Service provider category nominees were selected through a pre-poll of more than 100 general partners and industry influencers. This year, more than 26,000 Private Equity Wire readers voted to choose the winners, which were announced and celebrated at a gala on October 20 at The University Club in New York.

“We’re honored that the readers of Private Equity Wire voted us their favorite deal origination technology,” said Ben Harrison, President of Financial Services at Intapp. “It’s a testament to the ways DealCloud helps firms effectively and efficiently source and originate deals from any location – a necessity for those who want to achieve success in today’s distributed and increasingly competitive marketplace.”

DealCloud provides a single-source deal, relationship, and pipeline management platform that helps firms power their deal-making process from strategy to origination and execution. It offers fully configurable solutions purpose-built for the complex relationships and structures of capital markets firms, which in turn helps private equity professionals better source and originate deals.
