

Public Philosophy Press

Public Philosophy Press is accepting new proposals for print and/ or digital works in public philosophy. If you are interested in submitting a proposal, please submit the following information in PDF format to info@publicphilosophypress.com

1. The proposed title of the book
2. A description of the overall project and abstract of the book
3. A description of how this book is a unique contribution to public philosophy
4. Table of contents
5. An explanation of how this book is related to other publications in the field and/ or how it is related to other Public Philosophy Press publications
6. A description of the target audience and intended use of the book
7. Details of the proposed length of the book, quality and quantity of illustrations used in the book (if any), whether the book is to be a print, digital or both print and digital publication
8. Relevant author credentials and a CV

Once received, your proposal will be shared with the peer review board and evaluated to determine whether your project aligns with the Public Philosophy Press mission. If your proposal is accepted the editorial board will establish a timeline for submission and editing of the final manuscript. The final manuscript will then be reviewed and approved by the peer review board before publication. Public Philosophy Press will then print, market, and sell your book.
