Principles for Selecting, Developing, Modifying, and Adapting Patient-Reported Outcome Instruments for Use in Medical Device Evaluation; Draft Guidance for Industry, Food and Drug Administration Staff, and Other Stakeholders; Availability

AGENCY: Food and Drug Administration, Health and Human Services (HHS).

ACTION: Notice of availability.

SUMMARY: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA or Agency) is announcing the availability of the draft guidance entitled "Principles for Selecting, Developing, Modifying, and Adapting Patient-Reported Outcome Instruments for Use in Medical Device Evaluation." The FDA encourages the collection, analysis, and integration of patient perspectives in the development, evaluation, and surveillance of medical devices, including digital health technologies. Patient-reported outcome (PRO) instruments facilitate the systematic collection of patient perspectives as scientific evidence to support the regulatory and healthcare decision-making process. This draft guidance describes principles that should be considered when using PRO instruments in the evaluation of medical devices and provides recommendations about the importance of ensuring the measures are "fit-for-purpose." This draft guidance is not final nor is it in effect at this time.

DATES: Submit either electronic or written comments on the draft guidance by [INSERT DATE 60 DAYS AFTER DATE OF PUBLICATION IN THE FEDERAL REGISTER] to ensure

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

A PRO instrument can be used in a clinical investigation to measure the effects of a medical intervention or changes in the health status of a patient. PRO instruments allow for collection of certain data as evidence of safety and effectiveness which is complementary to other clinical outcomes and/or biomarkers. Information from well-defined and reliable PRO instruments can provide valuable evidence for benefit-risk assessments and can be used in medical device labeling to communicate the effect of a treatment on patient symptoms, functioning, or quality of life when the labeling is consistent with the PRO instrument's documented measurement capability. PRO instruments may be used to inform a patient's eligibility for inclusion within a study, to capture safety or effectiveness outcomes, and may be aligned as primary or secondary endpoints or used as a stand-alone outcome assessment or component of a composite endpoint. FDA determines the validity evidence needed to support use of a PRO instrument for a particular regulatory purpose informed by the way it is used in the clinical investigation. FDA uses the term "fit-for-purpose" to describe this flexible approach. In addition to providing evidence to assess the safety and effectiveness of medical devices, PRO instruments can measure the impact of medical devices on patient well-being and other concepts that may influence payers, healthcare providers, and patients when making decisions about potential treatments or management options.

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA's good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the current thinking of FDA on "Principles for Selecting, Developing, Modifying, and Adapting Patient-Reported Outcome Instruments for Use in Medical Device Evaluation." It does not establish any rights for any person and is not binding on FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.
