London, United Kingdom | March 14, 2023 03:30 AM Eastern Daylight Time

Willie Mullins' Facile Vega is one of the most well-fancied horses coming into the 2023 Cheltenham Festival.

The six-year-old is set to run in the first race of the week in the Sky Bet Supreme Novices' Hurdle and is a 5/2 favourite with most UK betting sites ahead of the four-day festival.

Facile Vega won the Champion Bumper twelve months ago at Cheltenham and is expected to face the greatest resistance from Marine Nationale and Il Etait Temps – the latter also being a Mullins horse.

There are plenty of Cheltenham Festival betting offers surrounding Facile Vega, the best of which we have found below.

Facile Vega Odds

Facile Vega has been the odds-on favourite to win the Supreme Novice' Hurdle for the majority of the year, although some doubt has been cast after his poor showing at Leopardstown. He was beaten by 20 lengths after finishing last of five, but there is still plenty of confidence that he can turn that form around at the 2023 Cheltenham Festival.

Last year, Facile Vega won the Champion Bumper as a 15/8 favourite and has won each of his previous two hurdle races prior to the Leopardstown anomaly. That makes him and Townend the favourite in this race, with many horse racing bookmakers offering odds on markets on this race without Facile Vega. At the time of writing, the odds of Facile Vega stands at:

- William Hill - 5/2
- Bet365 - 5/2
- BetUK - 5/2
- Paddy Power - 2/1
- Betfair - 2/1
