The Privacy Act embodies fair information principles in a statutory framework governing the means by which the United States Government collects, maintains, uses, and disseminates individuals’ records. The Privacy Act applies to information that is maintained in what is known as a System of Records. A System of Records is defined by the Privacy Act as a group of any records under the control of an agency from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. In the Privacy Act, an individual is defined to encompass United States citizens and legal permanent residents.
As a matter of policy, NCPC extends administrative Privacy Act protection to all individuals for Systems of Records that contain information on U.S. citizens, lawful permanent residents, and visitors. Individuals may access their own records contained in a System of Records in the possession or under the control of NCPC in the manner described by NCPC’s Privacy Act Regulations found at 1 CFR Part 603.

The Privacy Act requires each agency to publish in the Federal Register a description of the type and character of each System of Records that the agency maintains and the routine uses for the records contained in each system. This requirement renders agency recordkeeping practices transparent, notifies individuals of the use to which their respective records are put, and assists individuals find records about themselves maintained by the agency. This notice complies with the requirements of the Privacy Act regarding Systems of Records and sets forth below the requisite information concerning NCPC’s Financial System of Records.

In accordance with guidance provided by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), NCPC provided a report of this new Systems of Records to OMB, to the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, and the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs.
