CNH Industrial employees support Habitat

In June, CNH Industrial employees volunteered with Habitat for Humanity organizations to support home building projects in local communities near our facilities. The non-profit housing organization, dedicated to improving lives through affordable homeownership, has been a long-standing partner of both CNH Industrial and the CNH Industrial Foundation.

“We are proud to work with this incredible organization. Our employees have volunteered with Habitat organizations in various communities near many of our facilities in North America for over a decade,” said Michelle Javaherian, Community Relations Specialist at CNH Industrial. “The partnerships have allowed us to give back to and help empower our communities and to help build more affordable homes for families or improve the place they call home.”

Employees frequently volunteer with Habitat organizations through the company's Impact Day program. Many of them have significant experience in areas related to the construction industry, further strengthening the partnership with Habitat. More Habitat Impact Days are planned for later this year.
