SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

We are announcing the availability of a guidance for industry entitled “Guidance for Industry: Acrylamide in Foods.” We are issuing this guidance consistent with our good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The guidance represents our current thinking on this topic. It does not create or confer any rights for or on any person and does not operate to bind FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

In the Federal Register of November 15, 2013, (78 FR 68852), we made available a draft guidance for Industry entitled “Draft Guidance for Industry on Acrylamide in Foods” and provided an opportunity for comment prior to our work on the final version of the guidance. The final guidance has been modified in response to comments. The guidance announced in this notice finalizes the draft guidance dated November 2013.

This guidance is intended to provide information that may help growers, manufacturers, and food service operators reduce acrylamide levels in certain foods. Acrylamide is a chemical that can form in some foods during certain types of high-temperature cooking. Acrylamide is a concern because it can cause cancer in laboratory animals at high doses, and is reasonably anticipated to be a human carcinogen. Reducing acrylamide levels in foods may mitigate potential human health risks from exposure to acrylamide. The guidance is intended to suggest a range of possible approaches to reducing acrylamide levels and not to identify specific recommended approaches.

II. Electronic Access

Persons with access to the Internet may obtain the guidance at either <http://www.fda.gov/FoodGuidances> or <http://www.regulations.gov>. Use the FDA Web site listed in the previous sentence to find the most current version of the guidance.

Dated: March 1, 2016.

Leslie Kux,

Associate Commissioner for Policy.
