You’re Invited!

I would like to personally invite you to add your voice to the breath-taking array of energizing and inspiring exchanges that our Association brings together. I am proud of the AAA and its members who are committed to facts, empathy, equity, and justice.

We publish anthropological research, stage conferences, support professional development, and promote understanding of our common humanity.

Thanks for joining us.

Edward Liebow

Connect with AAA

The American Anthropological Association is the world’s largest association for professional anthropologists. The Association, founded in 1902, covers all fields of anthropology (social/cultural anthropology, biological/physical anthropology, and archaeology) and represents anthropologists in both academia and professional practice.

Connect with Anthropologists

Expand your network to 9,000 anthropologists and access 50 sections and interest groups.

Annual Meeting

Share your latest research, connect with colleagues, see new books and films, build your career skills, and celebrate the best field on the planet.

Section Meetings

AAA provides a wide range of specialized groups to promote knowledge exchange and collaboration. Several sections host additional meetings in the spring.

Sections & Interest Groups

No matter what your specialty and interests, AAA has 40 sections and 10 interest groups that will be a welcoming home within the AAA for knowledge exchange, publications, professional development, support and networking.
