Said he. @rslade bad news, unfortunately. The answer is: *NO* There are sets of exercises available that really represent what you'll see in the actual exam. Zero. Zip. Not sausages.&gt; I have used: 1)&gt; Questions that came with the official CISSP Book Study Guide 2) Questions That &gt; Came up with an online course I bought (uCertify based on the top book with more &gt; added question) 3) pocket prep CISSP iPhone app 4) CISSP practice questions &gt; iPhone App@rslade at a time ISC2 sold a set of workout questions (don't know if they're still doing), but even it, although the closest that I have seen, they're totally undoing. Imagine some of them got into the official guide, so that might be your best bet. As for the rest, as I have repeatedly pointed out, writing real exam questions is really hard, and none of those who are selling practice tests are willing to do the necessary work to create a set of questions that match the actual or difficult exam style. Me: I think part of the problem is that you have people out there who want to get or think they can get copies of actual test questions, to study or memorize. (You know, people who request official waste from exam questions) what they don't understand is that ISC2 ANS/ISO/IEC 17024 certificates are certified (such as ISACA, GIAC, EC-Council, etc.), and as such, there is a separation between training and testing. People who develop exam questions are not the same people who develop samples of questions presented with or alongside training (such as the Sybex Practice Questions Book). But both are written against CBOK/BOOK. I think practice questions are an important part of preparation. I've used QAE ISACA (answering questions explaining) in preparation for your exams, and using practice questions for my ISC2 head. But they are important in helping you understand the style of questions, and how they Answered, they did not memorize. FWIW, in my preparation for CCSP I will be using the ISC2 Practice Book Quiz from Sybex. --Micol Brown, CISSP, HCISPP, CISA, CISM, CCEIT, CRISC, GSLC, CSSTR, ISSA fellow Page 2 outstanding highlights with it master team, all our high quality test practice materials finished.
