381(a)-1(b)(3)(ii) provides that if the corporation that directly acquires the assets transferred by the transferor corporation is the acquiring corporation, and it transfers any acquired assets to one or more controlled subsidiaries, then the carryover of items described in section 381(c) to any controlled subsidiary is not governed by section 381. Although that rule is correct, it is unnecessary in light of the proposed section 381 regulations. Accordingly, the paragraph is removed.

Special Analyses

It has been determined that this notice of proposed rulemaking is not a significant regulatory action as defined in Executive Order 12866, as supplemented by Executive Order 13563. Therefore, a regulatory assessment is not required. It has also been determined that section 553(b) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 5) does not apply to these proposed regulations, and because these regulations do not impose a collection of information on small entities, the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6) does not apply. Pursuant to section 7805(f) of the Code, these regulations will be submitted to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration for comment on their impact on small business.

Comments and Requests for Public Hearing

Before these proposed regulations are adopted as final regulations, consideration will be given to any written (a signed original and eight (8) copies) or electronic comments that are submitted timely to the IRS. The IRS and the Treasury Department request comments on all aspects of the proposed regulations. All comments will be available for public inspection and copying. A public hearing will be scheduled if requested in writing by any person that timely submits written or electronic comments. If a public hearing is scheduled, notice of the date, time, and place for the public hearing will be published in the Federal Register.

Drafting Information

The principal author of these proposed regulations is Stephanie D. Floyd of the Office of Associate Chief Counsel (Corporate). Other personnel from the IRS and the Treasury Department participated in their development.
