SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984 (Pub. L. 98-417) and the Generic Animal Drug and Patent Term Restoration Act (Pub. L. 100-670) generally provide that a patent may be extended for a period of up to 5 years so long as the patented item (human drug product, animal drug product, medical device, food additive, or color additive) was subject to regulatory review by FDA before the item was marketed. Under these acts, a product’s regulatory review period forms the basis for determining the amount of extension an applicant may receive.

A regulatory review period consists of two periods of time: A testing phase and an approval phase. For animal drug products, the testing phase begins on the earlier date when either a major environmental effects test was initiated for the drug or when an exemption under section 512(j) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the FD&C Act) (21 U.S.C. 360b(j)) became effective and runs until the approval phase begins. The approval phase starts with the initial submission of an application to market the animal drug product and continues until FDA grants permission to market the drug product. Although only a portion of a regulatory review period may count toward the actual amount of extension that the Director of USPTO may award (for example, half the testing phase must be subtracted as well as any time that may have occurred before the patent was issued), FDA's determination of the length of a regulatory review period for an animal drug product will include all of the testing phase and approval phase as specified in 35 U.S.C. 156(g)(4)(B).

FDA has approved for marketing the animal drug product RECUVYRA (fentanyl). RECUVYRA is indicated for the control of postoperative pain associated with surgical procedures in dogs. Subsequent to this approval, the USPTO received patent term restoration applications for RECUVYRA (U.S. Patent Nos. 6,299,900; 6,818,226; and 6,916,486) from Acrux DDS Pty. Ltd., and the USPTO requested FDA's assistance in determining the patents' eligibility for patent term restoration. In a letter dated April 26, 2016, FDA advised the USPTO that this animal drug product had undergone a regulatory review period and that the approval of RECUVYRA represented the first permitted commercial marketing or use of the product. Thereafter, the USPTO requested that FDA determine the product's regulatory review period.

II. Determination of Regulatory Review Period

FDA has determined that the applicable regulatory review period for RECUVYRA is 2,092 days. Of this time, 2,037 days occurred during the testing phase of the regulatory review period, while 55 days occurred during the approval phase. These periods of time were derived from the following dates:

1. The date an exemption under section 505(i) of the FD&C Act (21 U.S.C. 355(i)) became effective: October 3, 2006. The applicant claims August 31, 2005, as the date the investigational new animal drug application (INAD) became effective. However, FDA records indicate that the INAD effective date was October 3, 2006, which was the date a major health or environmental effects test began.

2. The date the application was initially submitted with respect to the animal drug product under section 512 of the FD&C Act (21 U.S.C. 360b): April 30, 2012. The applicant claims April 18, 2012, as the date the new animal drug application (NADA) for RECUVYRA (NADA 141-337) was initially submitted. However, FDA records indicate that NADA 141-337 was submitted on April 30, 2012.

3. The date the application was approved: June 23, 2012. FDA has verified the applicant's claim that NADA 141-337 was approved on June 23, 2012.

This determination of the regulatory review period establishes the maximum potential length of a patent extension. However, the USPTO applies several statutory limitations in its calculations of the actual period for patent extension. In its applications for patent extension, this applicant seeks 1,279 days of patent term extension.

III. Petitions

Anyone with knowledge that any of the dates as published are incorrect may submit either electronic or written comments and, under 21 CFR 60.24, ask for a redetermination (see DATES). Furthermore, as specified in 21 CFR 60.30, any interested person may petition FDA for a determination regarding whether the applicant for extension acted with due diligence during the regulatory review period. To meet its burden, the petition must be timely (see DATES) and contain sufficient facts to merit an FDA investigation. (See H. Rept. 857, part 1, 98th Cong., 2d sess., pp. 41-42, 1984.) Petitions should be in the format specified in 21 CFR 10.30.

Submit petitions electronically to <https://www.regulations.gov> at Docket No. FDA-2013-S-0610. Submit written petitions (two copies are required) to the Dockets Management Staff (HFA-305), Food and Drug Administration, 5630 Fishers Lane, rm. 1061, Rockville, MD 20852.

Dated: August 15, 2015.

Associate Commissioner for Policy.
