“Look at Sam’s yard.
It is a mess,” says Mat.

“We can make it look like a little park,”
says Mit.

“Let’s do it! Max will help.”
“Sam is at the zoo today with Kit.”

“Look at the weeds! Look at the dirt and the mud! Sam’s yard looks sad.”

“I will make a sign. I will write ‘Sam’ the sign.”

“I will make a gnome. The gnome will fish at the little pond,” says Mat.

“Sam will like roses in his yard. I will plant roses under that wall,” says Mit.

“Sam likes to sit in the sun. We can set a chair under that big tree,” says Pip.

They take up all the weeds.
They fill in the holes with dirt.
They plant seeds in the ground.

They make the pond bigger.
They plant roses under the wall.

“Look, there is Sam with Kit.
Hand me the sign.
I will set it on the wall.”

“This sign is for your yard,” says Max.
“Did you do all this?” Says Sam.

“I planted the red roses under the wall,”
says Mit.
“I like to swim in your pond,” says Pip.

“What is under the sheet?
Is it a big plant?”

“It’s a gnome! A little gnome
with a big head,” says Sam.
“I made the gnome for you, Sam,”
says Mat.

“I like the sign. I like the roses.
I like the gnome, but you need to take them all from there.”

“It’s the wrong yard.
This is not my back yard.
My yard is there!”
