

God-Soaked Life: Members' Questions Podcast

Chris Webb with Carolyn Arends

The chat with Chris was long and lively, and we commend the entire conversation to you. However, if you'd like to see if there's a burning question in particular that he addressed, here is a guide to the questions discussed:

:45—Tension between being loving and accepting and still standing for righteousness.

6:55—Need for a 12-step type process for all Christians?

12:35—Great commission... aren't mission and love the same, of the same essence?

26:10—Recommendations for helping churches put love first rather than mission first?

36:50—God finds his rest in us... How so if God is self-sufficient?

42:50—When John uses "eternal life" in his gospel, is it the same as "The Kingdom of God" used in other gospels?

48:20—Has God's revelation continued after the canon was finalized and if so how is that discerned?

50:07—How has Benedictine tradition nourished your own life with God and how can it help form loving communities?

51:10—How do you discern how open and vulnerable to be?

56:30—Suggestions for recovery of sacraments especially in non-sacramental traditions?

1:02:25—What is the top thing you hope readers come away with from your book?
